CORRECT CORSETS CREATE PERFECT GOWNS.

THE NEW AUTUMN MODELS AT FARMER'S.

A leading dressmaker, speaking of the important part corsets play in the present Dress Creations, says:—"Don't make the too common mistake of spoiling your new Easter Gowns before you get them."

The advice sounds strange, but it is no less strange than true; for, if your dress is not fitted over the proper corset, it will be a failure, no matter what or how expensive the fabric, or how expert or high-priced the dressmaker.

The variety of new Corset Models we carry for different figures is sufficient to fit any figure. If you will allow us to properly fit you, your gown will not be a failure; and you will be pleased with it in more ways than one. It will add to your appearance—give you a grace and style you cannot obtain in any other way, and, withal, ease and comfort. Our Expert Corsetieres will gladly advise as to the correct model for every figure. We invite inspection of the following:—

AN AUSTRALIAN LADY PERFECTS A BLOUSE "GRIP."

There have been numerous inventions called "Grips" to keep the Blouse and Skirt in position. Some of them were good, others bad—but the best had faults. Now, an Australian lady has invented and patented a Perfect Blouse Grip, known as the "Roth," which we are proud to introduce to our patrons. It is constructed so as to accomplish its purpose thoroughly, without discomfort and without detriment to the Blouse.

It is made in Black, White, and Grey.

RATINE—A NEW SUITING, 4/11 YD. FOR LADIES' AUTUMN WEAR.

Ratine is the newest fabric this season for inexpensive Tailor-mades. It is a beautifully soft material of almost flannel texture, somewhat like an Irish Frieze—and with a rough and perfectly full surface. It is 52 inches wide, and we have a particularly broad variety of coloured grounds, with a faint white line, an inch apart. The colourings include Navy, Black, Mole, Deep Wine, Dull Green, Amethyst, Plum, etc.

DAVID JONES, LTD., OPP. G.P.O., SYDNEY.

THESE FABRICS WERE SPECIALLY DESIGNED FOR US.

Whilst cleaving to quality always, we strive as well to avoid the commonplace in the goods we sell.

As an instance, we arranged with a leading Textile Mill to design a series of attractive patterns in Shirtings and Pyjama Suitings for us—the colours being ground tints of Grey, Green, and Slate, with a stripe in harmony running over them!

They've come to hand now—beautiful woollen fabrics they are—and we've made them up in our own workrooms into two lines.

(1) Shirt with ordinary or with turn-back cuffs and detachable collars—simply unapproachable at the price, 7/6 each. Postage, 6d extra; or 8 posted for 1/.

(2) Pyjamas with rounded corners to the collar, pearlette buttons, and roomy pocket.

PRICE, 10/6.

SEE OUR WINDOWS.

We are making a special window display of these goods—we ask your inspection of it.

ALL KODAKS ARE CAMERAS, BUT NOT ALL CAMERAS ARE KODAKS.

Every intelligent person knows that the Kodak is the best of all Cameras of its class. It is the embodiment of superiority in construction, in ease of manipulation, in lightness and compactness, and in certainty of results. Users in every part of the world attest its goodness, and it is so simple in use that young children can, and do, use it with constant success.

WHEN YOU ARE BUYING YOU MUST BE VERY CAREFUL, OR YOU MAY BE MISLED OR PERSUADED INTO ACCEPTING SOME INSTRUMENT OTHER THAN A GENUINE KODAK. FOR YOUR PROTECTION, YOU SHOULD ASK FOR THE KODAK CAMERA BY NAME, AND LOOK FOR THE WORD "EASTMAN" ON THE INSTRUMENT YOU PURCHASE.

"IF IT ISN'T AN EASTMAN,
IT ISN'T A KODAK."

There are Brownie-Kodaks from 5/ to 50/, and with these you can get splendid results. The Regular Kodaks range from 20/ upwards. The Kodak Catalogue will be sent free upon request if you cannot call.

THE NO. 1 AND NO. 2 BROWNIE CAMERAS are Kodaks in miniature. They are first-class little instruments, taking splendid photographs, are very simple to use, always reliable, and are fitted with Lenses of extra quality. The No. 1 takes pictures 2¼in x 2¼in, and is priced at 5/; the No. 2 takes pictures 2¼in x 3¼in, and costs 10/.

NO. 1 FOLDING POCKET KODAK, 42/.

The No. 1 FOLDING POCKET KODAK takes pictures 2¼ x 3¼ in, and has a capacity of 6 or 12 exposures without reloading. A Meniscus Achromatic Lens, a Pocket Automatic Shutter, and a Brilliant Reversible Finder are included in the Fittings.

NO. 3A FOLDING POCKET KODAK, 90/.

The No. 3A FOLDING POCKET KODAK takes pictures measuring 5½ x 3¼ inches. It has a capacity of 6 or 10 exposures without reloading, and is beautifully fitted throughout.

Come and see the Kodak Exhibition of Work, made with Brownie and Kodak Cameras.

BICYCLES AND MOTOR CARS.

A "B. & B." MODEL 3 WILL HELP YOU SAVE TIME.

Doubtless there are many little walking trips you now have to take that the possession of a good cycle would make enjoyable as well as profitable.

Although only priced at £11, such a machine enables one to quickly and surely get about—it is a decided asset in time-saving.

It's an easy-riding machine, too—light in weight, substantially built, and as graceful in appearance as it is trustworthy. The frame is the latest design, and constructed of the finest-grade weldless steel tubing. 22 and 24 inches are the stock heights, although any size can be made to order.

Fine British-made fittings are used throughout, and as these are standard in gauge and size, it is an easy matter to replace them should breakages occur.

But you are pretty well insured against breakages, for we guarantee the cycle to be free from mechanical defects for twelve months, and should anything prove unsatisfactory within that time, return it and we will replace the part free of charge.

If you cannot get in to see one of these Machines during the daytime, call at our Pitt-street Depot some Friday night before 9. Or a catalogue will be sent free on request.

BENNETT & BARKELL, LTD., Largest Cycle Building House in the State, 234 Pitt-st, and Castlereagh-street, Sydney.

The fittings are of the very best English material, and guaranteed to be of standard sizes throughout, and the Bicycle built in the best manner possible.

If you have a second-hand Bicycle, and desire to buy a new one, consult us before purchasing, as we can find a way to fix you up, as SPEEDWELLS are sold for common-sense prices, with a Low Deposit and a small weekly instalment. CASH PRICES FROM £11 10s.

I NAME THEE WARREGO

THE LAUNCHING.

BRILLIANT SCENE.

A GREAT DEMONSTRATION.

MRS. PEARCE CHRISTENS THE VESSEL.

"I name thee Warrego. In time of danger may thy movement be swift."

Smash went a bottle of Australian champagne as the words were pronounced by Mrs. Pearce, wife of the Minister for Defence, and the third ship of the Commonwealth navy slid gracefully into the water.

The setting of the scene was Fitzroy Dock, the time noon, and the date yesterday, April 4, 1911. Never before was there a display so brilliant on the Parramatta River. No aquatic event ever attracted such crowds; no function ever brought together a more distinguished gathering. The river was a mass of moving craft. Steamers and boats of all sorts, shapes, and sizes, decorated with all the flags and bunting they could procure, and carrying as many passengers as they dared, manoeuvred warily within prescribed limits. They came right on to the fringe of a line of danger flags, several times the length of the destroyer, and there awaited the eventful moment to cheer and shout.

How many people turned out to see the Warrego launched it would be impossible to accurately state. But 50,000 would not be an unreasonable estimate. The island itself contained thousands of spectators, there were thousands on the water, and on every eminence within sight thousands and thousands more showed up. The heights and the foreshores of Balmain opposite the dock were black with heads. The trams could be seen emptying people out at every street which led down to the water's edge. They came along in hundreds upon hundreds, and wedged themselves in somewhere.

A striking feature of the ceremony was the immense enthusiasm displayed. The crowds were out to do the thing properly. Officialdom had done its part, and the people backed it up nobly. Not only were the river craft gaily bedecked, but also the houses within the scene. Flagstaffs carried all the flags that could be begged or borrowed, and from numerous verandahs and balconies waved an Australian ensign or a Union Jack. The Warrego herself, as she lay high and dry on the slip, was a string of flags from end to end. Others were hoisted by the score in the immediate vicinity of the island, the sister ships Parramatta and Yarra were a blaze of colours, and the training ship Sobraon out in the stream had on all her holiday attire. Truly it was a splendid colour scheme, shown to the best advantage in beautiful autumn weather. There was scarcely a ripple in the water, a blue sky prevailed, and a pleasant easterly breeze freshened and invigorated all those who had turned out to witness the event.

As the persons privileged to take part in the ceremony landed they made their way to the slip, and there viewed the destroyer as she reared awaiting her release. The water just lapped her stern. Her big bow was high and dry, level with a gaily-decorated platform from which the christening ceremony was to be performed. An ominous grey thing she looked as one stood at her keel and glanced upwards. The name of destroyer seemed to fit that class of craft well. Apertures gaped from which later torpedoes may be discharged, and the whole make and shape of the little vessel seemed to suggest speed, secrecy, and destruction. "A pigmy alongside a Dreadnought," said a naval bystander to another, "but its presence in the vicinity of a big ship on a misty morning as grey as itself would make a man nervous." The phrase "grey as itself" was striking. It would be difficult to see such a vessel on a grey morning till it was right upon you.

The gathering on the platform was small and distinguished. It included the Governor-General, the Governor, the Prime Minister, Vice-Admiral King-Hall, Brigadier-General Gordon, Sir Samuel Griffith, Mr. Justice Barton and Lady Barton, Mr. Justice O'Connor, Mr. Justice Isaacs and Mrs. Isaacs, Mr. Hughes (Federal Attorney-General), Senator Pearce (Minister for Defence), the Acting Premier (Mr. Holman), the Lord Mayor and Mrs. Taylor, Mr. Griffith (Minister for Works), Mr. Cann (Speaker of the Assembly), Mr. Eden (Minister for Mines), Mr. Trede (Assistant Minister for Agriculture), Mr. Beeby (Minister for Education), Sir James Fairfax and Miss Fairfax, Mr. J. O. Fairfax and Mrs. Fairfax, Mr. Flowers (Vice-President of the Executive Council), Captain and Mrs. Rolleston, Mrs. Wade, Senator M'Gregor (Vice-President of the Federal Executive Council), Captain Siemen (German cruiser Cormoran), Sir Francis Sutton and Miss Sutton.

Towards noon a long line of Australian naval cadets and men of the Naval Brigade was drawn up in double file west of the platform. Their band was in attendance, and also the bands of the Royal Australian Artillery and the police. At two minutes to 12 the bands struck up "God Save the King," and the principal actors in the scene, headed by Lord Dudley in military uniform, and followed by Lord Chelmsford, the naval and military commanders, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Holman, and other Ministers of State, and Mrs. Pearce, came through the files of naval troops and mounted the platform. Not a second was wasted in getting to the actual work of the ceremony. Officialdom for ones was scrupulously prompt. The affair was timed for noon, and at noon precisely it came off.

The Minister for Works stepped forward and, in the briefest speech he ever made, asked for silence while Mrs. Pearce performed the ceremony. The request was immediately complied with, and Mrs. Pearce then took her stand in front of the destroyer's bow. Her voice was clear and silvery. "I name thee Warrego. In time of danger may thy movement be swift." Simultaneously the ribbon was cut, and the wine splashed over the vessel.

For a full minute the Warrego refused to budge. But the arrangements were perfect in every detail. A hydraulic appliance had been placed in position to cope with any hitch, and its application within the minute started the destroyer on her glide to the water. She did it gracefully, and took the stream amid a tremendous shout of applause that was taken up the other side of the water. Even the gravest of those present joined in the shout. It was infectious. Enthusiasm was in the air. A band struck up, first "Rule Britannia," and then "God Save the King." It remained for the numerous craft on the river to do the rest. There was a fearful medley of shrieking whistles, which overcame the shouts of applause and the bands combined. It was a pandemonium of joy. The noisiest New Year's Eve the city ever knew paled approached anything like the noise which accompanied the launching of the first warship put together in Australia. It was a scene to be remembered by all who witnessed it. It will be recalled.

THE LUNCHEON.

INSPIRITING SPEECHES.

After the launching the guests sat down to luncheon in a large building some distance from the building slip. Between 800 and 900 sat down, the Acting Premier (Mr. Holman) being in the chair, and the Governor-General the guest of honour, with Mrs. Holman on his right. On either side of the chair were the Prime Minister and the Minister for Defence, and other Federal and State Ministers and their wives, and Vice-Admiral King-Hall. The following were among the principal political and official guests who accepted the invitations:—Mr. Andrew Fisher (Prime Minister) and Mrs. Fisher, Mr. W. M. Hughes (Attorney-General), Mr. J. Thomas (Postmaster-General) and Mrs. Thomas, Senator G. F. Pearce (Minister for Defence) and Mrs. Pearce, Senator M'Gregor (Vice-President of the Federal Executive Council) and Mrs. M'Gregor, Mr. Arthur Griffith (Minister for Works) and Mrs. Griffith, Mr. Beeby (Minister for Education) and Mrs. Beeby, Mr. A. Edden (Minister for Mines) and Mrs. Edden, Mr. F. Flowers (Acting Chief Secretary) and Mrs. Flowers, Mr. A. C. Carmichael (Acting State Treasurer) and Mrs. Carmichael, Vice-Admiral G. F. King-Hall, Flag-captain E. F. Bruen (H.M.S. Powerful), Flag-lieutenant S. W. S. Seton, Secretary E. A. Brunner and Mrs. Brunner, Captain J. P. Rolleston and Mrs. Rolleston, Commander R. A. Norton (H.M.S. Powerful), Commander R. W. Glennie (H.M.S. Sealark), Commander P. M. Warleigh (H.M.S. Prometheus), Commander J. D. Nares (H.M.S. Fantome) and Mrs. Nares, Commander G. F. Hyde, Lieutenant T. Biddlecombe, Lieutenant H. J. Feakes and Mrs. Feakes, Rear-admiral Creswell (Naval Director) and Mrs. Creswell, Captain C. J. Clare, C.M.G. (Naval Commandant), and Mrs. Clare, Captain F. Tickell, C.M.G., Captain J. T. Richardson and Mrs. Richardson, Commander F. R. C. Brownlow and Mrs. Brownlow, Staff-paymaster J. A. Ross and Mrs. Ross, Lieutenant H. O. N. Hixson and Mrs. Hixson, Lieutenant J. G. Fernley and Mrs. Fernley, Lieutenant R. S. Lambton and Mrs. Lambton, Lieutenant S. W. Spain and Mrs. Spain, Lieutenant C. H. Coggins and Mrs. Coggins, Staff-paymaster Mannisty, Brigadier-General J. M. Gordon (District Commandant) and Mrs. Gordon, Lieutenant-Colonel C. F. Bartlett (A.D.C.) and Mrs. Bartlett, Major C. L. Gregory and Mrs. Gregory, Major Wallace Brown and Mrs. Brown, Lieutenant-Colonel W. J. Clark, R.A.A., and Mrs. Clark, Captain Watts, R.A.A., Major G. F. Wilkinson, R.A.E., and Mrs. Wilkinson, Captain R. J. Harrison, R.A.E., and Mrs. Harrison, Lieutenant-Colonel G. L. Mullins, A.A.M.C., and Mrs. Mullins. There were in addition several of the High Court, Supreme Court, and District Court Judges, heads of the Federal and State departments, members of the Federal and State Parliaments, the Lord Mayor of Sydney (Alderman Taylor), suburban Mayors, and business and professional men in the acceptances.

After luncheon a number of speeches were made to a short toast list.

"We all know," said Mr. Holman, in proposing the Governor-General's health, "that opportunities of expressing our appreciation of the services of his Excellency in the position he holds are likely to be few between now and the moment of his departure from our shores. I think that departure is universally regretted throughout the Commonwealth. (Hear, hear.) In no part of the Commonwealth is it more regretted than in Sydney. His Excellency has no more devoted admirers of the universal tact and ability that has characterised his administration than are to be found gathered round these tables to-day." (Applause.)

No Governor-General, Mr. Holman continued, had taken greater pains, or put himself to greater sacrifices, in acquainting himself with the general life of the people than his Excellency. Lord Dudley had travelled vigorously about the Commonwealth, and had spared no pains to make himself acquainted with the factors that affected the welfare of the Australian people, and he (Mr. Holman) was sure that Australia would have in him a champion at home, if ever Australia entered the scene of political controversy. (Applause.) No man had done more to uphold the high traditions of his office. He asked the gathering to join in drinking in bumpers Lord Dudley's health. (Applause.)

The toast was drunk with acclamation.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S RESPONSE

Lord Dudley, who was received with loud applause, returned thanks for the cordial manner in which they had received the toast of his health, and for the kind and appreciative words that Mr. Holman had used in proposing the toast. "I am pleased," continued his Excellency, "to be here with you this afternoon on this most eventful occasion—an occasion on which we celebrate the launching of, I believe, the first vessel of war that has ever been put together upon Australian soil. (Applause.) It has been with extreme pleasure and interest that I have watched the progress and development of this idea of an Australian navy. (Cheers.) Personally I have never hesitated in my belief that if that policy is conducted in a wise, sensible, and broad-minded spirit it is the best policy both for the Empire and for Australia. (Applause.) Opinion in regard to this question has made great progress during the last two years, and the result of the Naval Conference held in London a year or two ago had, I think, a great effect upon public opinion. It is now generally recognised that there is a great deal to be said for those who advocate that the energies of the Commonwealth should be expended in the building and manning of their own ships rather than in a money contribution to the British section of the Imperial Navy." (Applause.)

TALL PROPOSITION

"At the same time," proceeded Lord Dudley, "there is nobody who does not recognise that in embarking upon this policy you are embarking upon what the Americans call a tall proposition. Admiral Henderson's report has come, I think, as a considerable surprise to a large section of the Australian people. They have recognised perhaps for the first time what it means to embark upon a navy of their own. They recognise that this means a considerable sacrifice for many years if they wish to really have a navy which will take its place without shame amongst the other ships of the Empire. (Cheers.)

"But Australia is a country in which great and successful sacrifices have been made for a century almost. Your forefathers who came to this country had a pretty stiff proposition before them, but by pluck and determination they pulled through, and they made Australia what it is to-day. (Cheers.)

"I am quite sure that a similar spirit exists amongst the Australians of to-day, and that they will be prepared to face this proposition, even though it may be a tall one, with the same determination and courage which distinguished their forefathers, and, if that is done, and if sensible actions are taken with regard to this policy, I am quite sure that in a few years it can never be said that Australia possesses a tinpot navy, but rather ships which are fit to take their place as a section, on which the Australian may look with pride, of the armed naval forces of the British Empire. (Cheers.) Upon you rests a great responsibility, and I for one have every confidence that you will discharge that responsibility with credit and honour." (Loud cheering.)

LORD CHELMSFORD ABSENT

The next toast was "The State Governor." Mr. Holman, when the applause which greeted the announcement had subsided, said that he was charged to say that Lord Chelmsford had been deeply regretful to be compelled to leave after the launching ceremony to attend a long-standing prior engagement.

THE AUSTRALIAN NAVY.

A bugle sounded, and when Orderly Carrick announced that the chairman would propose the toast of "The Australian Navy" enthusiastic applause broke out, which was long continued.

"I cannot but feel weighed down with the responsibility of giving expression to sentiments on an occasion like this," said Mr. Holman. "We all recognise that the Commonwealth of Australia has entered upon an entirely new era in its history to-day. The great experiment of endeavouring to equip and arm a navy of its own, which can hold its place without shame amongst the navies of the world, has been definitely entered upon, and the marvellous step of constructing and launching the first ship really put together within the confines of the Commonwealth has been undertaken to-day. I speak as one who rejoices—as I suppose we all do—for the complete success of its experience. (Applause.)

"As a member of the State Government I cannot resist a certain feeling of pride at the completely satisfactory manner in which the task of constructing the Warrego, and launching her, has been carried out by the officials by whom it has been done. (Applause.)

"When I look around upon this great assembly, representative as it is of all that makes up the public life of the Commonwealth—representing every department of public activity and every shade of public thought gathered together upon so unique an occasion as the present—I cannot but feel that Australia as a whole rejoices with us for the immense success which covers those who have taken part in the celebrations to-day. (Applause.)

ONLY FOUR MONTHS AGO.

"It may be news to some here to know that the keel of the boat which you saw so satisfactorily gliding down the rails that guided it to the bosom of its native element this morning was laid four short months ago. (Applause.)

"In November of last year there was nothing to be seen on Cockatoo Island which suggested that there was to be a Warrego belonging to this fleet. Early in December the plates were deposited on the slips, and between that day and this a substantial and satisfying hull has been built up by the workers here under the guidance and the talented supervision of the man whose name can only be mentioned with the greatest satisfaction that New South Wales and Australia has such an officer as Mr. Cutler. (Applause.)

WELL AND TRULY MADE.

"Not only has the work been exceptionally performed, but it has been honestly and faithfully performed, and every rivet that has been driven home has been sound and will be placed, carrying on it the marks of honest workmanship, guaranteeing the sailors that will occupy the ship in the future that whatever dangers they may have to fear from the elements or the attacks of enemies, they have none to fear from the treachery, or inadequacy, or carelessness of the workmen. (Applause.) We cannot protect our sailors from the possibilities of mischances, but we can at least secure to them that the ships they go out in to face the enemy shall be well and faithfully built, and that no dishonesty of construction is under them.

"So far as the workmanship of the Fitzroy Dock is concerned, I make bold to say that the ship is now staunch, tight, and strong; that she takes the water with everything that the honest workmanship can do to make her the substantial and solid construction that she appears; that no tricks of the dockyards have been exercised in her to pass for good workmanship on an easily-satisfied Government. In the Warrego we have what in every other case only necessary to protect the honour and credit of the people of Australia. (Cheers.)

MINISTER FOR DEFENCE.

"I feel sure," said the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce), "that we shall see the importance of this day better twenty-five years hence than we do to-day. It may seem a small thing the launch of that small warship, but it marks an epoch in Australian history which future historians will point to as a day upon which Australia definitely set out on a policy of national self-respect. (Applause.) Twelve months ago from last November the then Fisher Government placed an order with the contractors in the old country for the torpedo-boat destroyers now lying in the harbour to be built there, and the material for the third one to be built here. Those who read the accounts of the departure of the destroyers from British waters will have noticed that the departure of those vessels for Australia was hailed as an epoch in Imperial affairs. When they arrived here the people flocked to the ports to welcome them, and never was such enthusiasm displayed as marked the arrival of the Parramatta and the Yarra. Right around the coast their tour has been a triumphal march. Why is it? Is it because the Australian is a bloodthirsty, jingoistic individual? Not at all. There are no people on the earth who desire peace, or need peace, more than the Australian. We recognise that the only guarantee of peace is that we shall be able to prevent any nation from interfering with us. It is no spirit of jingoism what was meant was a navy, and he knew that it was to be paid for, and that he was prepared to pay for it." (Loud applause.)

THE BUILDERS.

Mr. W. M. Hughes, Federal Attorney-General, in proposing "The Builders," said that the launching of the Warrego showed them that here in Australia they possessed those industrial qualities which had made Great Britain great, and without which no nation could thrive. It showed that in Australia they had not degenerated, and a nation that was not able to hold its own industrially with the other nations must crumble to dust. Some of the Australian artificers had gone to the Old Land for instruction in the construction of those ships, and now had an opportunity of showing what Australia could do. Whatever the destiny of the Warrego might be, the building of such a vessel gave them the right to be called Britons, because they could exercise those qualities which made Great Britain the admiration and envy of the world. (Cheers.) He congratulated Mr. Cutler and his staff on the way they had built and launched the boat. (Cheers.)

THE BRITISH NAVY.

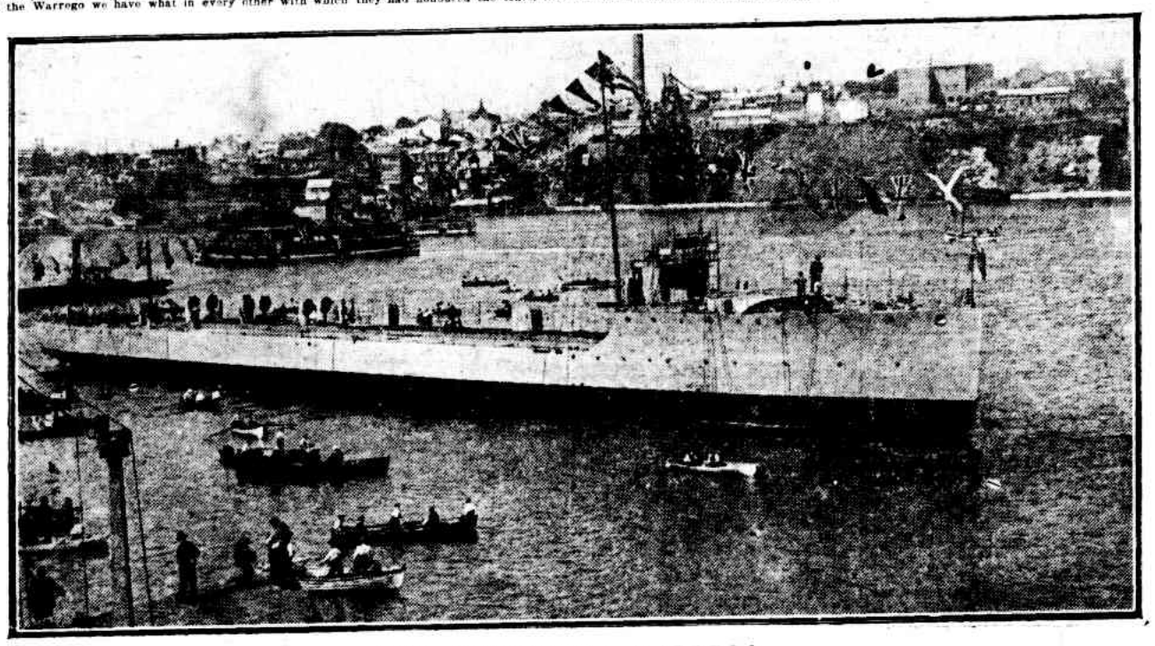

Mr. A. Griffith, Minister for Works, in responding to the toast, said that heretofore the energies of the dock had been directed to building a more peaceful class of vessel; but, in having such vessels as the Warrego built there, the people of Australia had at last come to realise that a country that was worth developing was also worth defending. (Applause.) They realised to-day that their defence was in the hands of the British navy. That day they had inaugurated a new system, and he agreed that the greatest benefit they could perform to the Empire was to adequately defend the portion of it in which they lived. (Applause.) The time had come when the whole burden of the protection of Australia ought not to rest on the shoulders of their brothers overseas, and they should endeavour to show that they were capable of bearing their part. That day's historical event was the commencement of greater things, and the reason that function was so important was that they were laying the foundation of the Australian section of the Imperial Navy. (Cheers.)

THE AUSTRALIAN SECTION.

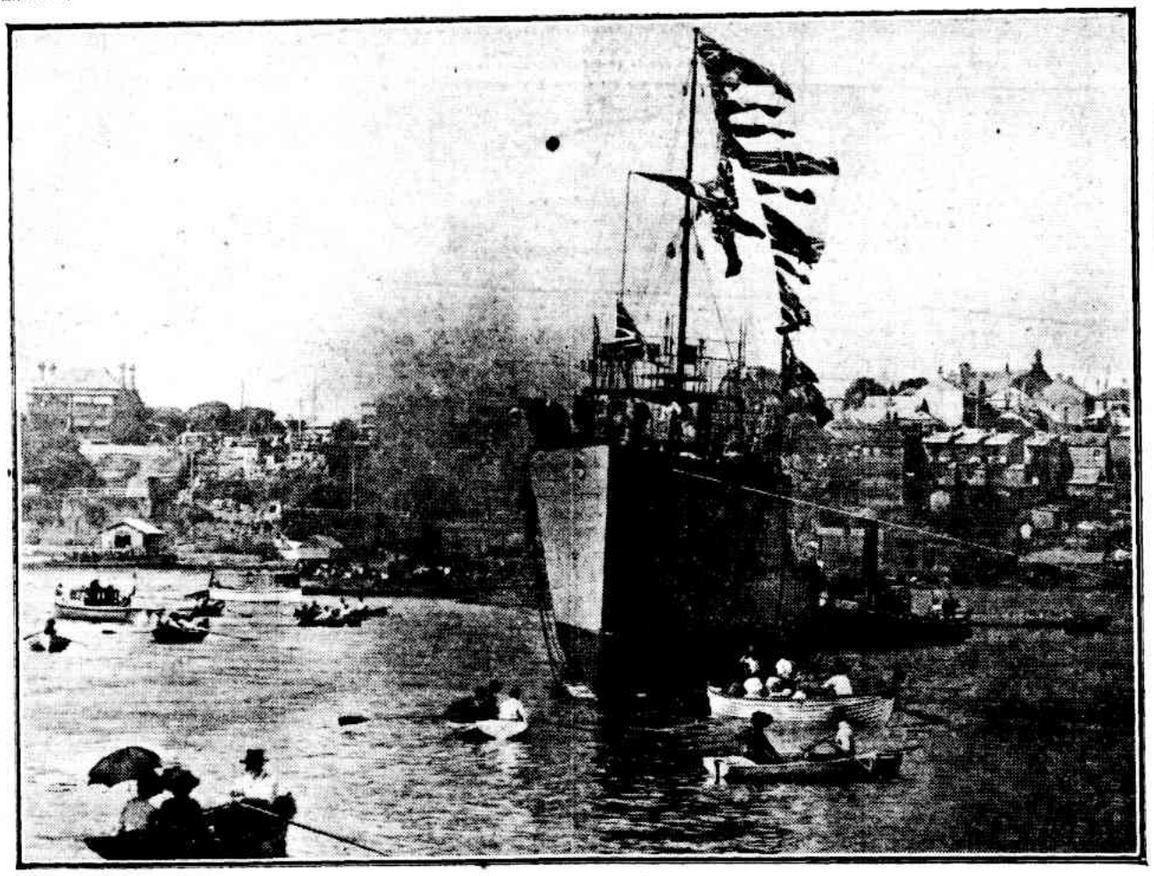

Lord Dudley, in proposing the toast of "The Chairman," said that he had listened with great interest and pleasure to the extremely powerful speech Mr. Holman had made in proposing the toast of the "Australian Navy." Might he say that he hoped it would never be? Might he say that he hoped it would never be regarded as an Australian navy pure and simple, but as the Australian section of the Imperial fleet. (Cheers.) The interests of the Empire were common to them all, and the interests of the people of the motherland were the same as the interests of the people of Australia. (Applause.) What they were doing to-day was building up a navy, not only to defend Australia as their own land, but Australia as a great and vital part of the British Empire. (Applause.) He hoped that that co-operation might be demonstrated, not only by well-known names they conferred upon the vessels of their fleet, but by the flag which flew over their fleet. (Cheers.) It was a question which would have to be discussed at the next naval conference, and he hoped that whatever design or emblem they had upon the Jack which they flew on the bows of their ships, they might at any rate have one common to the whole Imperial fleet, common to Australia, and British ships as well. (Loud cheering.)

Mr. Holman in responding said the matter of the day was one which we, as the premier port of Australia, had an especial interest in. Those who belonged to New South Wales had every right to be pleased and proud of an occasion such as this. He said this avowedly as a man of peace. His own hope was that the ship they had seen launched that day might never fire a shot or discharge a torpedo against a foe. He nevertheless recognised that the councils of the world were darkening with distrust and anxiety, and no man could tell from which quarter the little cloud might arise to-morrow and cover the whole of the sky. It behoved them as men of common sense to be prepared for emergencies. As a man of peace he still said, "Prepare for war." Not in any spirit of aggression or of jingoistic insolence, but in a spirit of determined self-reliance. "We have built a ship, and have built it honestly, and we're preparing the men who will man it in time to come; and we are, I hope, above all, preparing a spirit of contented patriotism which recognises what a privilege it is to live in this community and recognises how much we have to lose." (Applause.) The future of Australia lay, he believed, in greater co-operation between the States and the Federal Government. No man regretted more than he that it should have been hindered even for an instant by the misunderstanding of the last few months. He hoped it would all have been blown away, and that all the Governments would be able to unite in a single effort—the defence of the interests of the Australian people as a whole. (Applause.)

Mr. Fisher then called for three cheers for the Australian Navy, which were heartily given, and the guests then proceeded to the steamers leaving for Circular Quay.

THE DESTROYER WARREGO.

BOW VIEW OF THE WARREGO.

THE COMPLETED VESSEL.

ARMAMENT AND EQUIPMENT.

OIL FUEL AND WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

The Warrego is the third of three destroyers ordered by the Federal Government, the others being the Parramatta and the Yarra, now in Port Jackson. The contract was accepted in March, 1909, the work of constructing the Parramatta being entrusted to the Fairfield Engineering and Shipbuilding Company at Glasgow, and the Yarra to Denny Brothers, at Dumbarton. In view of the future construction of war vessels in Australia, arrangements were made for a number of Australian shipwrights to take part in the building, and thus gain valuable experience. The Parramatta was launched on February 9 of last year, and the Yarra left the slips two months later. The cost, including armaments, was £81,500 each.

The Warrego parts were prepared at a cost of £72,500, and despatched to the Fitzroy Dock at Cockatoo Island, in sections. The work of putting them together has occupied about four months, and as during that time there was a good deal of wet weather, the efforts of the Australian workmen have come in for very general praise.

The Warrego, like the sister destroyers, is of the latest improved type of the "River" class, superior in a number of respects, particularly in armament, to the "River" class destroyers now afloat in the British navy. Her length is 265ft.; beam (moulded), 14ft 9in; depth, 14ft 9in; draft, 8ft 9in. She is a vessel of 700 tons (or 100 tons more than the Garry and sister boats), and has a speed of 26 knots. There are three screws, driven by compound turbine engines of 9210 indicated horse-power, using only oil fuel, of which 150 tons will be carried. Her steaming radius at a rate of 14 knots is 2500 miles, but at 10 knots her radius is increased to more than 3000 miles.

The destroyer will carry a complement of 50 officers and men. The armament will consist of one 4in gun and three 12-pounder Q.J.F. guns. She has three deck torpedo tubes, and will carry 18in Mark VI. Royal Gun Factory torpedoes, and will be fitted with wireless telegraph apparatus.

AUSTRALIAN PROGRAMME.

THE PRESENT STATE OF AFFAIRS.

The launching of the Warrego takes the Australian naval programme a further stage.

At the Imperial Conference last year Australia agreed to provide a naval unit. This was to comprise a large armoured cruiser of the Indomitable type, three cruisers of the Bristol class, six destroyers, and three submarines. The total cost at the time was estimated at £3,696,000, including £2,600,000 for the Indomitable.

The launching of the Warrego disposes of three of the promised destroyers. The building of the other three is to be commenced as soon as arrangements can be made at Fitzroy Dock, together with that of one of the promised cruisers. It is anticipated that the destroyers will cost £80,000 or £90,000 each, and the cruiser, an improved Bristol, £450,000. In the building of these vessels it is proposed to use as much Australian material as possible.

The Indomitable, which will be one of the most formidable ships afloat, is now building in England.

AUSTRALIAN NATIVES' CONGRATULATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Mr. John Lemmon, M.L.A., chief president of the Australian Natives' Association in Victoria, sent the following message to Senator Pearce, Minister for Defence:—"Australian Natives' Association tenders heartiest congratulations upon completion and launching in Australian waters of the Warrego. May Australia's own defence scheme be early realised."

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

COMMISSION OF INQUIRY.

PRIME COST ITEMS.

The inquiry into several matters connected with the administration of the Public Works Department was resumed yesterday by Acting-Judge Hamilton. The matters inquired into included the selection, purchase, and payment for prime cost items in contracts for the erection, repair, or alteration of public buildings or other public works; the selection and purchase of and payment for supplies of plant, materials, or stores generally for the Department of Public Works; the methods which have been and are in use with respect to calling for or dealing with tenders for public works; the supervision of works carried out by the Department of Public Works, and the administration of the Department of Public Works by departmental officials in connection with any of the foregoing matters.

Mr. Armstrong appeared to represent the Minister for Works, and Mr. W. D. Loveridge, public accountant, is the Audit Department, was also present.

Mr. E. De Burgh, Chief Engineer for Harbours and Water Supply, explained the procedure adopted in his department to obtain stores. Witness's duties comprised the supervision of contracts let for specific public works—the carrying out of day labour undertakings, the maintenance and working of the dredging plant throughout the State and the Newcastle Government workshops. Prime cost items were unknown in engineering contracts. Whatever use the Stores, Supply, and Tender Board might be to other branches of the service, or whatever use it might be in checking the stationery and expenditure and supervising goods it was of no use to witness's department. "We require our own staff," he continued, "to deal with these matters expeditiously; we require specialists, and our requirements are urgent. We are spending a third of a million a year, and want things at once; therefore we cannot be content to send official communications to a board that only sits once or twice a week and knows nothing about the subject."

Mr. John M. Cameron, superintendent of plant and stores, Public Works Department, said his staff numbered about 18, and his duty was to order all plant and material for all branches of the Public Works Department. The Central Stores Board could be done away with, so far as his department was concerned, but the departmental board for the procuring of stores could not be done away with. His department had nothing to do with prime cost items, which were confined to the architect's and other departments, but principally to the Architect's Department.

Thomas Robert Steel, accountant in the Public Works Department, expressed the opinion that the system of checking p.c. items was not complete, as in the ordinary course of things the invoices were not receipted. For the purpose of providing proper checks, there should be as few p.c. items as possible.

Ross C. Dawson, clerk in the expenditure branch of the Department of Audit, produced final vouchers of 72 contracts. The total amounts of these contracts, from the year 1908-9 till the present time, was £156,237 7s 7d, and of this amount the sum of £10,597 6s 3d represented p.c. items, and £11,128 12s 10d other entries. Out of the 72, nine had no invoices attached to them at all.

George M'Crae, Principal Assistant Government Architect, said it was desirable that prime cost items should be reduced as much as possible. But there were cases where articles would have to be obtained on the prime cost principle. Wallpapers, chandeliers, door fittings, grates, etc., had to be selected, and could not be specified.

The inquiry was adjourned till next morning.

BIRTH AND DEATH RATES.

During last month there were 1524 births within the metropolitan area, the rate being the highest for the month of March for ten years. Deaths numbered 593, the mortality rate being the lowest for the month of March since 1907. The returns of the Board of Health show that 61 cases of typhoid fever, 200 of diphtheria, and 36 of scarlet fever were notified during the month.

During the quarter ended March 31 there were 4401 births, equivalent to a rate of 6.57 per thousand of population; and 1627 deaths, of 2.58 per thousand. The equivalent annual rates are 27.83 and 10.32 respectively. The birth rate is 12.6 per cent. and the death rate 3.6 per cent. above the corresponding quinquennial rates for the March quarter.

PLASTERERS AND FIBRE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your correspondent, Mr. Henry G. Day, in to-day's issue of the "Herald" has somewhat misread the judgment of the Arbitration Court. The judgment was not over-ruling the Court's award, as the Court had never considered the matter. The award, with the clause that the fixing of fibrous plaster was plasterers' work, was an award by the board, and it came before the Court on this occasion for the first time as to whether such clause was beyond the power of the board. The Court, after hearing much expert evidence for and against the contention that the word "plasterer" in the schedule to the Industrial Disputes Act included also fibrous plasterers, decided against the union. This judgment satisfactorily settles the matter that was clearly one of contention, and the road is now clear for the union to have the industry of fibrous plasterers included in the schedule to the Act and regulated by an award. As I acted for the Plasterers' Society in the matter, I am able to speak with authority, and, therefore, take the liberty of correcting a letter that might give a wrong impression.

I am, etc.,

NOTES.

Mrs. Griffin has had the hard luck to lose a much-valued little Yorkshire terrier, which had its neck broken by a young bulldog.

Mr. Robinson, of Summer Hill, lately had three of his fox-terriers poisoned by strychnine.

Mr. G. L. Weaver's Irish terrier, Roseville Pat, winner in the puppy class over six months last Saturday, was bred by Mrs. R. Ferguson, of Woollahra. This young dog comes from good stock, being by Ch. Rooley Lane Ambassador (imp.), ex a ch. Whitehorn (imp.) bitch.

Mr. Carling's collie, Roslyn Royal, gaily attired, went round the show ground last Saturday in the interests of the proposed Dogs' Home.

Mrs. Sturrock handed in at the parade on Saturday last a small portion of meat, which she had just picked up near the judging rings. Examination revealed a thin layer of corned beef tied with cotton, inside the meat was a capsule which contained the heads of about 50 wax matches. Obviously, some evil-minded person had dropped the bait with the object of poisoning a dog.

Among those present at the parade were Mrs. J. R. Wood, Messrs. W. L. Oakes, A. Kinnear, T. F. Thompson, W. Hamilton, and H. Moyse. Mr. Oakes, who was once actively identified with collies, was on Saturday interested in a helpie puppy, Casuarina Mickie, which was given to his wife by Miss Brenan, of Bowral.

Mr. R. Mason, who is well known as a breeder of Yorkshire terriers, has strayed from that variety into the bulldog ranks. He recently bought a good-looking bitch puppy by Lord Guibres ex Rosebank Clrica.

Concerning the "dead-heat" between the imported foxhounds Nobleman and Warwickshire Teaser, Mr. W. T. Osborne, who judged, writes:—"Nobleman has been seen in the ring looking a lot better than he was last Saturday, and he has at this time of the year lost his beautiful coat. The fanciers agreed to point-judging, and on the latest English standard, Nobleman won over Teaser in several points. But Teaser was seen as, perhaps, he will never be seen again in the ring, and scored in coat and condition. Thus, when it came to adding up the points, I made the two hounds score the same total."

The sympathy of fanciers will be extended to Mr. D. Munro, of the Silky and Yorkshire Club, whose daughter died recently, also to Mr. F. M'William (president of the Bulldog Club), whose sister, the wife of the Rev. Walker Taylor, died at Orange yesterday.

LIVERPOOL SHOW.

About 50 dogs came out at Liverpool Show last week, and among them were several up to metropolitan form. Douglas and Williams won in greyhound dogs, with a brindle of racy outline, but poor in condition. Child's Nigger, second, is a plain sort. Gibraltar, third, an extra big dog on the coarse side. Carling's Pulletapu Adamant, well-known in Sydney, had an easy win in collie dogs, so did his Poplar Princess in bitches. Beagle dogs (6) were a pretty good lot; Miss Amy Curtis won easily with Prince Zetland. Dexter being second. Half a dozen bitches were all bad mouthed, five of them are almost toothless, and the winner, Thorley's beagle, is undershot. Fox terriers were not impressive. J. Melbourne won with a fair Irish terrier, Campsie Jack, and also with a good sort, Norah O'Connor in bitches. Cattle dogs were passable, though some of them were woefully out of coat. The winning kelpie dog, Wm. Wylie's Ginger, is a red with long white stockings. Dickson won in other breeds with a brace of deerhounds. For the special for best dog, Moncrieff Lord Macquarie (deerhound), Coal Queen (barb), Norah O'Connor (Irish), Ranji (pointer), Prince Zetland (beagle), P. Adamant (collie), and the winning greyhound were brought out. The judge's award was in favour of Miss Curtis's Prince Zetland, which was shown in perfect condition.

CLUB MEETINGS.

The management of the Bulldog Club of New South Wales met last Wednesday at the Hotel Arcadia. Mr. F. M'William (president) was chairman. Other present were Dr. Furlonger, Messrs. Blythe, Coutts, Hosking, Street (hon. secretary), Stringer, and Wilkins. The programme for the coming year was fully discussed amongst the members. It was decided to hold a social reunion of members and their friends at the A.B.C. Cafe at the end of this month.

The monthly meeting of the Sydney Silky and Yorkshire Terrier Club was held last Thursday at the Kennel Club room. Mr. R. Cookson presided, and others present were Messrs. Alexander, Douglass, Jones, Hutchinson, Mason, Mahood, Munro, Poole, Thomas, and Wilson (hon. secretary). A letter was received from the Ladies' Kennel Club, notifying the names of judges for club breeds at the parade. A discussion arose as to members exhibiting. Ultimately it was decided that any member who wished to show could do so. Mr. Johnson wrote saying that though he could not at present take an active interest in the club he would remain a member. A sub-committee was appointed to revise the rules. The date of the annual meeting was fixed for July 27. At the request of the members Mr. Poole agreed to give a general address on the club breeds at the next meeting.

The Fox Terrier Club met last Wednesday at the Custom-house Hotel. Mr. H. Moyse was chairman, and Messrs. Crane, Jones, Maude, Mossong, Musgrave (hon. secretary), Roberts, Stallwood, Robinson, Tester, and Wilson (hon. treasurer) also attended. Several letters were read from gentlemen accepting the position of club judges. A letter was received from Newcastle K.C. re novice dog points at the last show of that club. Messrs. R. G. Brereton, W. L. Oakes, and T. F. Thompson were elected members of the club. It was agreed that at the L.K.C. parade the issue of a purple ribbon should be equivalent to a challenge certificate. The charge for copy of a registered pedigree was fixed at 1s.

L.K.C. PARADE.

Mrs. Griffin has been congratulated on all sides for her successful management of the Ladies' Kennel Club parade. The awards in most cases were fairly satisfactory, but in one or two of the rings it was not easy to follow some of the verdicts. In Monday's "Herald" most of the classes were noticed. Of the other breeds Mrs. Dallas won with her Dachshunds, Ch. Lady Ida, Wallace of Banff, and Sir Roger. C. Keighery headed the greyhounds with Swanheart and Smartie. Native Rose again scored for L. Heinisch in setters.

Attractive exhibits were the "toy" varieties. Miss Bracegirdle's imported Pekingese Llama is a beautiful specimen. Yorkshires were also a nice collection; but some of the puppies were much too young for the judging ring. Among the winners were J. Poole's Kingfike and Goldilip, Miss Mitchell's Poplar Joan and Darby, A. Hely's Silver Dot and Silver Trixie, and H. R. Wilson's Little King. C. E. Burton had a good afternoon with his "Poms," winning with Hazelbush, Little Pippin, H. Tommy, and H. Sable Queen. Mrs. Riddle's white dog is a handsome little animal. Mrs. Kitchen's chocolate is also a charming specimen of a popular variety. This lady won in several classes. In New Zealand and Queensland black pugs are much in request, but in Sydney they are seldom seen. On Saturday Mrs. Shepherd showed one of these dogs, which was much admired. Fawn pugs represented half a dozen lady exhibitors. Among the prize-winners were Miss Walker's Enmore Biddy, Mrs. Brook's Billie, Mrs. Parkes' Prince Arthur of Etruria, Mrs. Meeks' Bobs, Mrs. Shepherds' Pilot and Jack.

Silky terriers were few. L. Smith won with the puppy Union Belle. Mrs. Pring with champion Bob, and J. Donohue with Camperdown Sting. Cocker spaniel prize ribbons went to Miss Keighery's Shiela, Mrs. A. J. Usher's Gipsy, and F. Bridgement's King Dibi. In the Scottish terrier classes J. Mackenzie won with Torridon Blossom, and T. Kate M'Ghee, S. S. Meyer with Craigenvar Jock and Jack. J. Cosgrove did well with Australian terriers, scoring with Hard to Beat and Tibby. L. Smith won with Union Trixie. Miss E. Newton won in the two poodle classes with Prince Robert and Beauty. Mrs. Bodman's Maltese terrier Valetta was alone.

The prizes in the children's class went to Miss Osborne's foxhound puppies. In the ladies' open class Lord Bulla was alone. In the lady members' class Mrs. Cunningham's bulldog Rosebank Alarie beat three opponents. In the male members' class H. F. Carling's collie Roslyn Royal also won against three others.

The judging started rather late, and on another occasion it would be as well to have the judging rings considerably larger.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.

EQUITY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice A. H. Simpson, Chief Judge in Equity.)

A WIDOW'S CLAIM.

Garrett v L'Estrange.

Mr. Russell and Mr. Nicholas, instructed by Messrs. Sullivan and M'Dermott, of Lismore (by their agents, Messrs. M'Evilly and M'Evilly), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Maughan, instructed by Messrs. Bowman and Mackenzie, for the defendant. The plaintiff, Isabella Garrett, widow of the late Joseph Garrett, of Dunoon, near Lismore, farmer, asked for a declaration that a certain additional conditional purchase taken up by testator, is her property subject only to a charge on mortgage by the Bank of New South Wales; and that defendant, Guy Stuart L'Estrange, medical practitioner, of Brisbane, executor of the will of Joseph Garrett, be directed to convey the property to her subject to the mortgage already mentioned. Plaintiff asked alternatively that it might be declared that the lands of the testator were subject to a charge in her favour, and she also prayed for the usual reference to the master. Her case was that in February, 1900, she was married to Joseph Garrett, of Dunoon, since deceased. At the time of the marriage she was in possession of a sum of £35, and her husband was the holder of a conditional purchase of 81 acres, on which they lived. Soon after the marriage plaintiff gave £30 to her husband for the purpose of enabling him to select and improve an additional conditional purchase in her behalf. In May, 1900, testator selected an additional conditional purchase of 62 acres, near the original purchase. In the early part of 1907 plaintiff and her husband separated, and during his life time Garrett mortgaged both parcels of land to the Bank of New South Wales. He died at Brisbane on February 7, 1910, leaving the plaintiff by his will only the sum of 1s. She had applied to the executor in respect of her claim, but without effect, and she therefore asked for the declaration already mentioned. It was stated by counsel that the land in question was now worth £1500.

Defendant, in his statement of defence, said he had already been ready and willing to admit any just claim or demand by plaintiff on satisfactory proof of such claim or demand, but plaintiff had failed to furnish him with such proof, although requested to do so. The first claim made by the plaintiff upon the said Joseph Garrett in respect of moneys alleged by her to have been advanced by her to testator to enable him to take up the land, was made in the month of June, 1907, and since then plaintiff had lain by and taken no step to enforce her claim against testator or the land. He therefore submitted that she was barred by her laches and acquiescence from obtaining relief in the suit. In the month of August, 1907, plaintiff agreed to and did relinquish and abandon any claim that she had against testator. Defendant submitted further that the Court had no jurisdiction to order him to sever the additional conditional purchase from the conditional purchase, and said he was always ready and willing to pay plaintiff the sum of £34 10s, being the sum alleged by the plaintiff to have been given by her to Joseph Garrett, with interest thereon. Defendant also contended that the alleged agreement between plaintiff and her husband, not being in writing, was barred by the provisions of the Statute of Frauds.

The case stands part heard.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

MOTION TO VARY MASTER'S CERTIFICATE.

M'Laughlin v City Bank.

Mr. Loxton, K.C., Mr. Watt, and Mr. Clive Teece, instructed by Messrs. John M'Laughlin and Son, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Langer Owen, K.C., and Mr. Mann, instructed by Messrs. Leibius and Black, for the City Bank. These were cross-summonses for the purpose of having the certificate of the Master in Equity varied in certain particulars in connection with an inquiry ordered by the High Court, bearing upon a dispute between plaintiff and the defendant bank, as to the liability of the former for certain payments. The case for both sides has already been stated.

Argument having concluded, judgment was reserved.

APPOINTMENT OF LIQUIDATOR.

Australian Joint Stock Bank and the Companies Act.

Mr. Murray Prior, instructed by Messrs. Counsel mentioned that the only assets of the Australian Joint Stock Bank were in Victoria.

DISPUTE BETWEEN SALVORS.

Somerset v Anderson.

Mr. Watt, instructed by Messrs. Sullivan Brothers, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Mr. Claude Manning, for the defendant. This was an action brought by John Bruce Somerset against Peter Anderson, to recover the sum of £59 19s 8d, being balance of moneys alleged by plaintiff to be due to him under an agreement between the parties. The case for the plaintiff was that by an agreement dated July, 1909, he and defendant agreed with one Nelson, who was part owner of a small steamer called the Victory, that Anderson was to buy out all but Nelson's share in the vessel, and that the three were to enter upon salvage operations. Nelson was to bring in his quarter interest in the steamer, Anderson was to contribute his three-quarter share in the vessel, and do the diving work in connection with the salvage of the remains of wrecks, and Somerset was to bring into the venture the wreck of the steamer Orizaba, then lying on the coast of Western Australia, and which he had purchased for £175. He was also to give his labour in salvage work. It was further arranged that they were to deal with any other wrecks lying on the coast while they were en route to the Orizaba, and the per centage of profit which each was to receive was apportioned. The agreement was subsequently altered, and Nelson received £100, and dropped out. After operations at the wreck of the Orizaba had been completed, a dispute arose on the settlement of account between plaintiff and defendant, which resulted in the present action. It was mentioned in the course of the case that after Anderson had finished with the wreck of the Orizaba he was engaged in salving operations at the scene of the wreck of the Dunbar.

The defence was never indebted, and that plaintiff was indebted to defendant in the sum of £77 0s 4d.

The case stands part heard.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Acting Justice Ferguson and a jury.)

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

A TRAM COLLISION.

William Ernest Sawyer, a young man, was indicted on a charge of having, on December 22, 1910, feloniously slain William Wright, at Sydney.

Accused, who entered a plea of not guilty, was defended by Mr. Leslie Gannon.

In support of the case for the Crown, it was stated that accused, who was employed as a tram-driver, failed to exercise proper care when driving his vehicle. The deceased was a cab-driver, and was about 60 years of age. On December 3 Sawyer was driving his tram in Pitt-street, towards the Central Railway Station, and deceased was going in the opposite direction when the collision occurred. When near Park-street, at a spot where the street was being excavated, the tram was travelling at about 10 or 12 miles an hour. The horse appeared to shy, and deceased endeavoured to avoid the tram line. He called out to the tram-driver, but the latter did not pull the tram up. The result was that the tram caught one of the wheels of the cab, and Wright was thrown from the box, sustaining injuries to the head, from which he died at Sydney Hospital on December 22.

It was further stated that after the accident experiments were carried out, and the cars were run at a speed of from 11 to 12 miles an hour over the track. The result of the first test showed that the car could be pulled up in about 18 paces, and in the second test the car was stopped within that distance. It was contended by the Crown that these tests went to show that the accident could have been avoided if the driver of the tram had been keeping a lookout. It was possible that the accused might have lost his head at the time.

Accused gave evidence in defence. He denied that he had at any time failed to exercise proper care and necessary precaution. He was a tram conductor and casual driver. Before deceased started to come round the excavations, witness saw him, and kept the gong going. When within a short distance of the cab, Wright held up his hand and called out. The emergency brakes were then applied, but the tram struck the cab. The tram had been previously slowed down.

The jury, after a retirement of an hour and a quarter, returned into Court with a verdict of not guilty. The foreman added that some of the jury wished him to state that in their opinion sufficient care had not been exercised, but that there was no culpable negligence.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray and juries.)

Mr. C. A. White, Crown Prosecutor.

ALLEGED STEALING.

Walter Shannon entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of having, on February 25 last, stolen 25 yards of silk and three yards of panama cloth, the property of William Henry Duffy.

The case for the Crown set out that accused was employed as a canvasser by W. H. Duffy, who carried on business as a dyer at Sydney. It appeared that Shannon, at the termination of his engagement, went to the shop and told one of the employees that Mr. Duffy had authorised him to obtain the articles. Subsequently one of the pieces of cloth and a pawn ticket were found at accused's house.

Accused gave evidence for the defence. He stated that the goods were obtained by him as samples. After leaving the shop on February 25 he went to Mr. Ramaciotti's place, where he was to be employed. On his way he delivered a piece of silk at Messrs. Waters's. He was to commence work in his new employment on the following Monday morning. After making arrangements about his new duties he found it was too late to deliver the remainder of the samples, so took them home with him. He fully intended to return them some time during the next week, or at the earliest opportunity. He found he could not return all the samples. Being constantly employed he was too busy to find time to go back to his old employer with the goods. He knew nothing whatever about the pawn ticket.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty. The prisoner was remanded for sentence.

POLICE COURTS.

ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCES.

Richard Raymond, or Probert, 20, was charged at the Water Police Court on Tuesday, before Mr. Love, S.M., with having, on March 22 last, obtained from Gowing Bros., partly by means of a false pretence, and partly by means of a false promise, goods to the value of 15s, the property of the firm. He was also charged with having, on March 22 last, attempted to obtain from Gowing Bros. goods to the value of £15, partly by means of a false pretence, and partly by means of a false promise. Constable Nugent said that when questioned accused admitted to him that he had told Gowing Bros. that his father had an office in the Union Bank-chambers, although it was not true, and that he had left a £20-note on his father's table at the Union Bank-chambers. He also admitted getting the pair of shoes, and that he left the premises of Gowing Bros. with the shoes, pretending that he was going to get the £20-note. He said he had selected £15 worth of other goods on the same pretence. When charged accused said that the charge was true, and as he could not get work, and wanted the clothes, he acted as he did. Evidence was also given by George Edward Thomas Bateman, a salesman of the prosecuting firm, to the effect that accused selected goods to the value of about £16, and after a fruitless search in his pockets, he informed the salesman that he had left a £20-note—which he thought was in his pocket—at his father's office. Accused went away, wearing the shoes and a shirt he had selected, promising to return in half an hour, but he failed to do so. The accused was allowed to leave on the strength of his statement, which was believed at the time to be true. Accused, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial. Bail was allowed—self in £80, and one surety in the like amount.

THE PARRAMATTA HUNDRED.

At the Water Summons Court on Tuesday, before Mr. W. Clarke, S.M., Ephraim Ward was proceeded against by Sub-Inspector Spence for having, on March 25 last, contravened the Harbour Trust regulations by blocking the course of the scullers competing in the "Parramatta Hundred," rowed on the Parramatta River. The race was specially sanctioned by the Harbour Trust, and the oil launch Warella, in charge of the defendant, occupied a position on the course set apart for the race. While the race was in progress defendant took his launch into the fairway, and obstructed the scullers, one of whom had to stop, while another was compelled to row round him. Defendant, who pleaded guilty, was fined £5, with costs, or in default one month's imprisonment.

EXPENSIVE JAM.

At the Water Police Court on Tuesday, before Mr. Love, S.M., George Paggon, 34, was charged with having, on March 31 last, stolen three tins of jam from Huddart, Parker's wharf, Margaret-street, the property of Huddart Parker Proprietary, Ltd. According to the evidence for the prosecution, accused was seen by Special Constable Brougey leaving the wharf with a waggon, and from something he was told Brougey stopped accused, and asked him to lift the lid of the seat box. Accused declined to do so, and whipped up his horses. Later one tin of jam was found in accused's cart. It was stated that £55 had been paid during the past two weeks by the company on account of these petty thefts, as compensation to owners. Accused, who pleaded guilty, was fined £10, or in default two months' imprisonment with hard labour.

CHAPTER XXVII.

"A LIFE FOR A LIFE."

When David raced northwards in his motor car twelve months previously, feeling that the avenger of blood was at his heels, he had only one desire, and that was to escape the consequences of his action. That he had killed Geoff Lincoln he had no doubt, and the penalty of murder was death. The thought of it sent cold shivers down his spine. He had always been a coward, but he had never felt so panic-stricken before.

He never quite knew how he reached Croston. He was the greater part of two nights and a day on the road, but the day he spent in bed at a wayside inn. He was afraid to venture abroad except in the darkness.

When he reached his home he was in a state of collapse, and went to bed at once. He told his mother that he had been touring in Scotland, that he had tired himself out, and that he had come so near a nasty accident just outside Croston that his nerves were completely upset. She wanted to send for the doctor at once, but he would not hear of it.

"Don't be silly, mother," he said half angrily. "I'll be as right as rain by to-morrow."

He did not venture out of the house, however, for a whole week, nor had he the courage to look at a newspaper. For the most part he sat before the fire smoking.

His mother grew more and more anxious. She had never seen him in this mood before. His reticence, his shrinking from company, his desire to remain in the house, seemed to her uncanny. He had always been so restless, so eager to be out of doors, so contemptuous of Croston that this passion for home struck her with a curious sense of foreboding.

"I can't think what ails thee, David," she said to him one morning when he had been at home a week. "I wish thou'd let me send for th' doctor."

"Hold thy gab, mother," he snapped. "I want no doctor. The near squeak I got unnerved me a bit, that's all. I shall go out again when I'm in the mood."

"I wish thou'd give up motoring," she said a little anxiously. "I'm always narvous when thou'rt away."

"Perhaps I shall give it up," he answered reflectively. "I own it's getting a bit stale."

"And thou'lt settle down to wark?" she questioned. "The mill's need of thee, lad. Things have never gone reet sin' thy feyther died. I'm worried aboon a bit, I can tell thee."

"Why, what's the matter with Duerden?"

"Oh, Steve is all reet in his way, but he ain't got the head o' thy feyther. He seems fair moithered at times."

"Well, I can't help him. I know no more about running a cotton mill than I do about flying; besides, I'm off again in a few days."

"Why, thou said just now——"

"I'm not going motoring again just yet," he interrupted; "but do you think I'll spend the winter in Croston?"

"Thou might do worse, David," she answered pathetically. "Why not go down to the mill and look into th' accounts. Thou'rt a scholar; and what's the good o' all thy larnin' if thou don't turn it to some use. Steve, I fear, has very little head for business. Weaving stuff is one thing, but selling it is quite another, and th' market is glutted just now."

"Well, it can remain glutted as far as I am concerned," he growled.

"That's fool's talk," she answered, the colour rising to her cheeks. "All our money is locked up in the mill, and if owt goes wrong there, where shall we be?"

"While the mill stands and is running full time, we are all right," he said with a poor attempt at a laugh; "and if it gets burned down—why, we'll get the insurance."

"David, with all thy larnin' thou'rt a fool," she snapped. "What's the use of waiving stuff if we can't sell it, or have to sell it at a loss? Besides, the new mills with the latest machinery are just squeezing us out."

"It's Steve Duerden's place to keep the plant—I believe plant is the right word—up to date. I'll tell him so when I see him," and he laughed again.

She turned away with a gesture of impatience. "If thou only wert like thy feyther," she muttered, and she closed the door behind her.

David's interview with Duerden was more puzzling than reassuring. "The cotton trade was undoubtedly in a bad way, and during the last three or four months stocks had accumulated heavily. If the market took a turn—which it might do any day—they would come out all right. Futures were unsteady, and manufacturers were holding back. The 'bears' were at their old game, and nobody could say exactly how the thing would turn. There was talk of a corner in next year's crop, but the last man who tried his hand at that came a cropper."

David listened to all this with wide-open eyes and a face devoid of expression. He scarcely understood a word of it. Things might be all right, but he was by no means sure.

"Well, Steve," he said, "I'm off again directly. My only advice to you is to keep the plant up to date."

Steve looked at his employer, but did not reply. He thought a good deal, however.

By Christmas David was in Monte Carlo. He had an idea that he would be safer out of England than in it. The fear that the secret of Geoff Lincoln's death might be discovered still haunted him. The old saying, "Murder will out," drummed in his brain unceasingly. Every now and then he got an attack of nerves, and during these attacks he would shut himself up in his bedroom and drink brandy and water till he could scarcely see. When he got a little better he would rush off to the Casino and try to forget himself in the excitement of roulette or rouge et noir.

As the winter wore away his courage increased considerably. He began to read the newspapers again, and to take more interest in the outside world. He argued that by this time the whole affair had passed out of the people's minds, and that it was quite unlikely that his share in the tragedy would ever be discovered.

Dark nights and days, however, still followed him. No human being might know of his guilt but God knew, and he himself knew, and while he had a brain to think he would never be able to escape the penalty. It was curious how persistently the teaching of his childhood followed him. If he could only forget he might still be happy. He wished a thousand times that he had been born a heathen instead of a so-called Christian. It was maddening to be brought constantly to book by a too retentive memory or a too sensitive conscience.

In the early spring he found his way back to Paris, where again he tried to forget himself in a round of vicious pleasure. That he was squandering both health and fortune he knew very well. Of the latter fact he was constantly reminded by his banker, and occasionally by Steve Duerden.

Early in May he found himself stranded. The bank refused to advance another penny. It was doubtful if the assets of Abel Wiggs and Son were sufficient to meet their liabilities. His mother and Duerden wrote urging him to return. He had to pawn his watch to pay for his railway ticket. He arrived in Croston to discover that the bank had foreclosed, and that his mother was lying dangerously ill with a heart attack.

A few days later Mrs. Wiggs breathed her last. "I am glad to go, David," she said to him earlier in the day. "I shall escape dying in th' workhouse. I couldn't ha' stood that after living i' Stonehurst. Aye, but we were proud when your feyther built this place. Not that we've ever been happy here. It's been too lonely and too grand. . . An', David, trying to make thee a gentleman has been a great mistake. If we'd brought thee up to th' mill things might ha' been different. Ah, weel, we did it for the best, an' I'm not goin' to blame thee for not bein' able to stomach Croston after hobnobbing with the swells at Oxford. The fault was ours. Think kindly of your feyther and me, David. We dod for the best."

David hid his face for shame, and was unable to speak. Her very kindness cut his heart like a knife. Her pity humiliated him beyond endurance. For him they had toiled and schemed and suffered—and this was the end. He had wasted the fortune his father had earned, and brought his mother broken-hearted to the grave.

It was God's judgment, he believed. He had escaped the judgment of men, but he could not escape the judgment of God.

From that day he lost hope. If he could only make atonement for the death of Geoff Lincoln there might still be a chance for him; but no atonement was possible; dead men could not be brought to life again. The judgment of man might pass him by—might never find him; but the judgment of God was sure.

This conviction grew upon him insensibly and helped to destroy what little strength of will he still possessed. What was the use of fighting against fate, or of attempting to ward off disaster. Nemesis was on his track, crying, "A life for a life," and he would have to pay the penalty to the last drop of his blood.

He left Croston in late summer and found his way to Manchester. He had not the courage to remain in his native place and make a fresh start. He knew that people despised him, and he did not wonder.

There were a few people who blamed Steve Duerden for mismanaging the concern. Others who blamed Abel Wiggs for making a fool of his son by sending him to Oxford; but the majority blamed David for wasting his substance in riotous living. It was no doubt true that the cotton trade had been depressed for a year or two, but there was no reason in the world why Abel Wiggs and Son should have gone to smash—and such a smash. By the time the bank had realised on the securities it held and met the overdraft there was very little left for the other creditors. When David left Croston he did not possess five pounds in the world.

From Manchester he drifted to Liverpool, and ultimately to London, working his way thither in a cargo steamer. In London one of the wholesale houses that used to do business with his father found him employment as a porter, but in a fortnight he was adrift again, though why he was dismissed he pretended not to know. He was not surprised, however, and uttered no complaint; it was another evidence of the unrelenting fate that tirelessly dogged his steps. He was bound to go under sooner or later. He had killed a man, and God's justice would not let him escape.

When Geoff caught a glimpse of him that dreary November evening he had been a whole day without food. He had pawned all his clothes except what he stood up in, and those were getting sadly the worse for wear, and at the present moment were soaked with the pitiless rain.

He was in a strangely acquiescent mood. The only question that occupied his thoughts was whether he should play into the hands of Fate and put an end to his life, or whether he should wait for Fate to do its worst. That there was no escape for him he was quite sure. "A life for a life" rang in his ears constantly. He heard it in the roar of traffic; heard it in the tramp of feet; heard it in the tooting of the motor-cars.

He did not complain. He had got so low down that nothing troubled him very much; had suffered so much during the past year that a pang more or less did not count. The old days when he was an undergrad, and did the swell with so much bounce, seemed so remote that they might have belonged to a previous state of existence. He almost forgot that he had once been rich. Every faculty had become dull and almost inert. The only thing that stood out vividly and seemed to grow more and more vivid with the wasting of his life was that journey from Towley to Brandon, when he ran down Geoff Lincoln and left him dead by the wayside. That was the sin that blasted every prospect, and from the penalty of which there was no escape.

OVERCROWDING FERRY STEAMERS.

At Monday night's meeting of the Mosman Progress Association a letter was received from the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., in reply to a request of the association for a 10 minutes' service during the busy hours of the morning and evening, so as to obviate the inconvenience caused to travellers by overcrowding. The company stated that, in view of the fact that the Cremorne service would be started in a few months' time, it was considered that the demand was not justified, it being the opinion of the company that the present service was more than was required to cope with the traffic. The congestion would be relieved considerably when the Cremorne service was opened.

During the discussion which followed it was pointed out that daily hundreds of people had to stand owing to the overcrowding, and it was denounced as scandalous that people paying the company for season tickets should not be provided with proper accommodation. It was ultimately decided to renew the application, and ask for a 10 minutes' service between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. and 6 p.m.

A blackbird which last year built a nest on a mantelpiece in the living-room of a house at Dudbridge has returned, made a nest in the same spot as before—between a clock and a vase holding paper spills—and laid four eggs.

HAIR CAME OUT IN COMBFULS.

"I am pleased to say my little girl's head is completely cured after using one box of Cuticura Ointment, and also washing her head with Cuticura Soap. You would like to know about the case, I am sure.

"It started first by her hair coming out in combfuls, leaving a spot about the size of a shilling. The skin looked raised and crusted, and irritated her very much. Naturally I became very anxious when I saw eight different bare patches on her head, I was afraid she was going to lose all her hair. I tried two well-advertised remedies, and they did no good, so I took her to a skin hospital. The doctor told me it was ringworm, and to keep her from school, which I did. I attended the hospital with her for seven weeks. I used two large boxes of ointment which they prescribed on her head every week, and she had to wear a black calico cap. Her poor little face became swollen and red wherever the ointment touched it.

"One day I sent for a box of Cuticura Ointment. After thoroughly cleansing her head of all the old ointment, I started in with the Cuticura. The second dressing with it seemed to take the irritation away, and soon we saw an improvement. Before I had quite finished the box of Cuticura Ointment, her head was quite clear, and the hair growing over the bald spots. Now her hair has grown beautiful and long, with nothing but the Cuticura Ointment and the Cuticura Soap, with which I wash it." (Signed), Mrs. Noon, 3 Grey Rock-street, West Derby-road, Liverpool, England, May 28, 1910. The Cuticura Remedies afford the most economical treatment for the skin, scalp, and hair from infancy to age. A tablet of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. Send to R. Towns and Co., Sydney, N.S.W., for the latest 32-page book on skin troubles, and a liberal trial package of Cuticura Ointment.—Advt.

BUSH BOOK CLUB.

The annual meeting of members of the Bush Book Club was held in the Town Hall yesterday, his Excellency Lord Chelmsford presided.

The annual report said the Bush Book Club came into existence on September 30, 1909. The great event of the year was the fete held at Greenoakes, on September 14 last, when more than £300 was cleared. Out of regard for Lady Poore, the club's first president, and the great debt it owed to the Admiral, the club had adopted as its badge a vice-admiral's flag, with the club's initials in one corner. They have in hand about 2000 books, countless magazines and papers, and applications for books come in constantly from country centres. There were now 89 country branches, and the committee continually formed new centres. The secretary received most encouraging and grateful letters from the local librarians, who spoke warmly of the good work which is being accomplished, and now much the readers appreciated the work of the club. Among the isolated places supplied with books were Barringun and Aloxia (both beyond Bourke), the Ission Station, Tuncurry, Booligal, Coolamon, Artesia, Bucca Creek, and Cow Creek.

The hon. treasurer's report said the credit balance amounted to £254 18s 9d.

His Excellency said he thought they were not altogether fortunate in the day they had chosen for the meeting, from the point of view of advertisement. The papers of the next day would probably be full of the reporting of the launching of the Warrego. He might say for himself that he had foregone the pleasures and possibilities of a very excellent menu, probably not exhausted at that moment, in order that he might attend their meeting. (Applause.) His Excellency congratulated the club on its operations. Their work was similar to the work done by the Government in sending books to the local schools of arts, but the book club went a bit further out into the bush. Book readers received many hours of pleasure from their books, and surely it was one of the kindest things they could do if they attempted to supply those pleasures to others less fortunate. He had travelled many thousands of miles in the country districts, and he and Lady Chelmsford had made many inquiries about the Book Club. They had generally found complete ignorance on the subject, but he thought such people only wanted to be told of the club to take it up. He quite understood that newspapers were not philanthropic institutions, but there were many cases in which newspapers were most generous when called on to help worthy objects, and he believed the country press would help in advertising the Book Club. If the secretary would supply him with the necessary copies of the rules, there were many places to which he would have pleasure in forwarding them. (Applause.)

Mrs. Harper moved, and Miss Windeyer seconded, a vote of thanks to all who have assisted in the work of the club.

Mrs. Mackinnon moved a vote of thanks to his Excellency for presiding.

RAILWAY COMMISSIONER'S TOUR.

COROWA, Tuesday.

During the Railway Commissioners' visit to Corowa they were interviewed by a deputation, which asked that the step to block foot traffic from crossing over the lines near the sheds should not be carried out. Mr. Johnson held out very little hope of the practice being allowed to continue. In reply to the request of Mr. A. A. Piggin, of the firm of Piggin and Co., that the shed accommodation should be increased, the Chief Commissioner said that their visit to this part of the State had opened their eyes to the necessity for increasing the railway facilities, and it was apparent that heavy expenditure in this respect would be necessary within a few years. The question of the shortage of trucks was due not to the incapacity of the department to supply them, but the difficulty in which brokers were placed regarding tonnage. On one day last week 40,000 sacks were landed at Darling Island, and only 20,000 taken delivery of by shippers. He predicted a serious block towards the end of the year, when the wool and wheat traffic would clash. He could not undertake to extend the roofing accommodation at Corowa, as up to the present the farmers had not displayed any great anxiety to avail themselves of the present shed, but left it for agents to take up.

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

At a meeting of the Parramatta Licensing Court, before Mr. W. Burton Smith, D.S.M., and Mr. C. J. Byrnes, J.P., licensing magistrates, the license of the Woolpack Hotel was transferred from William D. Haydon to Walter Rees.

WHAT IS PRINTING PAPER?

ALLEGED BREACH OF CUSTOMS ACT.

Before Mr. William Clarke, S.M., yesterday, at the Water Summons Court, Customs Inspector Donohoe proceeded against Edwards, Dunlop, and Co., Limited, upon two informations alleging that on January 3 last they did, by their agent, Caesar Lewis Dalmasso, make an entry which was false, in that it contained goods described as plain printing paper, whereas in fact the goods were not plain printing paper; and that by their agent, in a declaration endorsed upon an entry to Andrew Stewart, an officer within the meaning of the Customs Act of 1901, they did make a statement which was untrue in certain particulars.

Mr. Flannery (instructed by the Crown Solicitor for the Commonwealth) appeared for the prosecution; and Mr. Lamb, K.C., and Mr. Pickburn (instructed by Mr. W. A. Gilder) for the defendants.

Mr. Lamb, on behalf of the defendants, objected to the summons, which he held was invalid. The summons was issued by Mr. Camphin, a justice of the peace, who was not a police magistrate, a stipendiary magistrate, or a special magistrate.

Mr. Clarke, S.M., overruled the objection.

The hearing of evidence on the first charge was then proceeded with.

George F. Mitchell, an officer of the Customs at Sydney, said that the samples of paper produced were taken from those described in the entry in question. Those marked were taken from the shipment of goods referred to in the entry on March 6 last, the remainder were taken that morning.

To Mr. Lamb: Witness could not say that the paper produced was the same as that used by the Government for telegraph forms.

Mr. Lamb: We import it for the purpose as printing paper, and we are being prosecuted for calling it printing paper.

Witness, continuing, to Mr. Lamb, said that he marked the papers produced, but he could not explain the meaning of the words "universal glace," although he had written them on the samples, but said that the words were a copy from the invoice or statement. He did not know if they rightly described the paper or not. At the time the entry was tendered the department drew some samples, but he had not them in his possession. Mr. Stewart, of the department, would, he believed, have the custody of the samples. Witness did not produce the samples taken originally from the bales.

Duncan M'Dougall, general manager for Sands and M'Dougall, of Melbourne, said that his experience in the printing trade extended over 14 years, and he had 20 years' experience of paper. His experience had been gained in England, America, and Australia. For the last five or six years he had been actively engaged in buying and selling paper. He was acquainted with trade classifications of paper, and those mentioned in the Customs Tariff Act, 1910. Looking at the marked exhibit witness said that the papers were of orange, red, and blue.

Q.: What is the trade classification of this paper?—A glazed coloured sulphite.

Q.: What would you term it, a printing paper or a wrapping paper?—A wrapping paper.

Q.: What characteristics do wrapping papers show?—Exceptional strength and a harsh tinny appearance.

Q.: In your opinion, what proportion of sulphite is contained in the paper produced?—At least 75 per cent.

Q.: To what purpose generally are such papers put?—To wrapping and bag-making.

Q.: Are the wrapping papers you describe ever printed upon?—They can be, but are not generally so.

Q.: Can you say what are the characteristics of printing paper?—They are of a softer nature, and lend themselves to type.

Continuing, witness said that be could not say what the breaking strain of printing paper was. The paper in question was similar to that used by the Federal Government for printing telegraph forms.

Q.: Do you say that the Federal Government prints its telegraph forms on paper that is not a printing paper?—Yes.

Q.: Is not the paper largely used for printing?—No.

Witness, continuing, said that in Melbourne they used printing paper for their telegraph forms, but he could not say what they used in New South Wales.

The witness was then asked to describe the characteristics of several samples of paper handed to him, which he did after much tearing and handling.

Q.: Does the quantity of sulphite in a paper decide whether that paper is a printing or a wrapping paper?—No.

Continuing, witness said that the paper under review would not come under the category of bag or sugar papers, or other classes mentioned. Even though a wrapping paper might be largely used for printing purposes, it would still remain a wrapping paper. Witness was a member of the Advisory Board in Melbourne, who advised the Government with regard to paper.

The further hearing was adjourned until Thursday.

MILK VENDOR FINED.

Before Mr. W. Clarke, S.M., on Tuesday, at the Water Summons Court, Inspector Kench proceeded against Charles Pound, a milk vendor, for carrying water on his cart while delivering milk on March 11 last. The evidence of the complainant was to the effect that about 6 a.m. on the date mentioned he met defendant driving a horse attached to a milk cart in Brougham-street, Woolloomooloo. The name of Charles Pound was written in chalk on the side of the cart, and as witness approached defendant endeavoured to efface it. On defendant's cart witness found a can containing nearly two gallons of water. Defendant, who admitted having water on the cart, though he did not know he was doing any wrong, was fined £5, with costs, or in default one month's gaol.

Defendant was also charged with refusing to give a sample of milk for analysis. The inspector said that when he asked defendant for a pint of milk, he (defendant) upset the contents of the can into the roadway. Accused was fined £5 and costs, or in default two months' imprisonment.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

ORGANISING BLIND WORKERS.

A movement is on foot to organise the sightless workers in Sydney, and at a meeting held at Woollahra it was decided to form a branch of the association in the eastern suburbs. The branch is to comprise part of the Blind People's Welfare Association, and an effort is to be made to induce the Government to assume control of all the blind institutions of the State, instead of allowing them to be privately managed, and dependent, as in many instances, on charity.

STOREMEN AND PACKERS.

The Storemen and Packers' (Wholesale Oil and Colour Stores) Board's award has been made available. It provides for a 48 hours' week, to be worked as follows:—8½ hours daily between Monday and Friday, and 4½ hours on Saturday. Subject to certain conditions, the hours of starting and knocking off may be fixed, but having once been fixed shall not be altered without seven days' notice. The minimum rates of wages shall be:—Adult storemen and packers, £2 5s a week, head storemen, £2 10s, where more than four are employed £2 15s; youths, under 16 years 15s, over 16 17s 6d, over 17 £1, over 18 £1 2s 6d, over 19 £1 5s, and over 20 and under 21 £1 10s. Wages to be paid weekly, and overtime at the rate of double time will be paid on Sundays and holidays, and time and a half for all other overtime. Other clauses relate to preference to unionists, holidays, and disputes. The area within which the award shall be operative is the whole of the county of Cumberland, and the award shall remain in force till August 31, 1913.

MILK AND ICE CARTERS.

There will be a special meeting of the executive of the Milk and Ice Carters and Dairymen's Employees Union to-night, for the purpose of considering a very serious position which has arisen as a result of the indefinite and contradictory wording of the award. Mr. Saunders, the secretary, seen yesterday, said:—"The particular matter under review is in connection with three informations which the union had filed in the Industrial Court, and which came on for hearing last Monday. The union, in the circumstances, has no complaint to find with the judgment, which was against the union, but it is determined to use every effort by moving the Court to vary the award, and so carry out the expressed desires of the board. The question is a serious one, and will affect employees in every industry, in so far as should the union fail on its application to the Court to maintain the principle of preventing what the chairman of the board, Mr. Hamilton, designates as the "peacocking" of hours, which, in effect, means that an employer may at his option pay for overtime worked at irregular intervals, it will mean that previous decisions of the Court, laying down the principle of payment for overtime worked weekly, will be allowed to stand over pending the will and convenience of the employer. The particular case in which the union has been involved is that the award specially provides for a section of its employees firstly, to work 48 hours a week of six days; and, secondly, that the time of starting may be fixed by the employer, while the time of ceasing shall be nine hours later, less one hour for meals; all Sunday work to be paid for at 1s 6d an hour, holiday work after four hours from time of starting 1s 6d an hour. Yet owing to the indefinite wording of the award, and directly contrary to the expressed wish of the board, the employer is allowed to work his men a seventh shift in the six days, and so obtain the maximum hours of labour. The union claim that if the seventh shift can be worked in a six-shift week, then it is only reasonable to conclude that the employer can also, on the weekly basis in lieu of paying for overtime worked in any one week, allow time off to the employee the following week, and if the principle is good there is no reason that it should be restricted to the weekly basis, and in practice will mean no possibility of making an employer pay for overtime. In reality it will undoubtedly work out as a direct violation of the principle of the limitation of hours of employees."

ACTOR'S SHAKY NERVES.

THE RIGHT FOOD STEADIES THEM.

Only those who are actually on the stage can fully realise the vast amount of nervous energy good acting takes out of a man. It is simply sheer necessity that makes our leading players unusually careful in the selection of their food. The following from a well-known Liverpool actor makes this point quite plain:—

"I have always realised," he writes, "that my calling imposes a heavy strain on brain and nerve, and I have been particularly careful about my food. Yet I still suffered greatly from indigestion and shaky nerves, which left me limp and languid, and quite unable to rise to my part.

"Some time ago, however, I was persuaded to try your Grape-Nuts, being told it was a valuable nerve food, far better than the tonics I was then taking. I am pleased to say that the trial was a great success. My digestion improved before I had got through the first packet of Grape-Nuts, and, almost as quickly, I ceased to suffer from that languid feeling and nervous irritability that had threatened to wreck my career. It was fifteen months ago when I made this trial; I have always used Grape-Nuts twice every day since, and up to the time of writing I have had no return of my old trouble."

Grape-Nuts contains the valuable phosphates of potash that combine with albumen to form the grey matter of brain and nerve cells. It is therefore the ideal food for those who are subject to the wear and tear of intellectual life under modern conditions. "There's a reason for Grape-Nuts."

AS A WOMAN SAW IT.

"I name you Warrego," said the senator's wife. Snip went the scissors through the tri-coloured ribbons, smash went the bottle, showering its frothy contents over the prow, and the new ship was named.

For a moment she stood motionless, as if loath to leave her quiet resting place; then gradually the great hulk began to move, and surely and unswervingly it slid, faster and faster, down the slip. The band struck up "A Life on the Ocean Wave," the long grey hulk gathered speed, and struck the water, and the new ship was launched, to the accompaniment of waving hats and shouts and cheers; and, perhaps, to a few sighs, too; for the slim grey hulk slipping so quietly and serenely into the blue waters of the river was large with meaning to the thousands of eyes gazing upon her. She was there as the outward and visible sign of the growing up of a nation; with her launching the days of childhood and innocence passed into the things beyond recall, the youth of Australia no longer gave her a special place among the nations; she had ranked herself with the adult people of the world, and the launching of that long grey ship was the seal upon her action.

And eyes grew thoughtful, and a little sad, at the knowledge that the irrevocable step had been taken, and that "the young queen out of the south land" had put off for ever her girlish robes, and had donned the mantle of age and responsibility.

But the sun shone bright, the wind blew fair, the blue sky gazed down unclouded upon a bluer sea; flags fluttered, bands played, children in passing boats laughed and shouted—all joining to make a happy omen for the new ship. So sighs were turned to smiles, the omen was taken as a happy one, and the pangs of regret were turned to prayers that the new ship of war might speed always over peaceful seas, and that she might be always a destroyer of the wrong and defender of the right.

YOUTHFUL NURSES.

Wanted, a little girl, to mind a baby.
Wanted, a girl, of fourteen or fifteen, to take care of children.

How often one sees such advertisements as these, and one, too, just as often sees the said little girl in charge of young children.

To the writer it seems a mistake of the most serious kind, and that from many points of view.

In the first place, what risks to the present and future health of her children are taken by the mother who consigns them to the care of a little girl who knows next to nothing of hygiene or physiological matters, and all the possibilities involved in the disregard or violation of natural laws. It is simply appalling to think of the subsequent spinal troubles that may be traceable to falls, bad postures, or twistings in the arms of a young nurse, and to bumping along over rough places in a "pram" (to say nothing of an occasional capsize of that vehicle). Of the injury to eyesight due to want of knowledge with regard to exposure to strong light, or the importance of proper focus and perspective of objects placed within an infant's view; of the dangers to the digestive apparatus arising from unwise partaking of unwholesome confectionery, and all the miscellaneous menu of the daily sojourn in parks and squares, where so many girl-nurses and their charges congregate; and, perhaps worse than all, the risk of infection from various sources of which the young nurse is probably quite ignorant. The writer knows of a pathetic instance where an unfortunate young man in the advanced stage of consumption sat daily on a sunny seat in a park. Being a particularly lovable young fellow the little children and he became great friends, and they would sit beside him and clamber over him, fondling his hands and face and kissing him. Having so short a time to live it seemed in a sense cruel to grudge him the pleasure of their sweet companionship, but if the dread disease is communicable, surely these little ones were in grave danger.

Much more might be said on this purely physical side of the subject, but there is also to be taken into account the serious aspect presented by the moral side of the question. Too often the children may see little acts of concealment, discrepancies between what actually happens and what is told to mother—neglect of duty, and many other matters likely to have a bad effect on moral character. Nor is this part of the subject confined altogether to the side of the young nurses. Mothers often take advantage of the youth of these girls to exhibit impatience, unfairness, and various inconsistencies of conduct in their dealings with them, and children are marvellously quick to detect such things.

Another important point, and one which is too often quite overlooked, is none the less worthy of being noted. Is it fair to put one child—for a girl in her early teens is but a child, after all—in charge of other children? Not only is such a procedure totally opposed to everything taught and demonstrated by experience and psychology alike, the fact being fully recognised that both body and mind require in early years the best of skilled care and training, but it is also positively cruel to demand of so youthful a nurse that she should satisfactorily control and manage children who, at their best, are complex little beings with peculiarities of temperament and character to be studied and guided; and who, at their worst—which, alas, seems the more frequent condition—are veritable imps of wilful perversity, who can calculate to a mathematical nicety just how much power they possess of harassing their unfortunate young nurse, and just how little power she possesses to restrain them or to vindicate herself should matters come to an open breach of the peace. We all know how general it is with mothers that, whatever may go wrong, the fault never lies with their children—oh, no! "That girl does not know how to manage them;" "They never give me any trouble;" "She always rubs them the wrong way, and Roy is so high-spirited, you know," etc., etc.

I might say here, in passing, that if she be engaged as an assistant only, without being required to assume responsibility, a young girl is not undesirable as a help with children because of her willingness and ability to play with and amuse them; and while employed under wise supervision in this capacity she herself may be so trained and taught as to render her competent later on to adequately fulfil the duties of nurse.

By the way, a couple of generations ago it was not the universal fashion to "set up" a nursegirl. Somehow a mother then had both the desire and the ability to do her work and mind her children herself. Everybody now who has a child must have a girl to mind (?) the baby. If she really cannot do without some help it would be infinitely wiser of every woman to employ someone to take other duties off her hands, and leave her free to care fully for her child or children herself; or else to be very careful in selecting a competent and reliable person to whom to depute any share in this very important work.

PICTURE SHOWS.

The discussion on picture shows which took place at the general meeting of the National Council of Women last week, was interesting to hear, because most of the speakers spoke from experience, not mere hearsay. Those who had been only to one or two of the city shows, could see no harm at all in them, but those whose interest in the subject had led them to visit some of the cheaper suburban shows, were agreed that, while here and there some pictures were instructive and useful, the greater majority were distinctly unedifying, when not actually degrading. The sensationalism, which seems inseparable from most of the pictures, was unanimously agreed to be bad, both physically and mentally, for the many children who throng the places; but the general opinion was that the question to be considered was not whether there should be picture shows, but what kind of pictures should be shown. Some of the speakers seemed inclined to favour purely instructive pictures, but the majority were of the opinion that comic scenes were desirable, so long as they were not allowed to degenerate into mere vulgarity. The result of the discussion was a resolution that it should left to the educational committee to consider the matter further.

Most people will be glad to know that the National Council of Women has taken up this matter; for there is no doubt that picture shows are a feature in modern life all over the world, and their power for good or evil is enormous. And it is extraordinary that there should be so little censorship of the films thrown upon the screen. The word censorship implies hard restriction to many people, but there is no reason why it should, and a judicious supervision would leave plenty to interest and amuse, while cutting out much that is objectionable.

It is generally admitted that amusement is necessary to our health and sanity; and the picture shows are a form of recreation which most can afford. They also serve the excellent purpose of keeping many boys and girls off the streets at night and they undoubtedly keep many a man from drifting into the public-house for want of something to do. But—and it is a very big but—if these picture shows are to remain a useful and helpful feature in the social scheme, they must be kept within the bounds of decency and propriety. There is no need to make them simply instructive, in the ordinary sense; good, wholesome fun is an excellent tonic for all, and there is a lot of laughter in the world which has not yet found its way on to the films. There is room for humour and pathos, tragedy and comedy; there is the whole field of history and science ready to contribute stirring scenes or charming pictures to the screen; we do not expect subtle humour or learned lectures in the pictures, but we want, and must have, clean, wholesome fun, dramatic scenes that do not depend on the lowest passions for their power, and pictures that tell of the world's work and play, and of the making of nations. To rob the shows of all that is light and comic, and to make them purely educational, would be to defeat our own ends, for the people would probably stay away. The instructive pictures—which, however, can be intensely interesting—should be sandwiched between pictures of farcical situations and stories of human interest; but the great thing to be avoided is that the sandwich should be flavoured by the "spicy" scenes prepared, as a rule, by Continental firms, which at present are only too frequently seen at picture shows.

SOME OLD COIFFURES.

At intervals Dame Fashion is fond of redishing for our benefit old styles that have already done good service in the past. This is specially the case as regards hairdressing.

We may tire our heads in almost any style that pleases our fancy nowadays, but the majority of modes seem to bear a strong resemblance to directoire and Empire fashions.

So far, so good; but it is sincerely to be hoped that for our next models we shall not cast our eyes a little farther back into the past to the time which poor Queen Marie Antoinette called her "good years."

In those days fashion ran riot as regards coiffures, Leonard, coiffeur to her Majesty, devoted himself to the invention of the most extravagant headdresses.

Here is a description of one worn by Marie Antoinette to the opera in 1770:—

"The hair piled high, with three white feathers placed at the left side, and fastened in a rosette formed of curls of hair with the assistance of a pink ribband, and with a large ruby in the centre; the whole erection measured 72 inches from chin to crown."

The comet of 1773 gave rise to monstrous extravagances, and to have a head-dress "a la comete" became the rage.

A contemporary describes one of these erections as "a confused medley of tangled locks and flaming ribbons."

Perhaps the wildest extravagances invented at this period were the famous "Pouff au sentiment" head-dress, so called because they might be composed of any object whatever, and were made to contain everything for which the wearer had an affection.

Here is a description of one worn by the Duchesse de Chartres in 1774:—

"The head-dress contained the figure of a woman seated in an arm-chair nursing a baby. This represented M. le Duc de Valois and his foster-mother. On the right was a parrot, the Princess's favourite bird, picking at a cherry; on the left a little negro, a model of one of whom her Highness was very fond. With the rest of her hair was mingled hair from the heads of M. le Duc de Chartres, M. le Duc de Penthievre, and M. le Duc d'Orleans."

Fortunately this fashion attained such heights of absurdity that it wore itself out.

Some heads were covered with flights of butterflies or swarms of cupids; officers wives decorated their heads with a squadron of horse; and last, but not least, those who wished to proclaim their sorrow to the world had "pouffs" constructed of coffins and funeral urns. What wonder that soon after this a comparatively simple style should come into vogue—"coiffure a l'enfant"—a decided improvement on its predecessor.

An opera dancer in 1769 wore a marvellous erection when she impersonated a fairy. The hair was divided into four zones, composed severally of diamonds, pearls, rubies, and emeralds; in and out among these gems twined flowers, and over all was an aureole of stars mounted on wire so fine as not to seem fastened to the head. It was said that poor girls, earning barely enough to live on, would deny themselves necessities that they might have their heads dressed once a week in one of these outrageous styles.

At Dame Fashion's bidding we have proved that we will do almost anything, even sacrificing health and comfort. Should she ordain a return of the "pouff au sentiment," let us hope we shall have the strength of mind to firmly say "no."

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

"I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes."—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

The promise of the Acting Director of Education to consider the proposal of a holiday in June will be received with universal pleasure. The reason urged for such a step is certainly important, for during the winter, with its accompaniment of colds and whooping cough and other ailments, a week of rest and sunshine means a great deal to the growing child; and it means even more, perhaps, to the teacher, for while the children are in school from 9 till 4, the teachers very often work back till 5, or even later, thus missing all the sunshine. A break in the middle of the long stretch from Easter to Michaelmas will be a decided boon, for, with very few exceptions, teachers all feel the strain too much. If they are feeling tired, children can be kept at home for a few days here and there during the term, but the teacher must be there very day, unless positively ill. It has been urged against a midwinter holiday that the children were a nuisance to their mothers if at home in the cold, and possibly wet, weather; but surely the teachers deserve a little consideration in the matter. Besides, June is by no means always a wet month, and children are far more inclined to run about and amuse themselves in the cold, crisp weather than in the hot summer days. Anyway, the trifling inconvenience of having the children at home for one week in the winter has no weight against the benefit to be derived by both pupils and teachers from a rest in the middle of the long term.

The indefatigable secretary of the What-to-do-with-our-girls' Exhibition is determined that no class of women workers will be unrepresented at the exhibition, and every week she adds fresh names to her list of attractions. The latest to come in are the University women, who will show what work they are doing in their settlement; the Medical Mission, under Dr. Julia Carlile-Fox, will also demonstrate, a feature of their display being dispensing by women. In a totally different class, but of equal interest, will be the exhibition by Miss Farran, orchardist. Miss Farran was the first woman to take her diploma in agriculture at the Technical College, and she is now actively engaged in farm work at Moss Vale. She will give a practical display of budding fruit trees, of soil testing, and other branches of farming.

But perhaps the most interesting of the outdoor occupations for women to be illustrated at the exhibition will be that of silk culture, which will be demonstrated by the Queensland Silk Culture Society, of which Mrs. South is the president and founder. Although the society has only been in existence for a little less than two years, its work has progressed so far that it was awarded a first order of merit for its exhibit at the Queensland exhibition last year. The executive officers of the society are women, as are also most of the committee, for it is considered that silk culture is an industry especially suited to women. It is intended to form a branch of the society in New South Wales, and as so many of our girls now-a-days are inclined to country life the society's display at the exhibition is sure to arouse a great deal of interest.

Miss Helen Phillips, who was formerly head mistress of the Clergy Daughters' School, and was the first principal of the Women's College, has returned to Sydney, after a long absence in India—where she worked as a missionary—and in London. Her many old friends are enjoying the opportunity of renewing her acquaintance, and her "old girls" from the Clergy Daughters' College are arranging an afternoon tea for her at the Queen Victoria Club on May 3.

The military feeling which is in the air at present is to find expression in a big military ball, which has been arranged to take place on June 28. The ball, which is to be in aid of the loan training fund of the Norland Institute, will be under the patronage of Lady Dudley. The Lady Mayoress is president of the committee, Miss Maxwell and Lieutenant Bundock are the hon. treasurers, and Mrs. Greig-Smith hon. secretary. General Gordon is very interested in the plan, and has kindly offered to help with the arrangements. Every regiment is to be represented by a full set of officers in uniform, their partners in the pageant to be dressed in white satin, with powdered hair.

We hear so much of the ignorance of Australia which prevails in Europe that it was refreshing to hear from Mrs. Nolan another side of the question. Mrs. Nolan, who returned some weeks ago from the great international conference of the W.C.T.A. in Glasgow, spoke of her experiences at the meeting of the National Council of Women last Thursday, and said that she found that Australia was being watched with tremendous interest by thoughtful people. As president of the Australasian union, she was especially honoured, and while staying with the Countess of Carlisle was given the "Queen room," where she slept in a huge bed, decorated with a crown and the rose, shamrock, and thistle, in which Queen Victoria had slept when at the castle. There were 130 delegates staying at the castle at the time, and Mrs. Nolan was very much impressed by the marvellous ease with which they were entertained. The household was not in the least disturbed by the influx, but went on as noiselessly as if there were only two or three visitors.

"Platypus" writes:—"Phlox" says, in her par. on domestic warfare, that man's inventive faculties are apparently more developed than women's because he has called science to aid him in nearly all branches of manual labour. That is true, but it is also true that man holds the purse-string, too, as a rule. Can't you picture to yourself how "Himself's" hair would rise if his wife handed him in a bill for £80 or thereabouts for a sweeping machine, a scrubbing machine, a patent electric cooker, or a new device that irons clothes, dusts the drawing-room, or rocks the baby to sleep as required. Yet he will give as much for a reaper and binder to help in the outside work. How many housewives rub along without a vacuum cleaner, without a separator, or with a sewing machine that, figuratively speaking, came out of the ark, and at the same time the master of the house orders himself a new corncrusher ("with ribbler attached." What on earth is a ribbler?) for 10 guineas. Should he add horsegear to work it—"saves a man's time, so is economy in the end"—he cheerfully signs a cheque for £30.

After the outcry that is made about the dearth of the domestic servant in England, it is surprising to read that parlourmaids are quite superseding butlers, and that "Jeames" is about to be relegated to the things of the past. A London writer deplores this new development, which, she says, has many drawbacks. "Is it fair," she asks, "to men's work to invade the territory where the manservant has always made an honest living hitherto? Butlers are beginning to search for work as hopelessly as coachmen and stablemen, and their affluence is quite a thing of the past." It is rather amusing to hear parlourmaids accused of encroaching upon men's special sphere, and rather bewildering to learn that "the home" is the rightful place for any man, even a butler, and that woman

A NEW TRAINING SCHEME.

There seems to be an unfailing demand for girls in Sydney at present. From many different quarters comes the complaint, "We want more girls." Mistresses have been mourning the lack of girls in domestic service for many months, and it was thought that all the young women were going into shops and factories. But now comes a cry from the manufacturers for "thousands of girls," a cry which we cannot help hoping will be unanswered, for we do not want to see the number of female factory hands increasing at such a rate.

Less striking than the demand for factory workers, but of far deeper importance, is the demand for nursery nurses, which is now being made on all sides. The days are passing when the "girl of fourteen," mentioned in J.F.H.'s article on "Youthful Nurses," was considered quite capable of minding the baby. The modern, educated mother realises that her children should be in the care of women who are able to train them in the way they should go, and that the harm done by ignorant nurse-girls is often too deep to be undone by later training.

The Norland Institute has been trying to fill this need, by training young women to take charge of infants and little children; but, as noticed on this page last week, the institute cannot nearly supply the demands upon it, and there are over 500 mothers applying for a Norland nurse. The Kindergarten Training College has also been besieged by unfortunate mothers in want of educated nurses, and so urgent have their demands become that the College Council have decided to add to their sphere of usefulness, by reinstating a course of training for nursery nurses. The training, which will extend over one year, will include much of the practical kindergarten work, without the more difficult theoretical work, which the kindergarteners do. The girls in the new course will learn handwork, which includes home occupation for children, such as paper folding and cutting, cardboard and clay modelling, sand plays, basketwork, weaving, and toymaking, artwork, simple illustrations with pencil, crayon, and brush; nature study, including the care of children's gardens; the selection and telling of stories; reading aloud, in which the correct expression and enunciation will be emphasised; singing, including the selection of children's songs and their study from the interpretive side; child study, which includes the study of what helps in the child's development, whether moral, mental, or physical; children's games, and the care and use of playthings; hygiene, which covers sanitation and the physical care of children; cooking for children; and plain sewing and mending. In short, the course is one which will fit a girl to take complete charge of a child of 3 years or upwards, and which every girl who is likely to marry and be a mother could take with profit. The students will have the advantage of the college staff, and there will be no entrance examination, the only qualifications necessary being personal ones and an ordinary knowledge of English. The terms are very moderate—12 guineas a year—and at the end of the course there is no question about the certainty of employment at a salary of from £40 to £50 a year.

There is no doubt that when the existence of the course is known there will be many girls anxious to avail themselves of the opportunity of acquiring a profession so easily. For girls who have sense enough to prefer home life to office work, and yet must earn their living, this new training offers a great opportunity; and girls who are fond of teaching, yet have not the education needed now in our teachers, will find this new career a very pleasant one; and, which is, perhaps, most important of all, girls who have no need to earn their living, but hope some day to be happy wives and mothers, will have the opportunity under this new training scheme of fitting themselves for the chief object of a woman's life—motherhood.

The course will begin immediately after Easter, and all intending students should apply to the principal of the Kindergarten Training College, Roslyn Gardens, Darlinghurst, at once.

DOWRIES.

Every mother of girls knows what a big hole is made in the family purse when a marriage takes place; and when, as often happens, two or more daughters are married within as many years, the pinch is naturally felt by the remaining members. For no matter what the sacrifice may be, few mothers will allow their daughters to go empty-handed to their husbands, and the money spent in furnishing even the simplest linen cupboard is often of very great importance to the family coffers. In France they manage these things much better, and the system of putting away a small sum each year for the daughters' "dots," is one that has much to commend it. The French girl herself does much towards the making of her dowry, and it is quite a common thing for school-girls, both in France and Germany, to arrive at school with big bales of linen to be made up into sheets, tablecloths, and pillow-cases, for their future linen chest. If an Australian girl did such a thing, she would be the laughing-stock of the school, for in this country, as in England, we do not look ahead in the matter of marriage. But America is realising that there is a great deal of sound common sense in the Continental idea, and that the habit may be as useful to the girl as to the parents. In one of the large city schools in America they have established a dowry fund, to which the girls themselves contribute, and which forms the nucleus of a wedding portion. Each girl saves a little from her pocket-money, or tram fares, where walking is possible, and it is found that the majority can save as much as two shillings a week; some a good deal more. If a girl practises this habit all her schooldays, which generally stretch over eight or nine years, she will have a nice little sum at the end, without having felt any strain in saving it. Even if she never uses the money for her trousseau or house-furnishing, it will be useful to her in some other way. In the American school, where the idea originated, the girls are encouraged to save from their dress money. It is the universal custom there to spend a lot of money on graduation frocks, for graduation day is a great day in the schoolgirl's life. In this particular school it is now the custom for the girls to make their own graduation frocks, under the supervision of a skilled dressmaker, and the money thus saved goes to swell the dowry fund. There is a good deal of sound common sense in the scheme, for, apart from the benefit of having £30 or £40 in the bank when she leaves school, the girl has been learning the habits of thrift and foresight.

THE PLEASURE-SPOILER.

There is scarcely a woman whose pleasure has not, as some time or other, been almost wholly spoiled by the thoughtless person who keeps up a constant fidgeting, or incessant chattering, at an evening's entertainment. In the most thrilling part of a scene, when your every nerve is strained to catch what the actors are saying, she—for, sorry as I am to say it, women are the worst offenders in this respect—she moves her braceleted arm, and you lose the telling sentence on which the whole scene rests. When the great singer, whom you have come miles to hear in the song which has made her world-famous, is just breathing pianissimo on her wonderful last note, and the audience is listening in breathless silence until it has died away, the pleasure-spoiler rustles her programme, drops her fan, or her box of sweets, with a noisy clatter, and strikes a note of irritation in your breast, while the whole effect of the beautiful song is spoiled by her thoughtlessness, her inability to keep still.

She is sure to be among the audience in lecture-hall or assembly, and woe betide you if you are unlucky enough to be placed near her. She insists on fidgetting, touching your arm, placing her feet on the back of your chair, or her knee against it, if she sits behind you. And she makes remarks at odd moments, criticises her neighbours, the actors, the artiste, or the speaker, chatters about nothing at all, and sets your nerves on edge, because of her lack of repose. You may glare at her, remove yourself as far as possible from her uneasy contact, even ask her politely to keep still, or limit her remarks to the proper interval. But she is unconscious of the fact that she is a pleasure-spoiler, and no doubt puts you down in her own mind as a cross-grained mortal, who believes in absolute silence. This is a restless age truly, and repose is not one of the applied arts, but I, for my part, wish it had been included in some women's school curriculum.

M.W.

FASHION AS SHE IS.

At this moment, with the approach of festivity in the air, it is with evening dresses that we are chiefly concerned. Bodices, the experts say, must be cut in low points, especially at the back, and have very little that can be termed sleeves, at most an epaulet with fringe falling from it, or an end of lace or net, quite plain. Everyone, too, is trying to be tall and slim, so alas for the "dumpy" or "hippy" woman, her chances are dim and obscure. This necessary tallness has brought in high heels again—"chaussure" being elaborate in the extreme. A pretty idea is to have it to match the shoulder scarf or the bandeau, if the dress is black, white, or a neutral shade. Flowers are to be lavishly used on dance frocks for girls, but only in the guise of very slender chains or garlands, which should cross or encircle the bodice and come down over the skirt. You see no more heavy bouquets or clusters; materials are so light and ethereal that trimmings must match them.

* * * * * *

The veiling of old gowns is one of the great resources we have just now. An evening frock can be easily beautified with a sort of long fancy coat of chiffon or ninon, trimmed with velvet ribbons or bias folds of panne, and almost any dress can now be made elegant and up-to-date as several materials are used in one frock, provided the wearer has just a few "ideas" at hand, and can work them into shape herself, or through a dressmaker. A dress of velvet and cloth can even be made from two of last season's possessions. Some "small dressmakers" have a genius for renovations, and will almost work up "confections" if left to their own devices.

* * * * * *

The tendency to make the dresses wider round the hem is shown by adding a flounce made rather full a little below the tunic. Fichu bodices are correct, but the fichu must be made of folds—lace fichus forming sleeves and cascades of lace at the back, have also much to commend them. Visiting, or house frocks, are seemingly cut in princess fashion, but are really joined beneath the waist belt, placed rather high up on the figure.

* * * * * *

The tunic cut all in one, with a low-necked blouse, is a most useful addition to a medium-sized wardrobe. I saw one only yesterday, very coarse black fisher-net, cut in deep points at the two sides at the back of the skirt portion, and just above, at the corners, were "inlaid" large roses, cut out of cretonne, but veiled in chiffon before being placed under the net. The same adornment appeared on the back of the sleeves and just above the waist. The whole tunic was edged with four-inch black ribbon velvet. Indeed, the tunic shows no disposition to retire in favour of a newer mode; that promises to be long with us, but in its newest aspects it is in light-toned mousseline over a darker underrobe, merely reversing what has been the order of things hitherto. This trait is essentially "First Empire," so we may believe the rumour that Empire fashions will be uppermost.

* * * * * *

Hats are as high as you dare to wear them—at least, when toques are chosen with either plumes or bunches of Hussar feathers at the back, and they are worn so as to cover the hair and the back of the neck. They are tilted, but not to exaggeration, over to one side, so that one eye is nearly sheltered. The large hats are either quite flat, turned up slightly at one side, and caught with an ornament or one rose, or have a group of ostrich plumes poised in waving elegance at the back. Black and white millinery is given the palm for excellent taste. The black velvet hats or toques, with white kid roses, are very popular. Worn with velvet frocks of the same sombre hue, white gloves, and a touch of ermine at the throat, the fortunate possessor could never escape admiration.

* * * * * *

The advent of the winter frock, be it simple or luxurious, always brings in its train the worry of trimming, for it is the touch of colour, lace, or braid or button that makes or mars its effect. The chance of enlivening a dark cloth or serge dress rests entirely upon the yoke and collar-band. Necks and heads, in fact, are of primary importance in the scheme of all dresses. I would declare that, with a well-adjusted neck and yoke, a well-coiffured head covered with a well-poised, well-made hat, you may defy any experts to give the exact date of any costume you may be wearing.

* * * * * *

To most women it is essentially becoming that something light should be near the face; therefore, lace or embroideries are generally chosen. But the lace should be of the heavier makes—"trist," guipure, or Italian. These, again, may be veiled with very thin chiffon, the same tone as the dress, either lightly traced with "rat-tail" braid, or, what is even newer, a surface of dark net matching the dress, worked in white porcelain beads. Then, again, I have seen and tried myself, with excellent results, effective yokes and collar-bands made of very gaily-coloured Oriental embroidery, cut from the end of an antimacassar, the fine canvas attached to this being used to supply any band or tucks necessary to complete the shape of the collar-band.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN.

The Sydney University Women's Association had a pleasant meeting on Thursday evening last, with the special object of welcoming the "freshers" of the year.

This association is not to be confounded with the Women's Society, which aims chiefly at charitable works, and has established the University settlement.

The association is composed of women graduates and undergraduates, and has for its main purpose the strengthening of the ties that bind its members to the University, and the linking together of students past and present. Generations, in student parlance and chronology, are thus kept in touch with each other.

The meetings, though chiefly educational, with spirited addresses and debates on subjects—literary, philosophical, civic—are often purely social functions. Of this latter class was the assemblage on Thursday night. It is always interesting to watch such a gathering. There are the freshers, generally very youthful, and hair obviously recently put up, enjoying their new dignity and emancipation from schoolroom restrictions. For the University is very different to any schoool, however advanced. In the common-room all meet on a level footing, and the only control exercised is that of general opinion and public feeling.

Then there are, perhaps, the most enviable—the students who have successfully emerged from their fresher stage. They are secure on their own ground, the University; temporarily they own it, and their sense of proprietorship is almost arrogant.

The graduates enter, sometimes, a little shyly. Their time of possession has passed; they are strangers. The women once famed for popularity, or sport, or scholarship, are unknown to the present-day students. Observe the transformation when they spy some of their own year—the warm greeting, the exchange of news, the old jokes recalled, the "do you remember?" and all the strangeness has departed. They are at home again, and are ready to add their quota of good fellowship to the general enjoyment of the meeting.

On Thursday it was a book evening. Each went round labelled with a card bearing in transparent letters the name of a book, with her own name written above. This latter was rather a brilliant idea, as it served as a kind of introduction. All present gave their trained minds, their supposedly weighty intelligence, to such tremendous problems as the making of Middlemarch out of Drambemdil or Barnaby Rudge out of Narabba Dregu, and the competition served as an incentive to the social enjoyment of the evening.

One fact was noticeable, that as a whole the faces of these women were very fine ones. There were some, beautiful, according to the strictest canons of art; but even those who were not so blessed with perfect features had a fine intelligence, an alertness that was quite as attractive. There was a complete absence of any self-consciousness or simpering that so often mars beauty in more fashionable assemblies.

Mental training of a surety refines features and stamps an unmistakable imprint on the most ordinary face. Girls, whether they go to the University or not, would be well advised to develop their mental faculties, for in addition to the consequent intellectual profit and enjoyment, they gain so much in the illumination of their faces.

AUSTRALIANS ABROAD.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, March 3.

Sir George Reid entertained at luncheon at the British Empire Club yesterday Mr. Gordon Wesche, Admiral Bethell (Director of Naval Intelligence), Sir Pope Cooper (Chief Justice of Queensland), Mr. A. T. Woodward (Victoria), Mr. Veale (Orient line), Mr. Shields (P. and O. Company), Captain Muirhead Collins, Sir Kenneth Anderson, Mr. Graham Greene (secretary to the Admiralty), Captain Ruthven (Orient line), Captain Clarke (Port of London Authority), Mr. Gifford, and Mr. Evans Jackson (Imperial Industries' Club).

Judge Murray, the Governor of Papua, was on his way back from a visit to England when reports of the mishap to Sir Staniforth Smith's party in Papua reached him. He has changed the plans which he had made for his return, in order that he may reach Papua at the earliest possible moment. He and Mrs. Murray have sailed in the Ville de la Ciotat for Colombo. Mrs. Murray will accompany the Judge as far as Singapore.

Mr. Wilding, the New Zealand tennis player, is at present in the Riviera.

General Sir Edward Hutton presided at a lecture on Australia lately given in the country. In introducing the lecturer he said that he considered Australia a perfect El Dorado, and he urged anyone, man or woman, who thought of emigrating to give all consideration to the Commonwealth. If they showed ordinary industry the high wages given in Australia and its low cost of living would enable them quickly to make homes for themselves.

Miss Margaret Baxter, who has been elected a member of the hospitality committee of the Festival of Empire, is taking part in arranging the details of the hospitalities which will be shown to visitors from different parts of the Empire at that exhibition. These will include a meeting place or club for oversea visitors.

The marriage took place this week at Holy Trinity Church, Sloane-street, London, of Miss Magdalen Sinclair Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Anderson, late of Newstead, New South Wales, to Captain E. G. Lowther Crofton, D.S.O., R.N., son of Major Crofton, of Ryde, Isle of Wight. Miss Nancy Anderson, the bride's sister, and Miss Myleta Corry, daughter of Sir William Corry, were the bridesmaids, and amongst those present were Admiral of the Fleet Sir Edward Seymour, Vice-Admiral Sir John and Lady Jellicoe, General Sir E. Hutton, the Earl and Countess of Lindsey, Mr. Dudley North, R.N., and Mrs. North, Mrs. W. R. Campbell, Mrs. and Miss Stirling, Lady Darley and the Misses Darley, and Miss Mitchell.

Another Australian wedding took place in London during the week. This was that of Mr. Harold Parker, of Brisbane, with Miss Janet Robinson, daughter of Sir Thomas Robinson, Agent-General for Queensland. The bridesmaids were the Misses Phyllis and Olive Robinson, stepsisters of the bride, and their cousin, Miss Winnie Robinson, and Miss Molly Houghman. The wedding took place at St. James' Church, Sussex Gardens, W.

A WAY OF GIVING.

"Tell me what I can give Madge for her birthday," said Polly, with a worried face.

"What do you think she would like?"

"I don't know. She doesn't care about books, and she has everything else that a girl could possibly want. She's the hardest person I know to give presents. Every year I have the same worry, and every year it's harder to find something of which she has not a dozen."

"Why give her anything at all?"

"Oh, but she would be hurt if I forgot her birthday. I have always sent her some little thing; and, besides, I am so fond of her, I like the pleasure of giving her things."

"Send her a letter and a bunch of those lovely roses; they will be sure to please her; and then, if you still feel that you must buy her a present, buy it, and send it to somebody else. Give it to some girl to whom presents are rare, and who needs a hundred of the little things that will be wasted on Madge."

"But wouldn't that be a funny thing to do?"

"Not at all. Tell Madge that you bought her a dainty embroidered handkerchief or a lace collar, but, as she has already scores of handkerchiefs and dozens of collars, and only one nose and one neck, you have added to your pleasure—and to hers—by sending the present to somebody else."

"Do you know I think that's rather a good idea, and Madge is such a darling that I'm sure she would understand. I know lots of girls who don't get many pretties, and I've often felt inclined to give them little things, but couldn't afford it. Now, whenever, I am worrying to find something for Madge that she hasn't already got, I shall buy a tie for Jean, or a belt for Edith, and just send Madge my love and a bunch of flowers."

Polly was silent for a few minutes, thinking over the possibilities of her new scheme. It had evidently appealed to her, for after a while she went on in a thoughtful voice:

"When you come to think of it, most giving is rather selfish, isn't it? A nice kind of selfishness, of course, but still selfish. For I am sure I get far more pleasure out of buying or making things for Madge than she does out of having them. So, if it's really only the fact of giving that pleases me, I'll still get as much pleasure if I buy my present for Jean or Edith, and Madge won't have the embarrassment of pretending to be delighted over a thing she does not know what to do with."

"Yes, and you will have given Madge the double pleasure of being a giver and a receiver at the same time; for she will have the knowledge that you were thinking of her—which, after all, is the only thing that counts in a present—and at the same time she will feel that she has shared with you in sending a gift to Jean or Edith."

Polly picked up her work-basket.

"I did think of marking these handkerchiefs for Madge, but I'll embroider 'J' instead of 'M.' Jean will love them." Then, with a shy self-consciousness: "It's an economical way of giving presents, isn't it? It appeals to my thrifty soul."

But it wasn't the feeling of economy that brought the dimples to the corner of her mouth, and it wasn't her thrifty soul that shone through her bright eyes, as she carefully picked out her prettiest initial and finest thread.

WOMEN WHOSE WORK IS NEVER DONE.

That there are many such women no one will dispute; but I, for one, feel more of anger than sorrow for them. I refer to the average woman, not the exception.

During the past few years I have been carefully watching and noting these women whose work is never done. And what do I find? That these women do less than others of whom it is often disparagingly said: "Some women have good times. I don't know when they do their work, I'm sure, for they are always out." One instance tells the tale, for the many, as far as personal observation goes.

I have a friend in the country. Invitations to spend some time with me at the seaside always met with the same reply, "Really, I have no time; but why don't you come down here?" I did. Now I know why there is no time for a holiday. It is not the amount of work that's done, but the manner of doing that work—want of method. In the apparently simple task of clearing away the tea things my friend showed that it was lack of a definite plan in her work that kept her so busy. She raced and rushed here and there, in and out of the dining-room and kitchen, where once or twice would have sufficed, and no racing at that.

With all her work she was the same. Her one aim seemed to be to keep on the move. I must say that she was working all day; but I must also say that her work could have been done in half a day.

Many of those who read these words are doing exactly the same thing—rushing and tearing, day after day; no time for an hour's rest; no time for a stroll after tea.

Try a little method. Do not rush here and there needlessly. Aim at having things done by a certain time, and do not come under the category of women whose work is never done, for it is no credit, but very much otherwise.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

ORANGE POTATO GROWERS.

AN UNWISE ATTITUDE.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES WANTED.

The Orange district occupies an important position as a potato-growing centre. There are several thousand acres under crop, the area having been increased this season, as a result of the good returns secured the last couple of years. The growers in that district have done very well. The soil and climate is admirably suited to potato growing. On account of the good-keeping qualities and the cleanliness of the district the trade always look out for these potatoes. The country is volcanic, with rich red volcanic soil. There are a good many lowlying patches of white clayey land, but growers state that this also produces very fine crops. In many cases it is not to be rotated, as is the case with the red slopes, as much of this land is often under water.

Most growers appear to go in for a rotation of either oats or wheat, and sometimes both crops are put in the potato land before another potato crop goes in. Wheat and oats both yield good profitable hay crops. With them it is usual to use fertiliser, at the rate of 50lb and 56lb of superphosphate; but it is not a general practice to manure the potatoes. A mixed fertiliser has been tried by many growers, but they state that it makes no appreciable difference in the returns. The right fertiliser for the class of country concerned along the Shieland does not yet seem to be fixed. The country is certainly exceptionally rich naturally, and without artificial fertilisers good returns are secured. The average yield is put down at from three to five tons, and this, of course, means heavy individual yields in many instances. Mr. Reynolds, the local agricultural inspector, is now endeavouring to get growers to sow clover, with a view of nitrifying the land and increasing the yields. The soil and climate is naturally suited to clover, the indigenous species of which in old times used to cover the country with a white coat. The department has now put down plots at the showground, which are sown with clover, with a view to demonstrating its value as a means to obtaining heavier returns.

While there is room for doubt as to the profit in using standard fertilisers, good crops require that the land should be well worked. It is, however, kindly land, and well repays proper attention. While there is room for improvement in only too many cases, there are numerous good farmers in the district. The lines of soil working followed by one of them is to plough the stubble in August about seven inches deep, and the paddock is then given three more ploughings, as well as being worked with the harrows and spring-tooth cultivator to keep it in good heart. This particular grower won't use the disc implements, as he considers that they chop up the land too fine. The growing crops are, of course, well worked and kept clean. Only local seed is used at Orange, and this is a principle that will be probably strictly adhered to for some time now, with, perhaps, exceptions in using small lots of the varieties being tested by the Agricultural Department, which, it is certain, are thoroughly clean.

There are a large number of varieties grown locally. Freeman's is a popular sort, and among others largely sown are Pinkeyes, Satisfaction, Queen of the Valley, Bliss's Triumph, Brownell's, and White Pinkeyes, a variety originally introduced from Victoria, but which has now become localised. The department is experimenting with other varieties, some of which are turning out very well. The Government plots, it might be mentioned, are quite clean and free from the blight. A reference to the Government plots being affected at Oberon, which appeared in these columns about a week ago, was read locally as applying to the Orange plots, although that was not the purport of the paragraph. This is a pity, as the Orange people are particularly touchy concerning Irish blight just now.

In addition to the variety trials in the plots the department is also trying some experiments with potatoes raised from the berries, with a view to ascertaining whether an improved sort can be found for the district. Three varieties were put in—Sussex, Norfolk, and Wellington, red, purple, and white sorts. Sussex is by far the most promising so far. The Norfolk will no doubt be discarded, as it shows Victorian fleck, while the Wellingtons are an ugly-shaped tuber with deep eyes. That, of course, might improve with continued cultivation locally in the same soil. Such at least is the opinion of some practical growers. The Sussex is a very promising sort, which may find favour locally.

Altogether the department appears to be paying the district attention, and it certainly has a live representative in the western inspector. Such attention is well deserved, as the locality is rich and very important, considered as regards the potato industry alone. The rainfall is good, 38 inches were recorded last year. There is no question as to the climate and soil. The locality is well settled, the average holding running about 20 acres. No doubt with potato-growing much smaller areas would be sufficient, and in that respect full use of the country is not, apparently, being made. Compared with other districts, however, it is well settled. Land values are high. Potato land that has been worked for some years commands £12 per acre, and probably more.

From what has been said it is easy to realise how extremely anxious growers are that the district should be known as a clean one, especially in a season when Irish blight is so prevalent, and both seed and table potatoes are likely to command high prices. That brings up consideration of the present attitude of the growers in this regard. As stated in our columns yesterday, growers unanimously, apparently, contest the report that blight has been found in the district, and are apparently in many cases at least not prepared to accept the opinion of the authorities in that direction. While such an attitude may be understandable, its wisdom is open to question.

The present position is that the presence of blight has been found in the haulms from one paddock. The result of the first investigation not being acceptable to growers, apparently a second investigation was made with the same result. There is no doubt that this particular patch is infected with the blight as far as the haulms are concerned. Only a very small area is so affected, and it would appear that the progress of the disease has been held in check by change of climatic conditions. Is it wise for growers to dispute the existence of infection in this case? When all is said and done, the scientist's finding must be accepted. Would it not be more sensible for growers to have steps taken to effectually destroy this small affected patch. The rest of the district is admitted to be clean, and to maintain that desirable state and keep up the good name of the locality nothing would be more effective than prompt attention to the infected patch in question.

Even if there was doubt as to it being blight, such action would be safest to avoid any accident. As it is, it is certain that other growers are now maintaining a dangerous attitude. While that affected patch exists it stands as a menace to the whole district. Given wet conditions, and contamination might be spread on all sides. Is it safe to run such a tremendous risk, considering the great interests at stake? For growers to admit that one small patch has been detected in the district would be a small circumstance to, by neglect, having the whole locality infected. In any case, growers must take a common-sense view of the position, and remember that whatever they may think the rest of the community will certainly accept the official statement that the presence of blight was detected in the haulms taken from this patch in question.

Looking at the matter from the view point of the good of the majority, and for that matter the whole community, some strong repressive action should be taken by the Department of Agriculture. Unfortunately, as far as this serious outbreak is concerned, the department appears to be adopting a very lax attitude. While individual officers are doing good work, there is a lack of firm and efficient administration. The department must surely have power to do more to protect both grower and consumer than is being done at present.

Given the destruction of this patch, the Orange growers can claim beyond dispute that the district is at present clean. And that is a very valuable claim to be able to make at the present time.

ITEMS.

A Queensland paper draws attention to the increasing inclination on the part of Queensland farmers with pigs for sale to sell them at auction rather than rely on the verdict of the pig buyer in his periodical visits. This has led to the establishment of an auction sale at almost every railway town in Southern Queensland.

It would seem that the farmers consider they derive some advantage from this method of disposing of their stock, as they get the full value of whatever competition there may be in the market. It should also prove of educational value.

By submitting their pigs to auction the most successful breeder and feeder of stock should get the best prices, whilst his neighbours, who possibly are not doing quite the best work, will be able to compare notes, and find out wherein their deficiencies consist.

The growth of the Victorian apple export trade is marked by the shipment to be made by the Pera for the United Kingdom, which reaches 32,000 cases. The total figures for the season will reach over 300,000 cases, according to the "Age," which is much above the estimate formed at the commencement of the year's export.

The shipment by the Pera is nearly three times as large as the whole of the overseas export for one season only ten years back. In 1900 the number of cases exported from Victoria was 11,849.

A German paper gives an account of sawdust bread. Works in Berlin are producing about 200 quintals of "wood bread" a day. This cattle food is made by submitting the sawdust to several chemical processes after it has been fermented, and then mixing it with rye flour in the proportion of two parts of sawdust to one of flour. It is then baked in the same way as ordinary bread. The product is used for feeding horses.

It is generally believed that cold is harmful to the ripening of cheese, causing a bitter taste. Experiments in America, however, show that, on the contrary, a judicious application of cold may improve the flavour. Moreover, cold may prevent certain changes due to bacterial action, such as "eyes" in Swiss cheese, the characteristic taste of Limburg cheese, and mouldiness in Roquefort. When these changes occur, the best way of preserving the cheese from further harm is to store in a refrigerator.

THE BLUE MOUNTAIN TABLELAND.

BY J. D. M.

In the Blue Mountain tableland experience testifies that even the most arid portions seem specially adapted for the production of European fruit and flora, and, it may be added, in propitious seasons, various kinds of useful vegetation. Its fame as a summer sanatorium is undisputed, but its greater possibilities remain undeveloped. The region is intersected from west to east by the River Cox, a perennial stream, that flows through, in the greatest part of its course, a deep, wide, fertile valley that contains some thousands of acres of arable land, that remains as it was first discovered, in a state of nature—at least that portion that extends from Sugarloaf Mountain to a narrow deep gorge through which the river flows before it empties into the Nepean. That part is known as Kanimbla Valley, and contains a large area of rich, sandy loam soil, enjoys an equable, temperate climate, and is mostly level country throughout. The valley could support a great number of families profitably employed in market gardening, production of fodder for domestic animals, tobacco-growing, and poultry farming. The whole valley could, at a little outlay, be irrigated by the waters drawn from the Cox River, and distributed by the force of gravitation. One road leads from near Leura, another from near Blackheath into the valley, giving access to the Great Western railway line. Other roads lead from the Bathurst old road into Kanimbla and Liddleton stations. From Sugarloaf Mountain westerly to Wallerawang the valley widens and contracts, and contains a few farms, dairies, and orchards. The valley, it is supposed, was originally a Crown grant given to Wentworth as a reward for his efforts, in the company of Blaxland and Lawson, in discovering a passage over the mountains in the early days.

PREPARING A CLIP.

One of the most necessary factors in the get-up of a clip is to have the sheep in good order for shearing (says a South Australian sheep farmer). About a month before lambing all the ewes should have the crutch cleaned and their eyes clipped. That applied to all the flocks, but with dry sheep it could be left until later. That would save a lot of work in the shed at shearing time, and also save a lot of wool, for dry sheep on the board damage a lot of wool that might easily be saved. It was necessary to watch the shearers at work and check as much as possible the ill-usage of sheep and the second cut in the wool, which was simply so much wool wasted. He would remove the bellies from the fleece, and if it had not been done would remove the pizzles from the belly wool. Skirt lightly where necessary the leg ends and short, hairy leg bits, and throw out very heavy or very coarse fleeces with the belly wool. If the sheep were culled as they should be there would be few fleeces cast aside. Small owners should not try to class the clip in many lots, but simply keep the ewes with lambs separate from the dry sheep. If a small owner tried to class his clip on the lines of a station owner he would find that when it reached the market it would be catalogued as star lots, and would not receive the attention from the buyers that it otherwise would. It was most important not to overstock. A paddock that had sheep in it should also carry a few head of cattle or horses, for on some classes of grass sheep would not do well, but heavy stock would thrive upon it.

FORMALIN AS A SMUT PREVENTIVE.

Experiments with regard to the treatment of the seed of cereals with formalin for the prevention of smut have been carried out during the last ten years by Professor Jaczewski, at the Russian Agricultural Phytopathological institute, and the following recommendations are made as a result of his experiences in this direction. The seed should not be treated with formalin long ahead, the more easily does it absorb the formalin solution, and the germinating capacity is liable to be injured by the formalin reaching the germ. The formalin solution should preferably be weak, say 0.15 per cent., or one pint of 40 per cent. formalin to 38 gallons of water. The seed should not be left to steep for too long a time, but Professor Jaczewski regards a period of about two hours as most suitable for disinfection, and states that this will not injure germinating capacity. The treatment by immersion, he considers, somewhat inconvenient, however, and a better method is to collect the seed in heaps, and spray with the above solution, each heap being turned, so that all the seed receives treatment. When this is complete the seed should be covered over, left for two hours, and then spread out to dry.

SHEEP ON THE FARM.

Mr. Vigar, a member of the Mount Pleasant branch of the Agricultural Bureau, is a firm believer in the importance of sheep on the farm, and, having had considerable experience with woolbearers, his opinion is worthy of attention and acceptation (writes the "Register"). He began his flock by purchasing merino ewes which were in lamb to merino rams, and due to lamb at the end of April and during May. Having made a start, it was desirable to work on fixed lines rather than to change from one year to another. He put the young ewes to the ram as four-tooth, i.e., when they were two and a half years old, and continued to put them to merino rams until they became full-mouthed. He therefore had at least two lambs from the ewes by merino rams, and these kept the flock going. Then he passed the ewes on to a Lincoln ram, and kept on breeding crossbred lambs until they became broken-mouthed.

So soon as a ewe became broken-mouthed he selected the best-conditioned for household use, and sent the others to market to go to the highest bidder. That was his main line in breeding. When 12 months old the sheep would have developed sufficiently for the farmer to form a pretty good idea as to what it was going to be. The weedy ones should be removed from the flock as opportunity offered. It was not wise to cull too heavily at this age, but there were always some which from some cause did not come up to the fair average standard of the flock. The crossbred lambs he bred for sale and placed on the market as soon as the grass died off. That was a very profitable part of sheep-raising. It was desirable if possible to sell the whole of the crossbred lambs in one line. It was better for small sheepowners to hire rams from some breeder than to try to breed them, otherwise, even with good judges of sheep, there were sure to be a good many saved for rams that were not fit for breeding purposes, and had to be sold as stags or killed for dogs' meat. By hiring rams an owner could change the blood as occasion required, at a small cost compared with the purchase of good rams.

IRISH BLIGHT.

POSITION AT ORANGE.

The Department of Agriculture has been advised by the Bureau of Microbiology that the second lot of haulms taken from the potato patch that has occasioned dispute at Orange is infected with Irish blight. As stated in our columns yesterday, a previous report to the same effect was not accepted by growers. A special meeting of farmers was held, and the chairman (Mr. Bowen) and the Mayor (Alderman M'Kay) were appointed to visit the paddock with Mr. Stokes, the inspector, Department of Agriculture, who had first discovered the trouble, and obtain some more of the foliage, and send same to the Department of Agriculture for examination. As stated above, this second lot has also been declared infected.

This small paddock is the only infected part in the district, as far as is known at present.

Mr. A. J. Pinn, assistant inspector, Department of Agriculture, who conducted the spraying demonstration for potato blight at Orange on Monday, gives another demonstration at Millthorpe to-day. Mr. Pinn is specially detailed off to devote attention to the potato-growing industry, and is considered highly qualified in that direction officially. The way things are going, he will have his hands full, and he has a very important task before him in that of persuading the growers to adopt spraying. The present position, indeed, emphasises the necessity for considera-tion of the advisability of making spraying compulsory, for it it rather hopeless to expect that much general good will result unless this is done.

The wise grower will spray as a preventive realising that the protection is worth the cost and much more in view of the risk of great loss that is involved. But many growers will not take this point of view. They will go on in the same groove until it is too late. A difficulty in the way of the small man who recognises the value of spraying is the expense involved, and cheaper machines are certainly much to be desired. Joint ownership of spraying plants may point a way out of the difficulty.

BOMBALA.—A lecture was delivered in the School of Arts this week by Mr. R. Makin, inspector of the Department of Agriculture, the subject being "Potato Disease."

AGRICULTURAL BULLETINS.

MANURES AND FERTILISERS.

The Department of Agriculture has available a very useful publication on the above subject, by Mr. F. B. Guthrie, F.C.S., chemist of the department, who deals with his subject with as little technicality as possible. Some remarks are given as to the chemical composition of plants, and their food requirements. The reader is then faced with the two questions, How far do our soils supply these requirements, and in what direction are they to be assisted by manure? Speaking generally, the manurial ingredients which have to be supplied to the soil are phosphoric acid, potash, lime, and nitrogen. Other crop foods usually exist in the soil in sufficient quantities. Mr. Guthrie proceeds to discuss the needs of the different crops, dealing with cereals, root crops, grasses, leguminous crops, and fruit trees. Several pages are devoted to useful information on the nature, composition, and action of the various fertilisers named, methods of application to the soil, and so on. The different forms in which they are obtainable and the respective merits of each are also discussed. In this connection the following are dealt with:—Burnt lime, carbonate of lime, gypsum, bones and bone products, mineral phosphates, guano, superphosphates, Thomas' phosphated dried blood, farmyard manure, kainit, sulphate of potash, chloride or muriate of potash, seaweed, etc. A little space is also devoted to the subject of green manuring, an important factor in crop rotation. Simple hints are given on how to detect adulteration in artificial manures.

A companion bulletin to the above is the departmental "Formulae for preparing fertilisers." The important fact has to be borne in mind that the different crops require different treatment in this respect, and the chemist has set out in this publication formulae to be used for wheat, maize, oats, fruit trees (pip, stone, and citrus), grape vines, passions, clovers, legumens, grasses, potatoes, and other vegetables, tobacco and cotton. In addition, a list of fertilisers on the market is published, showing their constituents and manurial value, and a very useful diagram is given showing what manures may and may not be mixed together.

Farmers may obtain copies of these publications free from the Under-Secretary, Department of Agriculture, Sydney.

COUNTY OF CUMBERLAND.

Mr. Louis Hall, Rooty Hill, writes:—I noticed Mr. E. F. Rudder's reference to the land and products of the county of Cumberland, and am pleased to find that there are others besides myself who cannot understand why so much good land in the county of Cumberland remains unproductive. I am a South Australian, and only lately a settler near Rooty Hill. Having considerable experience in lands and agriculture, I can honestly affirm that few places offer so much encouragement to industrious settlers as the district near Rooty Hill, Blacktown, and Prospect. The advantages are so apparent—proximity to the greatest market in Australia, every railway facility, and good lands. The only drawback is the want of water. But many localities in the county have this in abundance for irrigation purposes. These districts have, like others, suffered from bad seasons. But that cannot be the cause of so much land so near to the city remaining uncultivated. Are the city people aware that they have at their backdoor sufficient land to supply most of their table requirements?

GRADING OF BUTTER.

APPRECIATED IN LONDON.

LONDON, March 3.

The announcement that the Federal Government will set going on July 1 next the system of compulsory grading of butter has been well received here; the trade papers have given prominence to the news. The colateral stamping on the box of the grade is an all-round boon to grocers, and all parties who desire to see Australian butter sold here on an honest fashion. But some surprise is expressed that the stamping of the grade on the case is to be confined to the superfine and first grades. Though one does not understand the reasons why this limitation was imposed, yet, it is obvious that it will work for good. For it will place a heavy premium on the first grades, and thus encourage the manufacture of superior butter in Australia. It is plain that all c.i.f. butter will have to come in the two grades named.

MEETINGS OF FARMERS.

COONAMBLE.—At the annual meeting of the Farmers and Settlers' Association Mr James Townsend was elected president, Mr. E. E. Berryman treasurer, and Mr. H. R. Cutter secretary.

DUBBO.—There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of the Trangie Farmers and Settlers' Association. The balance-sheet showed a credit of £42 5s 2d. Owing to the formation of the local P., A., and H. Association and its decision to hold a show this year, the farmers' carnival has been abandoned with a view to assisting in making the show a success. Mr. L. J. Perry was elected to represent the Trangie branch at the next western district council meeting to be held at Dubbo on May 5 and to move at that meeting, "That the council consider the question of the abolition of P.P. boards." The following officers were elected:—President, Mr. Horrigan; hon. treasurer, Mr. H. S. Small; hon. secretary, Mr. D. E. Rich; auditors, Messrs. P. W. Phillipps and J. Denoon.

HARDEN.—At a meeting of the local branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association it was resolved in reference to the demands of the Rural Workers' Union that a sub-committee of three be appointed to draw up rates of wages suitable for the district, and same to be discussed at the next meeting. It was unanimously resolved that a defence fund be formed, the minimum levy to be 5s per member. The opinion was expressed that the Farmers and Settlers' Association and Pastoralists' Union should work unitedly in resisting any unfair demands. It was resolved that every effort be made to get "No" carried at the forthcoming referendum vote.

YERONG CREEK.—At the annual meeting of the Yerong Creek P.S.A. the report showed that much good work had been done. The balance-sheet showed a small debit balance. The election of officers resulted:—President, Mr. J. S. Adams; treasurer, Mr. J. H. Plunkett; with the retiring president, Mr. J. D. Smyth, as secretary.

YOUNG.—At the last meeting of the Farmers and Settlers' Association the election of officers resulted:—President, Mr. D. Hunter; vice-presidents, Messrs. A. Chant and J. O'Brien; treasurer, Mr. O. S. Nolan; secretary, Mr. G. S. Whitenan.

IMPORTATION OF SEED POTATOES.

CONSIGNMENT DESTROYED.

HOBART.—Federal laws are harassing at many points. An instance of this has occurred here. Mr. Reid (Reid and Stride), of Hobart, has had considerable experience of potato growing in Scotland, and with the aid of relatives he managed to procure 1cwt of seed of a frost-resisting potato now in such great demand in England and elsewhere, as being the only real frost-resister yet produced. These seed potatoes were procured and consigned to Mr. Reid by the Ruapehu, which arrived last week, but the Federal quarantine officer at Hobart took charge of the consignment, and not only insisted upon the tubers being immediately destroyed, but called upon Mr. Reid to pay a fee for their destruction. Thus an effort to introduce a most valuable potato into Tasmania has been frustrated. Mr. Reid was made to pay the piper for his attempt to do so. There is plenty of land at the Nubeena Quarantine Station, where this small lot of potatoes might have been planted under quarantine regulations as to observation and inspection, such as are provided for under the Act and regulations. Just now, with Irish blight rampant in many districts, it is much to be regretted that this attempt to introduce such a new and useful variety has failed. There was not the slightest sign of disease or blemish on these potatoes.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.

GOSFORD.—A meeting of the committee of the A. and H. Association was held on Saturday evening, the president, Mr. F. Cox, occupying the chair. A statement of receipts and expenditure in connection with the recent show disclosed a profit of about £85, independent of the Government grant of £25. With the proceeds of the flower show, etc., the debt on the new showground will be reduced by about £2000 as a result of the year's operations. It was decided to hold the flower show in September.

TEMORA.—Mr. W. H. Byrnes was elected on Saturday night secretary of the Temora Agricultural Association, vice Mr. John Clark, resigned. The committee, with the exception of Mr. W. J. Cartwright (president), passed a motion of sympathy with the Melbourne implement manufacturers in their fight against the abolition of freedom of contract.

WEST WYALONG.—At a meeting of the committee of the Wyalong District P.A.H. and I. Association a plan of a structure to replace the one recently blown down, and also give increased accommodation, was submitted. It was resolved to ask the trustees of the grounds to sanction the borrowing of £600 for building purposes. The secretary's salary was fixed at £50 per annum, with a percentage for canvassed subscriptions. Mr. T. A. Smith was unanimously reappointed to the position.

DAIRYING.

LISMORE.—At a further meeting of various butter factories in the Richmond and Tweed districts it was decided to form a registered dairymen's union, and act in conjunction with the South Coast dairymen in holding a conference in Sydney, to which one delegate from each factory in the State should be invited, for the formation of a dairymen's union.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

DUBBO.—The freezing works have recommenced freezing operations.

HARDEN.—The season has been an exceptionally good one. Rain is now wanted to make a good winter. The rains in January are estimated to have caused a loss of about 10 bushels per acre. The general average is about 25 bushels. Ploughing is now in full swing. At least 25 per cent. more cultivation is anticipated than last year. The local rabbit factory intends resuming operations shortly. It has been decided by the Farmers and Settlers' Association to draw the attention of the local municipal council and shire council to the large number of Bathurst burrs at present growing, and to request that urgent steps be taken for their destruction.

SINGLETON.—The excellent season the district is passing through has created an extra demand for farm labour, which, however, it is difficult to supply. For men who can milk there is ample employment at good wages. Many of the men who come along the road have no knowledge of dairy work.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

KILLING TIMBER.

"Alpha" (Queensland).—We are not clear as to the particular matter referred to by you. One solution—3lb arsenic and 7lb soda, dissolved by boiling in half a kerosene tin full of water—has been repeatedly mentioned in these columns as being effectively used in the Gwandra district on green timber.—Ed. "S.M.H."

NODULES IN AUSTRALIAN BEEF.

EXPERTS TO BE ENGAGED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Whilst there is among scientists a consensus of opinion that the presence of worm nodules in beef from certain cattle bred in the tropical and semi-tropical portions of Australia is absolutely harmless as affecting the health of human beings, these inclusions are nevertheless unattractive. They depreciate the value and reputation of meat products, and the most careful steps are being taken to avoid the possible exportation of any beef in which the nodules are present. The question of their origin and possible eradication has exercised the personal attention for some time past of the Minister for Customs, and Mr Tudor has now under consideration the question of a very thorough and comprehensive investigation of all the circumstances attending the prevalence of these nodules, the area over which the cattle are found to be affected, and particularly in regard to the origin and possible eradication of the trouble. To carry this out will involve considerable time, research, and expenditure, and the employment of the best available experts. Mr. Tudor is hopeful that it may be attended with success, and expresses the opinion that the expense is but a subordinate consideration compared to the possible loss which neglect may involve to one of the greatest of our primary industries, and as every State is interested he considers it is a subject in which the Commonwealth Government would be justified in extending every possible support and financial assistance.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

THREE HOURS IN A WELL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Robert Reardon, of Shamrock Hill, Gordon, found his house on fire on Saturday night. He went to a well close by for a bucket of water, and fell into the well. The water was 6ft deep, and Reardon remained in it, just keeping his head above water, for about three hours. He was rescued by Messrs. Winter and Dicker about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. The house, with its contents, was destroyed.

A POISONED FOOT.

"IT GOT SO BAD HE COULD NOT PUT HIS FOOT TO THE GROUND."

"My little boy Jim, aged 14, had a very bad poisoned foot for some time," writes Mrs. E. Adams, 18 Edinburgh-street, Burnley, Vic. "It was caused through a rusty nail running up it some time ago. It got so bad that he could not put his foot to the ground, or put his boot on. It was very much inflamed, and had proud flesh round it. We tried all sorts of ointments on it, but they did him not a bit of good. It was three times as big as the other foot, and it used to throb with the pain. I really did not know what to do with it. His father said he would have to go to the hospital with it, but it happened that a friend brought me a box of a new ointment called Rexona, and asked me to try it. My little boy said 'Yes, mother, I will try anything for a little relief,' for he could not sleep at night, with the pain. So he used the ointment, and the next day he said, 'Why, mother, my foot does not feel half so sore, and I can stand my whole weight on it.' He kept on using it for a week. At the end of that time he was completely cured. Rexona seemed to draw out all the poisoned matter from the sore, and then healed it up clean and fresh. My little girl's hands were also covered with sores. They were so bad that she was sent home from school. She had the sores for some time. I could not get them cured until I put Rexona on them, when her hands were cured in a very short time."

CRIPPLED BY RHEUMATICS

Leg Swelled to Enormous Size—Tortured by Terrific Pain—Unable to Sleep—Every Description of Treatment Proves Useless.

ANOTHER GREAT VICTORY FOR ZAM-BUK.

MRS. SARAH OLLER WARD, resident of 47 Waterloo-street, Surry-hills, Sydney, unfolds a pitiable story of suffering which Zam-Buk alone ended, as follows:—

"A few months ago I had a bad attack of Rheumatics, and so wonderful are the benefits I have derived from Zam-Buk that I wish to express my appreciation of, and gratitude to, its marvellous virtues.

"The Rheumatics settled in my right knee and down the front of the leg. My leg became swollen to an enormous size, the pain being excruciating — indeed, I could hardly bear a sheet to touch me, and used to dread anyone to walk across the floor for fear they would shake the bed. To bend the limb was out of the question, and on several occasions when I tried to get up, even when the leg was only inclined towards the floor, the pain would become so terrific as to force me to cry out in agony. Sleep was an impossibility, and I consider that mine was as severe a case of Rheumatics as it is possible to have.

"I tried all sorts of treatments and so-called remedies in my endeavours to ease the torturing pain—everything I could think of, saw advertised, or that was recommended—but they all proved absolutely useless, and the Rheumatics grew worse and worse, until finally the complaint appeared to be as bad as it could possibly be, and the limit of endurance seemed to have been reached.

"Just at this time my daughter came to visit me to see how I was getting on, and the conversation turning to the different treatments I had used, and their utterly powerless effect, she asked me if I had tried Zam-Buk. She felt sure it would not fail to prove just the remedy I was in need of, as both she and her husband had put it to some severe tests for extraordinary complaints that skilled medical treatment had entirely failed to cure, but over which Zam-Buk had proved completely victorious. Indeed, my daughter has great faith in the wonderful powers of Zam-Buk, and, catching her enthusiasm, I determined to take her advice, and give the balm a trial. So we procured a pot of Zam-Buk, and my daughter rubbed it very gently into my leg and all over the affected parts, and after a little while—when Zam-Buk had soaked thoroughly through the pores, and into the under-tissues—I felt greater relief than I had experienced for a long time. The pain was less severe, and my leg felt soothed and more comfortable. Continuing with the Zam-Buk treatment, every day after that showed a marked improvement, and soon the swelling subsided, the painful symptoms disappeared, the leg assumed its natural size, and at last, thanks to Zam-Buk, I was able to venture out of bed. I feel sure Zam-Buk has driven the Rheumatism completely out of my system, because I have not had a return of the complaint since, although the weather conditions have been so unfavourable for Rheumatics and similar muscular affections.

"The joy I feel in being able to get about again makes me fully recognise the wonderful powers and curative qualities of Zam-Buk, and I shall ever voice its virtues, and recommend it to all in need of a genuine and reliable soothing, healing, and antiseptic Balm."

TRAINED NURSES' PRAISE FOR ZAM-BUK.

Nurse Smith, residing in Underwood-street, Paddington, Sydney, says: "After extensive experience, I can confidently say that Zam-Buk is the best Healing Balm I have ever used. In my professional work I often have urgent need of it, as, because of its great antiseptic virtues, I find it unequalled for use in cases where dangerous symptoms threaten, as in the after effects of child-birth. Personally, I have used Zam-Buk for a very severe burn on my hand, caused by a box of matches exploding whilst I was striking a match. The pain was excruciating, and, fortunately, having a pot of Zam-Buk in the house, I smeared the Balm all over my hand. The burning pain was at once soothed, and in a very short time my hand was quite better; indeed, the following morning not a trace of the burn could be seen. I have also proved Zam-Buk very efficient for various cuts, sores, and injuries."

NURSE SMITH says: "Zam-Buk is the Best Healer I have ever used."

Nurse Kohmann, of 156 Jersey-road, Woollahra, Sydney, a professional Ladies' Nurse, who has passed examinations of the highest degree, and possesses a thorough knowledge of medicine writes of Zam-Buk as follows:—"I consider Zam-Buk uniquely superior as an antiseptic and germicidal application for poisonous wounds, ulcerated sores, and cuts of extensive nature. I always use Zam-buk in my professional duties for lacerations in bad cases in child-birth, and I find it soothing and mild in action, and an efficient healer. My grandchildren were troubled with very bad sores on the head, which remained for some time. I advised my daughter to use Zam-Buk, which healed the sores in a very short time. I have not had one instance where Zam-Buk has failed, and recommend it to my patients always."

Nurse KOHMANN says: "I have never known Zam-Buk to fail."

RUB ZAM-BUK IN TO RUB PAIN OUT.

Zam-Buk is invaluable for Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Scratches, Abrasions, Boils, Eczema, Pimples, Running Sores, Scalp Diseases, Poisoned Wounds, Festering Sores, Bad Legs, Ulcers, Abscesses, Ringworm, Psoriasis, Diseased Ankles, Teething Sores, Barber's Rash, Swellings, Stiffness, Scabs, Itch, Bed Sores, Face Sores, Sore Lips, and all injured and diseased conditions of the skin. Zam-Buk is also unequalled for Pimples, Blackheads, Eruptions, and all Spring Skin Troubles; while as an embrocation for all deep-seated local pain, such as Rheumatism, Sciatica, etc., it is unsurpassed. Zam-Buk is obtainable from all Chemists and Stores at 1/8 per pot, and 3/6 family size (containing nearly four times the 1/6 pot), or post free from THE ZAM-BUK COMPANY, 39 Pitt-street, Sydney.

OBJECTS.

The Company is being formed for the purpose (inter alia) of purchasing, acquiring, and taking over as a going concern, together with all rights and subject to all agreements, etc., as from the 30th April, 1911, the proprietary undertaking known as "The Manly Electric light and Power Works, Ltd."

Manly is regarded as one of the finest seaside resorts in the world, and is becoming more popular every year, as is evidenced by the fact that within the short space of four years it has more than doubled its population.

The Vendor Company commenced operations in December, 1907, and during this period the business of the Company HAS INCREASED TO SUCH AN EXTENT THAT THE CAPACITY OF THE PLANT HAS BEEN CONSIDERABLY OVERTAXED, AND THE OUTPUT IS ONLY ABOUT ONE-HALF OF THE DEMAND.

It is proposed to instal additional Plant to that now existing, and by so doing both the capacity and efficiency of the Plant generally will be materially increased at a comparatively small first cost.

SUCH ADDITIONS WOULD COST ABOUT £2500, AND BY THE EXPENDITURE OF THIS AMOUNT THE MAXIMUM ANNUAL CAPACITY OF THE PLANT COULD BE INCREASED TO 320,000 UNITS AS AGAINST 235,200 UNDER THE EXISTING PLANT, AND AT A REDUCED GENERATING COST OF 1.8 PENCE, WHICH AT THE PRESENT AVERAGE SELLING RATE WOULD SHOW A NET ANNUAL PROFIT OF, APPROXIMATELY, £2000.

The Manly Council has passed a resolution ensuring to the new Company an Agreement on lines already arranged for a period of 20 years, which practically ensures the new Company the sole right to supply electric light and power in Manly and district for that period.

Negotiations are pending with the Commonwealth Government for the Quarantine Station. Also with the Manly Hotels, Limited, who intend installing electric light and lifts throughout their new buildings, now in course of erection, and many other houses, both public and private, have made application for connection, which the Company has been unable to supply in consequence of the limited Plant.

ASSETS.

The assets to be taken over by the Company, with their respective values and according to the books of the Vendor Company, are as follows:—

New Power House Acct. / Building, Land, and Premises	1,489	2	5
Plant	4,742	15	5
Poles and Mains	1,270	14	1
Meters	238	7	7
Arc Lamps	139	9	9
Tools	31	2	3
Goodwill				2,488	8	8
				£10,500	0	0

and the Vendors agree to accept as the full purchase consideration for the above the sum of £6500 cash, payable as to £3500 after adoption of the Purchase Agreement by the new Company, and as to £3000 in two equal instalments of £1500 at three and six months after such adoption, and 4000 fully paid up shares.

Certain sums, amounting approximately to £920, expended in recent additions to plant, will be paid for in cash by the new Company.

ADDITIONS.

PROPOSED ADDITIONS TO PRESENT PLANT:—

The services of the well-known Consulting Engineer, Mr. G. A. Julius, have been called into requisition, who estimates the Revenue and Expenditure, after certain additions and improvements have been effected, amounting to approximately £2500, to be as follows:—

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURE WITH INCREASED PLANT:—

AVERAGE OUTPUT in units per day—
LIGHTING—650 units per night over average of 6 hrs.
POWER— 280 units per day of 8 hrs.
930 units per day.

AVERAGE PRICE REALISED PER UNIT SOLD:—
One 650 units for 365 days at 4½d per unit, and 280 units for 300 days at 2¼d per unit.
Average all-round price of 3.97 pence per unit.

TOTAL ANNUAL SALE—321,250 units, say 320,000, at say 3.9d per unit=£5300 approximately.

WORKING EXPENSES—Cost in pence per unit sold including working expenses, maintenance and depreciation at 14 per cent.=3d per unit.

NET PROFIT PER UNIT SOLD=1.90 pence per unit.

NET PROFIT PER ANNUM at 1.90 pence per unit—£2,500—16 per cent. on £15,500 capital paid up.

The Directors desire for the purposes of this Prospectus to take the low and conservative figures prepared by Messrs. Johnson and Johnson, Public Accountants, which are as follows:—

Estimated receipts subject to installation of additional Plant (as per Mr. G. A. Julius' report)	£5,200
Less Expenses, including Renewals and Repairs, Wages, Salaries, Directors' Fees, Insurance, Municipal Subsidy, Fuel, and Depreciation	3,275
Estimated Net Profit ..	£1,925

Equal to over 12 per cent. on £15,500 Capital called up.

The following contracts have been entered into:—
(1) Dated 30th March, 1911, between The Manly Electric Light and Power Works, Limited, first part, SEVERAL PARTIES second part, SEVERAL PARTIES third part, and Frederic George Parish, of Sydney.
(2) Between The Manly Electric Light and Power Works, Limited, of the first part, Francis Bell, Martin Becker, and Walther Staerker of the second part, SEVERAL PARTIES of the third part, SEVERAL PARTIES of the fourth part, and J. S. Richardson as Agent for the new Company.

These contracts and a draft of the Agreement before referred to, to be entered into with the Manly Council, may be inspected at the Offices of the Solicitors for the new Company. It is believed that these are the only contracts affecting the new Company, other than the contracts and engagements made by the Manly Electric Light and Power Works, Limited, in the ordinary course of its business. This specification must be accepted by applicants for shares as a sufficient compliance with the Companies' Acts.

APPLICATIONS accompanied by cheque may be sent to the Company's Brokers, or the Bank of Australasia, Sydney.

THE GOLD YIELD.

PERTH, Tuesday.

The gold yield for the month was 105,562oz, and for the past three months 332,097oz.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY.

Mr. Gregory, Acting Premier, states that the Western Australian Government has arranged to co-operate with the Federal Government in connection with the change of gauge on the Kalgoorlie section of the transcontinental railway. It is proposed to construct a 4ft 8½in line from Perth to Kalgoorlie, instead of putting a third rail on the existing narrow gauge line.

FEDERAL CAPITAL.

MODEL OF THE SITE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Commonwealth Government is about to issue an open invitation to city-designers of the world for the £2000 offered as prizes for the most suitable scheme on which to lay out the Federal city of Yass-Canberra. To enable competitors to more accurately meet the requirements of the locality a model of the 12 square miles of country selected for the actual capital has been made in fibrous plaster by the Sydney Technical College. It measures about 5ft by 5ft, and is constructed on a scale of 400ft to 1in in the horizontal, while the vertical is about 4 to 1, the exaggeration being introduced to give bolder effect to the physical features of the country. The mountains stand out in relief to the surrounding undulating country, while the Molonglo River winds a picturesque course through the hills. The proposed rail way track is shown, and the mineral deposits are also clearly indicated. Twenty of these models are to be prepared, and are to be exhibited at convenient centres throughout the world. They will be on view at Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide, Brisbane, Perth Hobart, Wellington, London, Washington, Paris, Berlin, and other places.

"OUTRAGEOUS INTERFERENCE."

ALLEGED UNION TYRANNY.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

Mr. James Anderson, who carries on a large milk business in the city and suburbs, said to a reporter on Monday that he had been subjected to outrageous interference on the part of officials connected with the Drivers' Union. Recently he had a stableman in his employ, and for certain reasons relating to the carrying out of his duties he paid him off, and gave him another week's wages in lieu of notice. He then engaged another man, and on the following Tuesday Mr. Pegler, organiser to the Drivers' Union, was seen to enter his (Anderson's) yard, and to converse with his men. Mr. Pegler called a meeting of the men for the following evening, and the result of this was that the men in his employ refused to drive his carts unless the new hand was dismissed.

He saw Messrs. Pegler and Gunn (secretary to union) relative to the subject, and they could bring nothing forward against the man, excepting that he was a non-unionist. The man expressed willingness to join the union. They gave him a card of membership, which was to be ratified at a meeting of the union on Saturday night if members were willing to accept him. The carters were then asked to allow the man to stay with them until his membership of the union was approved, but they terrorised and scared him to such an extent that he left the yard on Saturday afternoon. Another deplorable feature in connection with the incident, Mr. Anderson concluded, was that this man's wife was confined on Saturday night, and he is now probably out of employment.

BAPTIST CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The second Australian Baptist Congress was continued to-day. Delegates met at a complimentary missionary breakfast at Sargent's cafe, at the invitation of Mr. T. W. Jackson, J.P. (chairman of the Victorian foreign mission committee). Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Henry Clark (N.S.W.), and the Rev. Lewton Richards (Vic.). When the sittings were resumed the Rev. L. E. Tranter (Blackheath) read an interesting paper on "Home Missionary Problems." The Rev. J. Dunkley, superintendent of home missions (Tas.) read a paper on "Home Missions Opportunities." The Rev. A. J. Waldock, superintendent of home missions (N.S.W.), said that the Church should pay its home missionaries decently.

EASTER ENCAMPMENTS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

It is expected that over 5000 officers and men will go into camp in Victoria at Easter this year. This is a little greater than 80 per cent. of the forces. The number is 1500 more than the attendance at the Kitchener camp last year. There are various reasons for the increase. One is that several new corps have been formed since the last camp. Another is that the attendance in camp is for the first time compulsory; the third is that volunteer infantry regiments have been turned into militia, and will receive camp pay. The principal camp will be at Kilmore, where 4500 men are expected to assemble.

CASUALTIES.

SNAKE BITES.

MURWILLUMBAH, Tuesday.

While a young man, Charles Browning, was walking home at Dunbible he was bitten on a leg by a snake. He tied a ligature above the wound, continuing his journey, and did not receive medical attention until more than an hour later.

On Sunday afternoon a young lad named Budd, living at Murwillumbah, was bitten by a black snake.

Both patients are now out of danger.

COLLISION BETWEEN CYCLISTS.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

While Mr. E. Smith, of Bodangora, was cycling to Wellington, he collided with another cyclist coming in the opposite direction near Ward's corner. The unknown cyclist escaped without injury, and jumped on his machine and rode away, but Mr. Smith had his shoulder dislocated by the fall.

DRAGGED BY THE STIRRUP.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

A boy named Bertie Green met with a serious accident in the paddock at the rear of the Geurie Public School. After coming out of school he mounted a pony belonging to a son of Mr. W. F. Stephenson, and was either thrown or fell off. His foot caught in the stirrup, and he was dragged about 50 yards before the stirrup-leather came away from the saddle and released him. First-aid was rendered by Mr. Kilgannon, stationmaster, and on medical assistance being obtained it was found that the lad had sustained serious injuries.

FALL FROM MOTOR CYCLE.

LOCKHART, Tuesday.

Last evening Bert Lamrock, riding a motor cycle, was following a motor car, occupied by R. S. Drummond, which met a motor car occupied by Mr Collins, and driven by Mr. Greenward. In the dust raised by Drummond's car Greenward did not notice Lamrock until almost on top of him, and then he swerved the car, but not sufficient to escape upsetting Lamrock. When treated by Dr. Hamilton, one of Lamrock's legs was found to have been almost dissevered. He also had a nasty wound in one of his thighs, and a serious fracture of the skull.

RUN OVER BY A TRAIN.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

Last night a man named M'Intyre was run over by a train. His leg was badly crushed. He was taken to Goulburn Hospital, where this morning the leg was amputated below the knee.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

MILLTHORPE, Tuesday.

The driver of the second division of the Western mail, arriving here at 10.30 p.m. on Friday, reported to the night officer that he had noticed something lying near the line close to the lower points, resembling a man. On an investigation being made a man was discovered lying alongside the line, his hat being right on the track. He had evidently been crossing the line, when he tripped and fell, rolling just clear of the line.

MISS JAMIESON'S CONCERT.

A charming entertainment was provided last evening at Miss Lizzie Jamieson's concert in the Y.M.C.A. Hall. Miss Jamieson, who was enthusiastically encored, gave three solos—Handel's "Prostrate Before Thee," "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan, and Roeckel's "Angus M'Donald." Mr. Harry Hardy sang "The Delaware's Farewell" and "O Flower of all the World," while Mr. Percy Herford contributed "I Fear No Foe" and "Thy Sentinel am I." Miss Annette Kerr gave two violin soli—"Feu Follet," by Papini, and "Hejre Kati," by Hubay, while "Charlie," a recitation, was rendered by Miss Iona Angus. Miss Gertrude Palmer played two piano soli—Liszt's "Liebestraum" and an "Etude" by Chopin.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

This morning the plan opens at Paling's for the opening on Saturday evening next, at Her Majesty's Theatre, of the fifth of the J. C. Williamson pantomimes. "Jack and the Beanstalk" will introduce Miss Sybil Arundale as Jack, and Mr. Neil Kenyon as the Dame. These well-known English artists will be associated with Miss Nellie Firmin (Princess), Mr. Jack Cannot (King), and new specialty artists, the Doherty Sisters, and the Pantzers (acrobats), and with a long list of former favourites. Gorgeous spectacular scenes, marches, and ballets are promised. Her Majesty's Theatre will now remain closed for the preparation of this elaborate extravaganza.

The final performance of "Via Wireless" attracted a great audience to Her Majesty's Theatre last night, when the great tableaux of the foundry and the shipwreck, backed up by the interest of the dramatic love story, assisted in the success of a hearty send-off to the J. C. Williamson Company, which sails to-day for Auckland. At the end of the evening there was a scene of much enthusiasm, and all the principals were called before the curtain.

At the Theatre Royal "Our Miss Gibbs" is pursuing a career of undiminished prosperity, and the Royal Comic Opera Company is certain to attract crowded houses with the popular Gaiety piece as its holiday attraction. There will be a matinee this afternoon. Next Wednesday Mr. J. C. Williamson will celebrate the 200th performance with a commemorative souvenir.

At the Criterion Theatre "A Woman in the Case," of which a matinee will be given to-day, has "caught on" strongly with the public, owing to the sensational working out of the plot, and the dramatic strength with which Mr. George Willoughby's Company sets it before the audience. Miss Mabel Trevor and Miss Elinor Foster's great scene causes a storm of applause nightly.

The Adelphi Theatre will be opened this evening under Mr. George Marlow's direction with the new and successful melodrama, "The Bad Girl of the Family," the name-part of which will be played by Miss Nellie Ferguson (as Bess Moore), with Mr. Robert Inman as Lieutenant Gordon, R.N., and Miss Ethel Buckley and other favourite members of the Marlow Dramatic Company in the cast. Eighteen elaborate scenes will illustrate the action. Mr. Chris. Simonsens is general manager at the new playhouse. The plan is at Elvy's.

Miss Nellie Stewart, who has been touring Tasmania and Victoria with signal success, taking in all the provincial centres, with "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," and a company led by Mr. Harcourt Beatty, will pass into this State next week. Miss Stewart will appear at Albury on Tuesday, ultimately visiting many of the Riverina centres, before touring the Western line and Northern Rivers.

At the Tivoli Theatre, both afternoon and evening, Mr. Harry Rickards's company will be headed by Mr. R. A. Roberts in his last four performances of "Dick Turpin," as on Saturday afternoon next the new English actor will introduce "Ringing the Changes" (seven new characters). Leipzig in his skilful conjuring feats, Daley Cooper and Mabel Lait (whose farewell is tonight), Florence Cramer Challis, Alexander Prince, and other leading artists will appear.

At the National Amphitheatre, where the usual matinee will be given to-day, and the brief amateur trials on Friday evening, the new programme will include the Potter-Hartwell Trio as "the agile three," Starr and Leslie in their novelty juggling act, Nat Clifford in new character songs, Sam Elton in his last nights of laughable crockery-smashing, Wilson and Hellmrich in an entirely new sketch, and the latest new subjects by the improved Miorama.

At the Standard Theatre the central features will include the Venus Trio in poses and shadow dances, Te-[illegible] the Maori artist, Claude Knight's sensational slide on his teeth down a line from the gallery to stage, the Aldous Trio, and Fred Elton's beautiful biograph views of the beauty spots of Launceston.

It is notified that the doors this evening will open at a quarter to 7 o'clock, and the performance will commence sharp at a quarter to 8 o'clock. Patrons are advised to be in their seats before this. At a quarter-past 4 o'clock this afternoon the "official" opening will take place, when the Lord Mayor of Sydney will preside.

CONCERT ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society's next concert is announced for Wednesday, April 19, at the Town Hall, when Herr Slapoffski will introduce Vincent d'Indy's "La Foret Enchantee," a brilliant new work, which will be allied with the overture to "Die Meistersinger," Dvorak's "From the New World" Symphony, and Delibes' "Sylvia Ballet." Mr. Lawrence Godfrey Smith will play Rubinstein's "Concerto in D Minor," with orchestra. Mr. Arthur Appleby will be the vocalist. His Excellency the Governor will attend. The plan will open at St. James's Hall next Wednesday.

The Royal Hawaiians, a group of 12 native singers and musicians from Honolulu, who have already won successes in Brisbane, where they opened their Australasian tour, will make their Sydney debut at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Saturday evening. The new party will include the popular double quartet known as the Hawaiian Glee Party, and some strangely captivating native melodies, national instruments, and the national dance, "The Hula," by the ladies, will be presented. The season in Sydney will be necessarily limited. The plan will be at Paling's, as notified.

The Sydney Liedertafel, which is about to take in hand the rehearsal of Granville Bantock's beautiful cantata, "Omar Khayyam," under Mr. W. Arundel Orchard's baton, will for that purpose require a number of ladies' voices. In another column Mr. Horace Chambers (hon. secretary) invites applications.

Miss Myra Gresty, lyric soprano, will this evening appear at a concert at the Y.M.C.A. Hall, which she has organised to raise a medal fund for the Sydney Eisteddfod exhibition and fair in May, entries for which close April 29. Miss Gresty will be associated with Misses Josie Miles, Leila Jeffreys, Minna Roberts, Messrs. Laurence Phillip and Charles Rolfe, Cyril Monk, Frank Donovan, and Frank Thompson.

Miss Eva Josephine Rudd, a new elocutionist from the studio of Mr. A. Bertram Flohm, will introduce several new pieces at her recital at St. James' Hall to-night. The artists assisting will be Misses Leah Myers, Vera Watt, Eileen Rogers, Mr. Cyril Monk, and Mr. Sid. Macdonald. The booking at Paling's has been unusually heavy.

To-morrow evening, at St. James's Hall, the Australasian Elocutionary Association will give an entertainment which will terminate with the Screen Scene from "The School for Scandal," with Miss Ella Crone (her farewell appearance), Mr. William Holman, and Mr. Harrison Allan in the cast. Mr. Warwick Mackenzie will play violin solos. The medals and certificates will be presented. The plan is at Paling's.

The Premier Players will perform the three-act farcical comedy "Mixed" at the Railway Institute to-night, under the stage direction of Mr. W. H. Levey, when also the dramatic episode "Reparation" will be staged.

An Easter choral festival will be held at the Petersham Congregational Church to-morrow night, and the afternoon of April 9, when the cantatas "Olivet to Calvary" and "The Crucifixion" will be rendered under Mr. G. C. C. Helleman's direction. Messrs. Neil, Remenschneider, and Sussmilch will be the principals.

Mr. N. J. Gehde announces that for his concert at the Town Hall on Good Friday Night he has secured the services of Miss Vera Parker, the Queensland contralto. The programme will include excerpts from the "Stabat Mater" by the Misses Elsie B. Peerless (soprano), Irene M'Pherson (mezzo-soprano), Ivy Allen (violinist), Messrs. George Whitehead (baritone), Maurice Chenoweth (tenor), Herr Carl Gotch ('cellist), and the Meistersingers' Double Male Quartet, and others. The plan is at Paling's.

Messrs. J. and N. Tait have made arrangements to give a concert in the Criterion Theatre on Good Friday Night. Amongst the artists engaged are Madame Grace Millar-Ward, Miss Ida Moran, Miss Leslie Harbutt, and Mr. Charles Rolfe. Herr Louis Hatterbach, the well-known Melbourne 'cellist, will also take part.

PICTURE ENTERTAINMENTS.

At the Lyceum Mr. Charles Spencer's new programme this afternoon and evening will include "The Test of Friendship," a modern drama, ending with a fight atop of a 20-story building; "The Preacher's Wife," a tragedy frustrated by love; "The Tenderfoot's Round-up," "Jack Fat and Jim Slim at Coney Island," "Historic Spots of Old London," and "Tontolini as Automobile Driver." Complete change to-morrow.

At the Glaciarium Mr. T. J. West's pictures this afternoon and evening will be dominated by "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab" (last week), in which the murder of Oliver Whyte and Old Mother Guttersnipe's doings in a Melbourne slum den have been drawing crowds. "The Preacher's Wife," "Historic London," and "The Girl Spy at Pittsburg" are in the new list.

West's will shortly exhibit the latest biograph triumph from the London Palace Theatre, a gorgeous spectacular reproduction of "Henry VIII," showing Beerbohm Tree as Wolsey, and all the other leading artists duly in place.

At the new Lyric Theatre, George Street, the continuous entertainments offered by the J. D. Williams' management (11 a.m. to 11 p.m.) will include "True to His Trust," the Western story of "The Ranchman's Personal," the farce comedy "Latest in Garters," the drama "Old Norris's Gal," the scenic study of "The Albion Hills," and such comic incidents as "Tontolini Automobiling." A splendid picture of the launching of the Warrego will be shown to-day.

The biograph drama "The Luck of Roaring Camp," a reproduction of scenes from Bret Harte's novel, will be shown at the Palace Theatre for a week from Saturday next; while two special matinees will be given on Wednesday week and on Good Friday. The film is 4000ft in length, and special auxiliaries were trained with Geo. Marlow's Dramatic Company for the pictures. Thus the real American cowboys and the great lumbering coach as used in those stirring Western days are seen. The plan is at Elvy's.

At the Empire Theatre, Oxford-street, the latest pictures on humorous and romantic subjects, with events of the day, and sensational incidents abroad, will form the new programme.

At the Colonial Theatre, where Mr. J. D. Williams presents entertainments from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m., the central novelties will include "The Girl Spy before Vicksburg," the pathetic drama "Fate's Turning," "Historic London," and the latest comic stories.

At the King's Theatre, George and Harris streets, continuous entertainments are notified from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m., during which the central star films will be the new A. B. series "Two Poor Sick Men."

At the American Picture Palace, Pitt-street, from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m., the new programme will introduce the pathetic drama "Fate's Turning," the comic story "Oh, You Sick Man," and many humorous and romantic dramas.

At the Bijou Theatre there will be an entirely new programme, in which the latest humorous and dramatic stories, and stirring events in Europe and America will be shown.

Although it was noon before the third Australian destroyer was launched, yet a magnificent picture of the spectacle was taken, developed, and printed, and screened at the Lyceum last night. The series evoked great applause from the crowded audience, who evidently appreciated the enterprise of Mr. Spencer in the matter. The film will be shown again this evening.

WIRTH'S CIRCUS.

This afternoon and evening, since matinees every Wednesday and Saturday are to form a feature in the Wirth season, there will be performances in the great tents at Prince Alfred Park by Messrs. Wirth Brothers' Circus. The handsome Adelia Sisters on the silver wire, Danny Ryan the new humorist, Mr. Philip Wirth's beautiful trained horses, Miss May Martin and her eight ponies, Miss Meers, the Martin Brothers, and many other artists will appear. The great menagerie is open to visitors every afternoon at the hour notified.

SKUTHORP'S BUCKJUMPING.

Skuthorp's Buckjumping Show will be open this afternoon and evening in Hawson-place, where the boys from the bush will show their horsemanship on various outlaws, including the notorious Tommy Burns; whilst buckjumping mules, bullocks, and ponies will endeavour to fling their riders sky-high. There will be a championship sheep-shearing contest for £50 on Saturday afternoon next.

An inspector of the Local Government Board has attended Northwood for the purpose of holding an inquiry into the Ruislip-Northwood town-planning scheme. There was some opposition from the County Council, a neighbouring rural council, and a golf club. The inquiry was the first held under the new Housing and Town-planning Act.

There is nothing so good as SHI-NOLEUM.

There is nothing so good as SHI-NOLEUM, so it will repay you well when ordering it to be firm and insist on getting what you ask for. There are so many imitations on the market, that to ensure you satisfaction we would ask you to look well at the name—"SHI-NOLEUM," which is on every tin. It is not put up under any other name.

SHI-NOLEUM fills a need in every household. If you are a user of it you are no doubt as enthusiastic about its goodness as are your friends. They have been praising it ever since they began to use it.

The reason for the popularity of SHI-NOLEUM is not far to seek. It is because SHI-NOLEUM polishes and preserves Linoleum far better than any other preparation—easily, effectively, and economically. It feeds and fills the pores, keeps the pattern bright, and prevents the surface from cracking, thus making the Linoleum wear longer; in fact, if you use SHI-NOLEUM you will get twice the wear out of your Linoleum. And all this with such ease and certainty—no waiting for it to dry—no spilling—no waste—and no hard work—you just apply a little of the paste lightly, and then a few rubs with a soft cloth will bring up a brilliant, lasting shine that will be the pride of your household and admired by all. SHI-NOLEUM will save you money, too, because, after a few applications you will not have to use it so often—a rub with a soft cloth will renew the shine with all its original brightness.

The usefulness of SHI-NOLEUM is not confined to Linoleum only. Not by any means. You will find it unequalled for use on Furniture, Wood, Floors, Tan Boots, and all Leather Goods.

SHI-NOLEUM'S goodness is not the result of chance or accident. It is because SHI-NOLEUM is a perfect preparation. Many housewives have tried other preparations only to be disappointed, and then some friend has suggested SHI-NOLEUM, and immediately all linoleum troubles have vanished. Try SHI-NOLEUM to-day. Purchase a tin from your storekeeper. If he says he does not keep it, fill in and mail us this coupon, and we will post you a sample tin free to test at our expense.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1911.

WARREGO DAY.

The launch of the Warrego was accomplished yesterday with all due eclat, and in the presence of a large gathering of citizens. The smoothness of the technical details of the function reflected credit on all concerned with them, and in that connection much more than a mere formality of congratulation is due to the superintendent of the Fitzroy Dock, under whose direction the ship has been constructed and committed to the water. In Mr. Cutler, indeed, it may be claimed that the Commonwealth has an expert officer, whose work in the past gives every warrant of his ability to handle the greater projects of the future. Under his supervision Fitzroy Dock has grown steadily in public esteem as being able to meet public requirements, and it now holds the general confidence of the community as an institution well prepared even for the great tasks proposed for it. For all that strength of public reputation, Mr. Cutler and the skilled workers who are his associates well deserve appreciation. The speeches at the luncheon following the ceremony yesterday were under all the disadvantages of an occasion small in actual event, and great only in the perspectives of the imagination. Such occasions are invariably difficult for any but great masters of speech, and yesterday's function cannot truthfully be said to have escaped the disadvantage usual to its kind. The utterance of the Governor-General, nevertheless, may well be welcomed, if only for the fact that, being one of the very few public statements remaining to him in that office, it was also one of the forthright, clear-thoughted kind which we have come to expect from Lord Dudley. His warm appreciation of the Australian naval policy as one demanding similar grit to that by which our forefathers won through their difficulties was as well-timed as his careful insistence upon the point that that policy implies provision of "a section of the armed naval forces of the Empire." Mr. Holman, apparently somewhat more than usually weighted by the importance of the occasion, emphasised the fact of the actual construction of the ship here, and the auspiciousness of the day's event in its relation to the future; while Mr. Fisher, in response, was admirably clear in his summing-up of the enterprise, and admirably practical in his insistence upon the work to be done towards its fulfilment. Moreover, and not least in point of interest, the Prime Minister suggested definitely that one of the functions of the Australian fleet unit would be that of "acting in co-operation with the navy of the mother country in every matter which was essential to her and our honour." That involves, of course, a policy not yet within measurable distance of realisation, but it involves also a point upon which much debate, and not a little confusion, have already been centred. But, after all, the occasion had in it no slightest call for controversial differences of detail. The one broad fact which must have been obvious to everyone of that crowd standing silent at the sight of the inanimate mass poised momentarily upon the slips and slowly gliding towards the water below, there to take life as a ship of the sea—the one fact surely obvious was that here, if ever, was represented a fine undertaking. It may prove to be a task too great for the powers available to us, but we do not think it will; it may prove us to have been less wise in our national enthusiasm than we should have been; but we hope it will not. But whether it does so prove or no, it will certainly prove us not lacking in that spirit which is one of the greatest attributes of our race, the spirit that is of high adventurous courage.

THE PERIL OF THE CONSTITUTION.

The most earnest business all the Labour advocates have in hand is to persuade the electors that the referendum proposals are little harmless, necessary things, that involve no fundamental tragedy to the Constitution. That is a view we cannot accept, and we sincerely hope the electors will not be deluded into accepting it. The proposed alterations must be read in their literal sense, and considered in their widest implication. When the average elector notes how carefully the Labour advocate avoids the implication he should redouble his watchfulness. Mr. Wade, who is at any rate an acute lawyer, put the case for the real incidence of the amendments on the Constitution very well the other day. He reminded us in timely fashion that that great federationist, Sir Henry Parkes, held closely to the ideal that the rights of the existing States should be maintained intact, except to the minimum extent it was needful to sacrifice them to accomplish a common purpose. That must remain the guiding star for the policy of the federalist. So long as we keep our eyes upon it there is little danger from will-o'-the-wisps, such as Mr. Hughes uses for his lantern in dark and quagmire regions. It is, of course arguable, at any time, that further powers must be granted to the Commonwealth; and in an hour of real need only a fool in his folly would preach State rights. But the doctrine of State rights is no delusion, and no snare; and the remembrance of it at this crisis will save us from the most serious blunder into which the short-cut politician, who has an eye for nothing but his own immediate purpose, would lead us if he could. As Mr. Wade quite rightly points out, the alterations for which our assent is asked would give us over to the Commonwealth bound hand and foot as to our most sacred and intimate concerns; it is only part of the irony that they would hand us over to Labour also.

Mr. Hughes, with his accustomed subtlety, attempts once more to escape from the plain meaning and the formally-expressed intention of the alterations now discussed. With regard to railways, he alleges that the effect of the amendment will be limited to strictly industrial disputes. But we all know how elastic a phrase this is, and how much political ground it may be made to cover. If the Commonwealth can come in and control absolutely labour conditions on our railways, if such interference is the price it is in effect going to pay for political support, then de facto it is robbing us of our railways altogether, robbing us of all freedom of control, and binding us to any system of fares and freights its labour conditions make possible—and that cannot mean anything else than a general rise all round, and a general slackening in efficiency of control. The unionist, intelligent as he is, will not be slow to turn round and say we are not his masters; and he will be quite right once the referendum is carried. If we want to control our own property we must vote against it. Mr. Hughes is quite wrong in saying that Mr. Wade himself proposes a violation of the existing contract. Mr. Wade's suggestion for a new convention is not a happy one. Nothing of the kind is necessary, or has been called for by public opinion. But Mr. Wade's point merely was that if a fundamental alteration in the Constitution is demanded it should be put forward as fundamental, and not disguised in Labour sophisms carefully calculated to appeal to Labour support. This is the real point Mr. Hughes has to answer if he can. Mr. Hughes on his side is quite right in saying that the question merely is, whether the enlarged powers demanded are for the benefit of the people or not; and we reply emphatically that they are not, and were never intended to be. They were intended to benefit the political Labour party, and to give it such a hold over industry and enterprise, and incidentally over the unionist worker who is supposed to vote Labour at the cost of his conscience, that an indefinite lease of life would be assured to Mr. Hughes and his friends. But that is the length and breadth of their virtue—or the head and front of their offending.

THIS CENTURY'S WORK.

From London comes the news that during the first quarter of the year 2100 assisted and nominated emigrants left for this State. This represents an increase of well over 100 per cent., as compared with the departures during the corresponding portion of last year. Doubtless these figures will be pointed to with some degree of satisfaction by those who are directly responsible for our immigration campaign, and the inference we shall be expected to draw is that the important business of attracting the right sort of people to our shores is being attended to with energy and enthusiasm. But what are the facts? They are, that of all the sparsely-populated parts of the globe Australia is being filled up most slowly; that those countries that more directly compete with us in oversea markets as great producers of primary products are simply losing us in the race for more people. Argentina, the United States, and Canada are getting more people in a year than we are getting in a decade, even at the accelerated rate now advised. Canada alone received last year 673,919 persons from abroad, according to the official figures supplied by the Superintendent of Immigration. The United States similarly added to its population during the same period by between 900,000 and a million people. The share of Argentina was about 150,000. Nor are we even keeping up to our own earlier records. In the gold-digging decade (1851-61) Australia attracted 576,328 immigrants, while in the decade 1881-91 386,900 persons arrived from oversea. It is only when we compare present figures with those covering that period of stagnation that followed the bank crisis of 1893 that we are enabled to derive any satisfaction at all. It is true that the population of the Commonwealth is growing faster now than at any previous time, but this is wholly attributable to the natural increase of births over deaths. To show how these affect the returns it may be remarked that, whereas in the earlier decade above quoted the addition to our people from this source was only 168,660, in the later decade the increase was 615,505. So the favourable death-rate more than counterbalances the comparatively low birth-rate.

It has been urged that there is some difficulty in getting the right kind of immigrants, and that this partly accounts for the snail's pace of our immigration campaign. In this connection we would direct attention to the letter of a lady correspondent which appears in this issue. This lady tells us that she wrote recently to a London paper on the subject of the scarcity of domestic help in Australia. The result was the receipt of no fewer than 155 letters from all parts of the United Kingdom, the whole of the writers seeming most anxious for information. Now, persons of this class do not write letters to foreign correspondents for the fun of the thing. A large percentage of them might on investigation be rejected, but the experience of our correspondent conclusively shows the interest that is now being taken in the Commonwealth, and it rather tends to discount the energy of our immigration campaign. It is noticeable that since the rejection by the Federal Government of the High Commissioner's scheme for advertising the Commonwealth, Sir George Reid has spoken less freely of the advantages of Australia as a field for immigration. He has done, and is still doing, exceedingly good work, but it is clear that his hands are tied. This is not as it should be. It is time that the selfish policy of the Trades Hall gave place to a more patriotic ideal, and this especially in view of the fact that this very selfishness is based on a misconception of the results that are likely to accrue from a large influx of people. Instead of its having the effect of giving less work it would inevitably create more. In yesterday's issue we gave some extracts from the report of Mr. G. A. Williamson, the organiser of the central emigration committee, who recently visited Australia in the interests of that body. His view, that the peopling of Australia should be one of the great works of the century, is one with which we cordially agree. The fact that still more vessels are being constructed to cope with the immigrant traffic is a sign of the times, and a favourable one.

WIRELESS FACILITIES.

The desirability of exploiting the resources of wireless telegraphy on our coast is so obvious as to hardly need argument, and Mr. Hunt, in an interesting letter which we gave yesterday, suggests yet another point of view. It is, however, well to realise that wireless, like all the other miracles of science, has its limitations. It is not, as some over-enthusiastic persons seem to think, a universal panacea against disaster. It is simply a convenient, inexpensive, and necessary means of communication. It has clearly a very general application as between ships and a coast, and for that purpose no very powerful installations are required. It would probably be excellent policy to instal wireless plants of short range at all lighthouses along the coast, taking it for granted that similar short-range apparatus would be carried by vessels trading along the coast. Such a plan represents the minimum that can be done towards exhausting the resources of science in the way of communication in time of need, and it is by no means beyond the financial resources of the Commonwealth once it assumes control of lighthouses. A great deal has been said lately, owing to the dramatic adventures of Mr. Staniforth Smith, of the need for wireless communication with such isolated spots as Papua; but that is a need that really requires no impending tragedy to enforce. The case is simply one of economy. We should take it as an axiom that we cannot afford to allow any part of Australia, or, indeed, any part of the South Pacific, to remain isolated; and in very many cases wireless affords a cheap and easy way out of the difficulty, especially as the plant can be readily managed by any ordinarily intelligent person with some acquaintance with telegraphy.

Mr. Hunt makes the important point that by means of such installations as are here suggested storm signals could be easily transmitted to vessels at sea. There is no possible doubt of the value of such signals to shipping any more than on the other hand there is any possible doubt that in such cases as that of the ill-fated Yongala they would prove ineffective. Those who go down to the sea in ships always carry their lives in their hands, and there will always recur moments when no foresight and no preparation can be of any avail. But that does not relieve us of the duty of doing all that is humanly possible to guard against disaster, and Mr. Hunt's argument is a very strong one. As meteorology becomes more and more of an exact, even if localised science, the weather bureau will be able to send out in advance increasingly accurate warnings. Even now it can do a great deal in this direction; and it may be remarked that shipping masters would be in a position to reciprocate in a very important and notable way if shore communications were at their disposal. As to this Mr. Hunt gives the timely hint that the Postal and Telegraphic Department should pursue the most broadly liberal policy with regard to messages that thus affect the well-being of the shipping of the Commonwealth at large. It would be useless to provide wireless installations and penalise their use by exorbitant charges. A medium and common-sense view has to be taken of the advantages that wireless places at our disposal, and we must not be led into supposing that they are in any way a substitute for caution or for careful equipment. But within its own field wireless has a part to play that we cannot afford to neglect, and that we have unfortunately neglected far too long.

THE UNION OF CHURCHES.

The gathering that met last evening in the Pitt-street Congregational Church, although numerically scarcely worthy of the importance of the subject, marked a further stage of the negotiations that have been in progress during the last ten years. It may be questioned as to how far the members of the Churches concerned realise the meaning of the movement that promises to bring together in one harmonious whole Congregationalists, Methodists, and Presbyterians. Those, however, who heard the address of Principal Harper would have no manner of misapprehension on the score of the painstaking earnestness with which the combined committees have gathered information and formulated a basis of union. The invincible optimism of Dr. Harper would make short work of the difficulties that lie in the way of organic union. There was, however, no disposition on the part of any of the speakers to ignore the seriousness of those lines of demarcation that differentiate the polity and ecclesiastical procedure of the parties to the proposed act of amalgamation. It is frankly acknowledged that on the practical side of the work of the Churches there is scarcely anything that could be considered a barrier to reciprocity. Whatever separates the particular Churches concerned is the heritage of the past, and under the pressure of the exigencies of the moral life of the community of to-day it is very widely felt that the way ought to be opened to such a rearrangement of the Christian forces embodied in these organisations as to enable them to be directed much more effectively towards the common good.

The argument for union is derived from the fact of the ever-deepening sense of the futility of divisions, where such are the outcome of theological views no longer held, or outward circumstances no longer existing. It is strengthened by the very patent facts of waste of power and perpetuation of jealousies through that overlapping, that has become the scandal of our times. The argumentum ad misericordiam was used by Dr. Harper with considerable effect as he told of a patch of country in Western Australia, the size of France, containing 12,000 men of our race, who are being steadily de-Christianised for want of the good offices of the representatives of the Christian Church. The weakness in the Church's grip upon city life is regarded as in some measure due to the lack of denominational co-ordination, although, as Lord Chelmsford pointed out, the work of the Churches as a whole is open to the friendly criticism of those who think there is a need for more concentration upon the amelioration of social conditions, the exhibition of a manly Christianity, and stronger meat from the pulpit. In any case, the movement to bring certain important denominations together is making progress, and if the function of the Christian Church is not mistaken by the ordinary layman there will be much satisfaction at the prospect of the area of denominational contention and strife being narrowed by the fusion of elements that hitherto have been regarded as incompatible. There is, of course, quite another side to the subject, which has doubtless been taken account of by the committees of the Churches, but which naturally had no place in last night's meeting. The inevitable tendency to perfect liberty in matters religious is towards the creation of diversity of operation and classification according to ever-arising new types. It would be a nobler, if a larger, task, to make the foundations of the new Church broader and stronger than those of the combining three, thus providing for diversities of opinion and varieties of working that are at present obliged to find expression outside the existing organisations. This interesting experiment is evidently in progress, and many important issues are involved. Can the Churches "make good?"

"The Week's Sport."—We commence to-day the publication of a weekly page of brightly written sporting gossip, in which recent events are passed in review, sidelights, and incidents brought under notice, and coming events discussed by experts whose special mission it will be to keep the readers of their respective sections well posted in all the news of the clubroom and the sporting field, and to supply from week to week all information necessary to those who wish to keep themselves well informed. Australians are a sport-loving people. The call of clean, wholesome exercise and recreation, whether ashore or afloat, in the bush or on the snowfields of Kosciusko, meets with a ready response from the youth and the adult. So wide and so varied is the range of sport that there is something for everybody, and it is for the convenience of "everybody" the publication of "The Week's Sport" has been decided upon. It covers 18 distinct branches of sport, viz., the turf, football, cricket, sailing, rowing, swimming, golf, bowls, tennis, baseball, lacrosse, motoring, billiards, cycling, athletics, pigeon homing, boxing, and angling.

The "Sydney Mail."—The pictorial section of this week's "Sydney Mail" is almost double its usual size. There are no fewer than 28 pages of pictures, including a supplement which will doubtless be treasured as a souvenir of a most important and historic event—the launching of the Warrego at Cockatoo Island yesterday. There are an admirable double-page engraving of the launching and several other large photographs of the ceremony. A feature of the issue is the illustration of the Middle West, embracing Forbes, Parkes, and Peak Hill, and of Blayney, another western district with a great future. In the development of these localities the wheat-farmer is playing a big part. Australian bush life of to-day is pleasantly portrayed in four beautiful pictures, which bear eloquent testimony to the adaptability of the motor-car to country needs. The personal page this week is devoted to the House of Lords, and an informing article will enlighten many readers concerning the intellectual calibre of most of the peers. "Outdoor Australia," as usual, deals with a wide variety of subjects. An interesting page illustrates the prosperous condition of Queensland's pastoral industry. Several photographs illustrate recent developments in the British Navy. There are portraits of Lord and Lady Denman, taken last month in London, and among other illustrations are pictures of the Powerful in dock, aviation flights in Melbourne, and portraits of Senator Pearce, Mr. A. E. Cutler, Captain Amundsen, and the late Mr. J. F. Thallon. "Milroy" contributes his series of yearling pictures.

Launching of the Warrego.—About 50,000 people all told witnessed the launching of the Australian destroyer Warrego at Fitzroy Dock yesterday. The weather was ideal, and the river was alive with all sorts of gaily decorated craft. Mrs. Pearce, wife of the Minister for Defence, performed the ceremony in the presence of a brilliant assemblage of distinguished citizens, headed by the Governor-General. After the ceremony a banquet was held, at which speeches were delivered. The British, Commonwealth, and New South Wales flags were on the ceremonial platform, and, simultaneously with Mrs. Pearce's cutting of the ribbon, Mrs. Holman, Mr. Hughes (Federal Attorney-General), and Mrs. Arthur Griffith broke them. The whole of the proceedings are fully reported in other columns.

The Census.—The Minister for Home Affairs wishes it to be known that persons who by any chance were not recorded on Sunday night last must obtain the personal cards, under pain of the penalty provided in the Census Act, on which they will supply the necessary particulars concerning themselves. Such cards may be obtained at the office of the State Supervisor of Census, 36 Young-street. It is also requested that persons will take care that they are not returned in more than one place.

Federal Ministers.—The Prime Minister, with several of his colleagues, arrived yesterday from Melbourne to take part in the launching of the Warrego, and left by express at night on the return journey. On Thursday Mr. Fisher, with his colleagues, Senator Pearce and Mr. Batchelor, will go on by train to Adelaide and join the Orient liner Otway for London. Mr. Fisher remarked yesterday that the Imperial conference would, in his opinion, do more to bring the component parts of the Empire close together than all the correspondence imaginable. Nothing but good could arise out of representatives of Great Britain and the oversea Dominions meeting each other face to face. Touching on the referendum, Mr. Fisher said his confidence in its success was unshaken. The tone of every meeting he had addressed satisfied him that the people were prepared to trust the Federal Government.

A Grateful Pupil.—His Excellency Lord Chelmsford, in responding to a vote of thanks for presiding at a meeting held in the Pitt-street Congregational Church last evening, laughingly said his desire to attend that evening had been irresistible. "For nearly 40 years," he said, "I have sat on Sunday under some pulpit or other, receiving instruction, exhortation—and reproval. (Laughter.) Can you imagine, then, that when I received an invitation to occupy this pulpit, the invitation could be anything but irresistible to pay back in my own coin the debt of gratitude I owed for 40 years' instruction. (Laughter.) It is not for you to thank me, but for me to thank you for the opportunity you have given me." (Laughter and applause.)

Labour for New Caledonia.—Our Noumea correspondent, writing under date March 30, states that "labour at any price" is wanted in New Caledonia. Not only are the mines and smelting works in need of many workers, but the railway company also offers employment to large numbers. "We cannot get Frenchmen," adds our correspondent, "and Englishmen and Australians do not seem to want to come; but there is room for all. Labour recruiting is going on in Japan, but that is largely because workers are not offering from elsewhere."

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

His Excellency the Governor-General, attended by Mr. Walter Callan and Captain Rome, was present yesterday morning at the launching of H.M.A.S. Warrego, and subsequently at the luncheon given by the State Government.

His Excellency the Governor, attended by Captain Verney, private secretary, and Captain Dumaresq, A.D.C., was present yesterday at the launching of the torpedo-boat destroyer Warrego.

In the afternoon his Excellency, attended by Captain Verney, presided at the annual meeting of the Bush Book Club.

This afternoon his Excellency the Governor will open the Prince Alfred Hospital Fete in the Town Hall.

At the Public Works Department yesterday three members of the Ministerial party which recently toured the North Coast (Messrs. G. S. Briner, H. D. Morton, M.L.A., and O. V. Mr. G. T. Alcock, partner of Messrs. William Farmer and Co., is leaving by the P. and O. steamer Mongolia to-day on a visit to London and the Continent.

Mr. Saul Solomon, J.P., who died at his residence, Marlow, Bent-street, Paddington, and was interred at Rookwood yesterday, was a member of a long-lived family and old colonists, the average age of himself and surviving brothers and sisters being 74½ years. The deceased was an old resident of Liverpool, and for the past 18 years of Paddington.

The late Major C. A. Wilson, V.D., who died on Monday last at his residence in Macdonald-street, Paddington, was a well-known figure in many circles. He was born in Penrith in 1838, and commenced his education at the old Sydney College (now the Sydney Grammar School), and after attending St. James' Grammar School passed his University examination. He entered commercial life in the office of Messrs. Gilchrist, Watt, and Co., and while there he became associated and identified with the shipping interests of the port of Sydney, and was known amongst his associates as "Captain" Wilson. In those days the arrival of a 900-ton vessel was a notable event. When only 16 years of age the deceased joined the 1st Regiment of Sydney Volunteer Rifles, and retired in 1895 with the rank of major. His record of uninterrupted service with the volunteers was 41 years, and on his retirement the Victorian decoration was conferred upon him. For many years he was connected with various church choirs, and was one of the first choristers of St. Andrew's Cathedral. Few were more prominently identified with friendly society work than the deceased, who first became interested in them in 1868. After holding many responsible positions in benefit societies, he was, in 1898, elected Grand Secretary of the United Ancient Order of Druids, which office he held until the time of his death.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

As a rule you never can tell till the numbers go up, but Mr. Fisher professes to be a thought-reader. He says the referendum proposals will undoubtedly be carried. He is as deep in the people's minds as Alderman Cute was in the people's hearts.

But past experience has told us to beware of the extraordinarily cute, and the cute politician in particular is oftentimes sadly astray in his reckoning. The ordinary variety of thought-reader is not to be depended upon overmuch, but the political thought-reader is rarely to be depended upon at all. The wish is too often father to the thought.

For "cracking hardy" Mr. Fisher and Mr. Hughes cannot be beaten. Every day sees an extra nail or two driven into the referendum coffin, and each succeeding day these Federal gentlemen grow more confident and say they never felt better.

It is impossible to hide the truth from the public. Murder will out. It is quite obvious now that the Federal "buccaneers" are plotting the murder of State rights. The proposals of the Federal Government are so cunningly worded that it was only when the fierce light of public criticism was turned upon them that the people began to see their real meaning.

Mr. Hughes twits the people with "State frights." Is it any wonder that a serious attempt to rob us of our rights should make us frightened? This State, at all events, is neither prepared to be murdered nor to commit suicide.

What we have is ours. If we agreed to hand over all the powers the Federal Government wants—such as trade and commerce power without reservation, control over all corporations and over the conditions of labour and industry—we would find that very little was left to us. And the Federal Government would say, "Thank you; what's yours is mine, and what's mine is my own." A pleasant prospect!

Federation was accepted by New South Wales on the terms of equal representation with the smaller States in the Senate with great reluctance, and it only agreed because the legislative powers of the Federal Parliament were strictly limited and defined. But now it is proposed to absorb almost all the legislative powers the States possess.

The position taken up by New South Wales is that no such tremendous extension of the power of the Federal Parliament should be granted until, at all events, proportional representation be conceded. Mr. Fisher and his colleagues may call the people of New South Wales "little Australians," but we remember that when a man resorts to calling his opponents hard names he generally has a bad case.

Of our State Ministers—Labour men, too!—at least three are opposed to the Federal proposals. Mr. M'Gowen, Mr. Holman, and Mr. Beeby have plainly indicated their views on the matter. Yet these men, who dare to face the foe, are dubbed "little Australians." When the members of the Labour party cannot even agree among themselves, we may be sure there is something wrong, and it behoves us to hasten slowly. When doctors differ——

In Mr. Carmichael we have a "big Australian"—very big—so big that he has had to coin a new word to describe himself. Mr. Carmichael is a Supremist. It sounds delightful. "Let's have one great national Parliament," says Mr. Carmichael—just what they said in America, and what to-day they are sorry for. No Minister has ever got tired of office as quickly as Mr. Carmichael appears to have done.

Mr. Hughes is fond of pointing to the gigantic trusts and corporations of America. "We want to see they do not get a footing here," he says. He never mentions the agitation going on in the United States to-day for the clipping of the wings of the great Federal Parliament and restoring to the States many of the powers they so foolishly threw away in the early days of the Union. For the big trusts and corporations have grown up in America under the fostering care of the Federal Parliament. Had the States not thrown their powers away there had been less wholesale bribery and corruption in America than is the case to-day. The States could have taken steps to protect themselves, instead of being crushed by the Federal juggernaut.

New South Wales is well able to protect her own people against the evils of trusts. She can manage her own trade and commerce as well as anybody else, and perhaps a little better. She managed her postal and telephone services better than they are managed now. Her railways and tramways are well managed, and a change of management might easily mean chaos.

Vote NO!.

You can vote "yes" later on if you like, and if you are convinced by experience that the Commonwealth ought to have these powers. But if you vote "yes" now and find yourselves mistaken you cannot undo that vote.

GREAT CHAFFINCH CHARGES.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.

PERTH, Tuesday.

Apparently the last has not been heard by the Government of what is known as the Great Chaffinch case, in which Dyason, Bonwick, and Greenway were charged with having conspired together to affect by deceit the market price of shares in the Great Chaffinch mine. The case against those defendants was dismissed by the police magistrate (Mr. Roe) in the Perth Court yesterday. Dyason stated to-night that he intends applying to the Government for £1000 to reimburse him for losses and expenses entailed by his arrest and trial on the charge in which the Crown failed to make out even a prima facie case. It is understood that Greenway and Bonwick will make similar applications.

PERTH, Tuesday.

A robbery of slimes valued at £200 occurred at the Menzies gold mine last night. When riding away with the slimes on a bicycle the robber was intercepted by Constable Harris. The fugitive immediately fired two revolver shots at Harris, dropped the slimes, and escaped. Harris was uninjured.

MORE VIGOROUS DEFENCE POLICY.

APPEAL TO THE MINISTER.

GOVERNMENT AHEAD OF PUBLIC OPINION.

The resolutions dealing with national defence that were carried at a public meeting at the Town Hall under the auspices of the National Defence League and the British Immigration League on February 21 were put before the Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, by a deputation yesterday.

The deputation, which consisted of members of the two bodies named, the British Empire League, and other bodies interested in defence, waited upon the Minister at the Hotel Metropole. General Gordon was also present.

Professor Anderson Stuart, who introduced the deputation, pointed out that the Town Hall meeting was so completely successful that the bodies who had organised it thought it well to go further, and they were now engaged organising similar meetings in the other capital cities of Australia, if they met with the approval of the Minister. The resolutions carried at that meeting gave a pledge of support to any action that the Minister might take in providing for the adequate supply of arms and ammunition to enable the whole male adult population of the Commonwealth capable of bearing arms to take part in the defence of their country should the occasion arise, and urged that the Federal Ministry should extend the defence preparations by the inclusion of youths attaining the age of 18 in 1911 under the compulsory training provisions, the provision for compulsory adult training in 1911, and that steps should be taken to ensure as soon as possible a uniformity of gauge of the trunk lines of the railways.

Professor David said that when recently in England he learned that the greatest possible satisfaction was felt there by leading people at the action of Australia in providing for compulsory military service. It was a burning topic of conversation, and the strongest opinions were expressed by military and naval men that the old country would have to follow the example set by Australia. (Hear, hear.) One was impressed by the fact that in England people were carrying an annual burden of 44s per head in providing for defence, whilst in Australia their contribution amounted to only 12s 6d. That was too great a disparity, and they should bear their fair proportion. The resolutions before the Minister would appeal to every patriotic Australian, and he felt sure the Minister would be supported in putting them into operation. (Hear, hear.)

Captain Cope added that in a trip to the East he had been struck with the terribly unprepared state of the defence of the north of Australia. We were really living under the shadow of the great name of England that we did nothing to back up. He suggested the establishment of three wireless stations in the north, between Burketown and Port Darwin, as outposts. "It is up to the men to do some of the work," he said, "and not leave it all to the boys." (Hear, hear.) The resolutions had been passed in entire sympathy with the efforts of the Federal Government.

"I need hardly say," said Senator Pearce, "how pleased I am to receive this deputation, because it consists of representatives of every shade of political opinion and every rank in life, and it shows that they recognise that defence is their business. There has been in the past too great a tendency to look upon it as the business only of the Government. It is the business of everybody, and in that fact lies the value of public meetings, such as this one you hold. I look upon the meeting as one of the most friendly acts I have seen during my Ministerial life. (Hear, hear.) The more you hold of them the more I shall be pleased. People don't recognise the necessity of defence, and that it is going to cost money."

The Minister went on to say that the only way to secure an adequate supply of arms and ammunition was to manufacture them in the Commonwealth, and very few people realised how much it would cost. The cost of making cordite in the Commonwealth for the big guns would be absolutely prohibitive. So much had to be spent in proving it that they could import twenty times as much as they needed at the same cost. The Commonwealth could make ammunition for the field guns and rifles itself, although it would cost very much more than to import it. That the Government was doing, and during the present year ammunition would be turned out in the Commonwealth. On the question of arms, he pointed out that they had been toiling for some time to get even one small arms factory going, and few people recognised the difficulties they had met with. In the first place there was no labour in the Commonwealth with any experience of such factories. They were treading an uncharted path. They had advertised all over the world for a man to manage the factory, and had been unable to find one with sufficient qualifications. They would see that he had first to make a success of the rifle factory before he proceeded to do anything more. (Hear, hear.) When he did get the factory going, however, they would be able to work three shifts there, so that the estimated quantity they could turn out would be trebled. The question of buying rifles to keep up their supply was not being lost sight of.

He was not convinced, however, that it would be wise to extend our defence scheme in regard to compulsory training beyond what was already being done. Attention had been called to New Zealand, but New Zealand did not take the compulsory training beyond the age limit of 21.

Colonel Campbell: I beg your pardon. They go to 25.

Senator Pearse: I understand it was only 21; but, in any case, New Zealand had the volunteer system to start on, and we had the militia. Our system was found to be much the better. Our 20,000 militia were better than New Zealand's volunteers. I wish also to point out that to clothe and equip our forces under the new proposals we have exhausted the manufacturing resources of the Commonwealth. We sent to every factory in the Commonwealth to get tenders, and we failed to get sufficient to turn out our requirements within the time we needed them. If we had included all youths from 14 to 21 we would have been unable to equip them. Superhuman efforts were needed to get clothing for the number we have undertaken to equip. More would have been beyond us. We have bitten off just as much as we can chew.

Mr. David Fell: Could you not import it?

Senator Pearse: Yes; but that is not the policy of Australia.

Mr. Fell: But if that policy retards the preparations for defence, could it not be altered?

Senator Pearse: We have not lost sight of the necessity of having adequate forces. We had on paper, before the present scheme was introdduced, 25,000 militia and volunteers. They were without equipment, and the volunteers were not properly trained. We are spending this year £381,000 part of a vote of £500,000, to equip the existing militia, to enable them to take the field should they be called upon. We are trying to put the existing scheme on a proper footing, and I realise we have gone as far as, or further than, public opinion has.

Voices: No, no.

Senator Pearse: I think we have. You gentlemen meet only your own friends, and you are probably able to convert them.

A Voice: Lots of them are sorry they are not included under the compulsory training scheme. (Laughter.)

Senator Pearse added that in three or four years the lads who were now being trained would have as much training as the men in the militia forces, and in addition they still had the militia.

He fully agreed with the third resolution, that it was important that steps should be taken to ensure as soon as possible a uniform gauge on the trunk lines of railway throughout the Commonwealth.

PLAGUE IN JAVA.

No communication has been received by the health department from the Director of Quarantine concerning the plague outbreak in Java, but Dr. Ashburton Thompson (president of the Board of Health) has issued instructions to the port health officers that vessels arriving from Java ports must pull up for inspection and be subject to fumigation for the destruction of rats. "The voyage from Java," Dr. Thompson remarked yesterday, "occupies a considerable time, and it is not very probable that a plague-infected ship would arrive without showing some signs of infection among the passengers on board or in the shape of mortality among the rats. These points will be very carefully inquired into on the arrival of each vessel."

STEAMER FIONA DELAYED.

MIGHT HAVE MET THE GALE.

The Colonial Sugar Refining Company's steamer Fiona, 4471 tons, in command of Captain Barnes, which was expected at Sydney on Sunday last from Fiji, has not yet put in an appearance. She left the island on the afternoon of March 27. Her delay is not the cause of any uneasiness. She has had heavy weather to face, with the wind mostly from the south-west. Possibly, also, the gale which struck the Maheno and the Wyreema might have reached this part of the Pacific. The company is not at all apprehensive, and expects that the vessel will make port Jackson very shortly.

BRITAIN'S DEFENCE.

LORD ROBERTS' FEARS.

DEBATE IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

LONDON, April 4.

In the House of Lords last night Lord Roberts moved:—

"That in view of the altered strategic conditions on land and sea in Europe, this House views with grave and growing concern our inadequate naval and military arrangements."

Lord Roberts lauded the "statesmanlike and manly speech" of the German Imperial Chancellor last week, especially that portion wherein Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg had contended that an Empire's armed forces must correspond to an Empire's resources. He went on to say that disasters similar to those which befel us in South Africa, but at the hands of a stronger adversary, might mean the downfall of the Empire.

Lord Roberts contended that Britain required a million adequately trained men in addition to the regulars in order to give the navy perfect freedom of action. He urged the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the whole matter of defence.

Viscount Haldane, Secretary of State for War, said that, apart from the impossibility of obtaining officers, an army such as that suggested by Lord Roberts would cost £40,000,000, threatening the nation with bankruptcy.

"We cannot get prosperity in peace time," he said, "if we crush down the people under armaments that are only needed in war time."

"If a bolt did come from the blue," he declared, "Britain would have 580,000 men to receive the invaders. Under compulsory service it would be impossible to keep up an over-sea army, and India would thus be imperilled.

"The proposed arbitration between Britain and the United States, and Germany's assent to a free exchange of naval information," added Viscount Haldane, "indicated a world-wide desire to diminish the burden of armaments."

Lord Milner said that Britain ought to have an expeditionary force which would not be a negligible quantity in the event of the necessity arising for maintaining the balance of power in Europe.

The debate was adjourned.

THE IMPERIAL SPIRIT.

AUSTRALIAN DEFENCE SYSTEM.

SPEECH BY SIR JOHN FULLER.

LONDON, April 3.

The Wilts Yeomanry entertained Sir John Fuller, Governor-elect of Victoria, who is Major of the corps, prior to his departure.

Sir John Fuller, responding to the toast of his health, said he would carry to Australia recollections of the efficiency of the voluntary system in England.

If, he said, Australia attained the same efficiency under her compulsory system, then the Imperial spirit would carry the Empire undefeated for all time.

CANADA'S HELPLESS POSITION.

In the House of Commons last night the Opposition entered a strong protest against the immigration of negroes into the prairie provinces

PENSION FOR A POET.

LONDON, April 4.

The Prime Minister has conferred a civil pension of £150 per annum upon Mr. W. B. Yeats, the poet.

Mr. William Butler Yeats, the Irish poet, was born in Dublin in June 1865. He was an art student for three years, but he forsook art for literature when he was 21. He is now recognised to be the most distinguished representative of the contemporary Irish literary revival. His "Wanderings of Oisin, and Other Poems," in 1889, gave him a prominent place as a poet of individual vision and individual music, and each of his volumes of verse since, including the poetic dramas, "The Countess Cathleen," "The Land of Heart's Desire," and "Cathleen ni Hoolihan," has added to his reputation as a master of subtle verbal music and as a poet of intense and vivid imagination. His prose work, too, is strikingly individual, his short romances of "The Secret Rose," and his essays, "Ideas of Good and Evil," for instance, revealing prose as subtle and delicate as that of any present-day writer.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

THE PARLIAMENT BILL.

DEBATES IN COMMITTEE.

"REFORM IN DUE TIME."

LONDON, April 4.

The House of Commons was crowded last night, when the Parliament (House of Lords Veto) Bill was taken in committee.

Mr. G. Younger (Unionist) moved an amendment which sought to limit the deprivation of the House of Lords' power to reject money bills to three years. He based his amendment on the ground that the Government should reform the House of Lords before the expiration of the three years, and it would be unreasonable to deprive the reformed House of the power possessed by foreign and colonial second chambers.

The Opposition speakers taunted the Government with insincerity in regard to the reform of the House of Lords.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, said that, whatever changes were made in the Constitution of the House of Lords, the House of Commons must retain undisputed supremacy in matters of finance. The people, he added, had assented to the Parliament Bill as a whole, and the Government was bound in honour to give effect to the preamble in due time.

The leader of the Opposition, Mr. A. J. Balfour, said that the ordinary financial work might be left to the House of Commons if the reconstituted House of Lords was not entirely elective; otherwise it would be ridiculous to deny the Upper House a voice in matters of finance.

Sir Henry Dalziel (Liberal), regarded the preamble of the bill as merely a pious opinion. The Government had not been authorised, and it would be ill-advised, to make proposals to reconstitute the House of Lords.

The Secretary of State for Home Affairs, Mr. Winston Churchill, said that the Government did not propose to embark on the reconstitution of the House of Lords while the question of veto was unsettled.

Mr. Younger's amendment was negatived by 296 votes to 207.

ANTI-CHINESE RIOTS.

DISTURBANCES IN BIRKENHEAD.

POLICE CHARGE WITH BATONS.

LONDON, April 4.

Alleged insults to white women resulted in anti-Chinese riots at Birkenhead.

A crowd of 3000 invaded the Chinese quarter, and they stoned and assaulted the police who attempted to check them, compelling the latter to charge them with their batons drawn.

The excitement in the district continues.

SAXON COINS LITTER SUFFOLK BEACH.

LONDON, April 4.

Extraordinarily high tides in the vicinity of Cape Thorpness, Suffolk, displaced a million tons of earth. The beach was afterwards littered with hundreds of coins, many of them of Saxon origin, from the ruins of the ancient portion of Dunwich.

Dunwich is now a village on the coast of East Suffolk. Originally the Roman Sitomagus, an important station, it was named Dummoceastre by the East Angles, whose King, Sigeberht, built himself a palace there. For several centuries after the Norman conquest Dunwich was a large town and a thriving port; but the encroachments of the sea, which as early as the reign of Edward III. blocked up the harbour and destroyed over 400 houses, have been fatal to its prosperity. From the 14th century onwards its history is an unbroken record of the disasters caused by the undermining action of the waves, and the erstwhile busy port is now merely a small and retiring watering-place.

KING EDWARD MEMORIAL.

ST. JAMES'S PARK SITE.

A CHORUS OF CRITICISM.

LONDON, April 4.

The proposal to erect the King Edward Memorial at Marlborough Gate, St. James's Park, and to widen one of the avenues and the bridge in the park in connection with the memorial has aroused many protests in the newspapers, in the House of Commons, and among those who wish to preserve the sylvan aspects of St. James's Palace.

In the House of Commons last night, Mr. W. Dudley Ward, Treasurer of the Royal Household, promised to again suggest to the Mansion House Committee the desirableness of erecting Mr. Bertram Mackennal's statue in front of the Admiralty Arch in Trafalgar Square.

The critics of the present scheme object to the straightening of the avenue and the rebuilding of the bridge in St. James's Park.

A WEEK-END FOG.

COLLISIONS AT SEA.

SEVERAL VESSELS SUNK.

LONDON, April 3.

A week-end fog accounted for several collisions at sea.

The Dutch steamer Prinz Frederik Hendrik struck the Norwegian steamer Nervion. The latter turned turtle, but floated, and the crew were saved.

The cruiser St. George blew up, with guncotton, the hull of the Nervion, as it was a menace to navigation.

The steamer Daylesford collided with a Russian schooner, and both sank. Those on board were all saved.

The Prinz Frederik Hendrik is a steel screw steamer of 2164 tons, built in 1904 by Nederl at Amsterdam, and owned by Koninkl West-in-dische Maildienst.

The Mervion was a steel screw steamer of 1147 tons, built in 1898 by Nyland at Vaerksted, Christiania, and owned by Fearnley and Eger.

At the trial as regards the British group of coal claims in connection with the Alaskan coal land frauds, the judge gave a verdict against the Government. The point regarding the right of foreign corporations to hold coal claims in Alaska, was postponed for consideration.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.

The Trans-Pacific steamship lines, which have been engaged in a bitter rate war, have agreed to restore the former rates on wheat and flour from the North Pacific ports to Japan, China, and Manila, thus ending the war.

FLOODS AT CAIRNS.

BOATS IN THE STREETS.

HOUSES SWEPT AWAY.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

A wire from Cairns, timed 11.10 a.m. Monday, states that heavy floods have occurred, and the town was under water on Saturday. The esplanade has been greatly damaged.

Boats were in the streets. Tremendous damage was done in the Kanerungera district, houses being swept away. No lives were lost.

Railway traffic was totally suspended. There were numerous slips and washaways, and the line was hanging in places. It is expected that it will be weeks before traffic is resumed. The Barron River is a record.

A SURPRISED ALIEN.

"I AM A BRITISH SUBJECT."

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

A native of the West Indies appeared before Mr. T. Gepp, S.M., at the Port Adelaide Police Court on Tuesday morning, upon a charge of having, as a seaman, deserted from the steamer Bucrania on March 27. He pleaded guilty. He had not signed the vessel's articles in a shipping office; but had come to an arrangement by which he would be discharged in India. While on board, he continued, he had been made to sleep with lascars, and this he could not endure. He pointed out to the magistrate that he could not see why he should be sent back to the vessel, as the captain had no claim on him.

The Magistrate: It may seem strange to you, but it is, nevertheless, a fact that only white people are allowed to enter this country. Even if I let you go as soon as you left this court you could be arrested for being a prohibited immigrant, and brought before me. For that offence I would have to send you to gaol for six months, and when that period expired you would have to be deported.

Defendant (in surprised tone): But this is a British country, and I am a British subject. I have never heard of such a thing in all the lands I have been in.

The Magistrate: But we are in advance of other countries.

Eventually defendant was made to understand the circumstances, although still very much surprised, and he was ordered on board the Bucrania.

AN IMPERIALIST.

SIR JOSEPH WARD INTERVIEWED.

ADVICE TO THE YOUNGER NATIONS.

VANCOUVER, April 4.

Sir Joseph Ward, Prime Minister of New Zealand, on being interviewed here, refused to express an opinion upon the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States. He said he did not desire to criticise the policy of the other dominions.

Sir Joseph expressed the hope that there would be a great expansion of the trade between Canada and New Zealand, and stated that the new mail steamer service would be a great advantage in this direction.

He advocated Imperial reciprocity, and urged the younger nations within the Empire to unite for defence purposes. The British fleets, he said, in view of European developments, were needed nearer home; the overseas dominions, consequently, ought to be able to undertake their own defence.

Sir Joseph criticised Canadas' immigration policy as regards the admission of non-British people, and contrasted with it New Zealands aim to keep the country British, and not admit Orientals.

THE MISSING YONGALA.

OURAKA'S SEARCH.

NEED FOR MORE LIGHTS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Captain Lane, of the Ouraka, in a further account of the search for the Yongala, stated that after replenishing bunkers at Townsville they sailed for Nares Rock. The rock is about 26ft. high, and its area would be about 100ft by 40ft to 50ft. Nares Rock was left at midday on Thursday, and searching operations were continued at Dumbrell Island and Shelky Island. He spoke the schooner White Wave near Dumbrell Island, and asked if she had seen any wreckage. The reply was in the negative. The voyage was continued along the contour of the Barrier between Whitsunday Island and the reef, as far as Pine Peak Island, which is about 50 miles south of Mackay. Thence he proceeded to Brisbane direct.

Captain Lang said if the Yongala struck Nares Reef, as he believed, the tragedy must have occurred between 9 o'clock and midnight on Thursday night.

Asked what were the dangers in her path that might cause the captain to make seawards after leaving Whitsunday Passage, Captain Lang said they were Moole Island, Double Cone, and Esheiby Island. Then there was Nares Rock, and after that Broadhurst Reef. He knew, however, as soon as he saw the last-named reef that the Yongala had not been wrecked there. He also stated that he had felt the tail-end of the cyclone which had brought about the destruction of the Yongala. He was then between Palm Island and Cairns, and he estimated that at the centre the storm must have had a velocity of 70 to 80 miles per hour.

He did not think there was sufficient lighting on that part of the coast. Certainly at one or two points lights were needed. Captain Lang suggested the advisability of establishing communication between Dent Island and the mainland. If this communication had existed the Yongala disaster would not have occurred, for Captain Knight could have been warned by Dent Island of the approaching hurricane.

MORE WRECKAGE.

Very little information is available to-day regarding the Yongala. The weather conditions on the coast continued bad. Late in the day a wire was received by the Collector of Customs at Brisbane that a quantity of wreckage, consisting of panels, life buoys, and gratings, had been washed ashore at Lucinda.

Mr. Wareham stated to-night that his latest advice was to the effect that the weather was still too bad to allow of the small steamer Pelican being despatched to Nares Rock.

TARCOOLA AT CAIRNS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Mr. Wareham stated that he had received a wire from Townsville, stating that the steamer Tarcoola was seen by a passing steamer to enter Cairns on Sunday morning. The wire also stated that the telegraph authorities advised that it was highly improbable that there would be any telegraphic communication with Cairns before Wednesday.

LOCATING THE WRECK.

DIVER'S TASK.

TOWNSVILLE, Tuesday.

Mr. M. O'Brien, a well-known Northern diver, has completed arrangements to visit Nares Rock as soon as the weather is suitable. He is taking a complete diving plant, 150 feet of piping, and two air pumps. Mr. O'Brien says he feels certain that he will locate the Yongala if she is anywhere near the rock.

TARCOOLA FINDS WRECKAGE.

CAIRNS, Tuesday.

The Tarcoola arrived yesterday, and reported finding at Wheeler Reef a lifeboat cover, case of apples, and bag of flour. The telegraph line is badly interrupted.

DISASTER RELIEF FUND.

The executive of the New South Wales Public Disaster Relief Fund met yesterday in the Lord Mayor's room, the Lord Mayor presiding, there being present Mr. J. Russell French, Mr. M. Gotthelf, Mr. W. B. Foley, and Mr. W. Moffit Burns, and Mr. T. H. Nesbitt, town clerk. The Lord Mayor explained the purpose for which the meeting had been convened, viz., to assist the relatives of those who had lost their lives in the disaster. It was resolved that, having regard to the action taken by the Royal Shipwreck Relief Society in already relieving distress, and to the intimation received from such society that further action would be taken to meet all claims immediately they are received, the committee did not consider it necessary to take any further action as regards the disaster relief fund; but it was decided to intimate through the press that the committee would be pleased to acknowledge the receipt of any subscriptions which might be forwarded in relief of distress occasioned by the loss of the steamer Yongala, such subscriptions being forwarded in due course to the Royal Shipwreck Relief and Humane Society.

MOTION OF SYMPATHY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Australasian Baptist Congress to-day unanimously agreed to a motion expressing deep sorrow at the appalling loss of life by the wreck of the Yongala, and profound sympathy with the relatives and friends of the passengers and crew who have lost their lives.

BALMAIN COLLIERY STRIKE.

APPEAL TO THE MINISTER.

The men employed in the Balmain colliery have ceased work, and have laid their trouble before Mr. Beeby, who is responsible for the administration of the industrial laws. They were working, they explained, under certain conditions, and the owners wished to alter those conditions, and bring the colliery under the operation of the Southern Collieries award. The miners refused to assent to this, and suggested that an industrial board should be formed to frame separate working conditions for the Balmain colliery. Mr. Beeby suggested that the men should resume work under the conditions hitherto existing, and he promised that if this were done a board would be immediately appointed to deal with the whole matter. The men lodged a definite complaint with Mr. Beeby that there had been a lockout by the owners, alleging that the owners wanted to alter existing conditions without submitting the matter to a wages board.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

PERTH, Tuesday.

Henry Salmon, recently committed for trial at the Criminal Court for a serious offence, attempted to commit suicide last night by taking strychnine and wading into the Swan River. The poison did not prove immediately effective, and Salmon left the water and was found in great pain near the river bank this morning. He is expected to recover. On searching his clothes the police found a note in which Salmon had written: "These are the remains of Henry Salmon, late of Hay-street, Perth."

AUSTRALIA CAN BUILD A WARSHIP.

DEFENCE MINISTER'S DELIGHT.

FITZROY DOCK WILL FULFIL ITS ORDER.

The ceremonial at Cockatoo Island yesterday gave unbounded pleasure to the Prime Minister and the Minister for Defence and their colleagues. They spoke of it as an altogether worthy one, and as reflecting the utmost credit on those responsible for the arrangements. The manner in which the Warrego has been turned out is an assurance to Federal Ministers that there need be no misgivings as to the capacity of the Cockatoo shipbuilders to fulfil the order just placed for the construction of a second-class protected cruiser and of three torpedo destroyers.

Referring to this matter last night, Senator Pearce said that the raw material for the second-class cruiser had already been ordered, and arrangements had been made with the Admiralty for inspection on delivery. It was hoped to make similar arrangements with regard to the purchase and inspection of raw material required for the three new destroyers.

"Some time ago," Senator Pearce continued, "the Admiralty sent out a long memorandum based upon a cable we had sent home announcing our intention to commence the building of warships in Australia. In this memorandum the Admiralty pointed out some of the difficulties we would have to meet, and the facilities that would have to be provided in the yards that undertook the work. We were able to give the Admiralty the necessary assurance as to our shipbuilding resources, and a definite understanding was then arrived at under which the Admiralty will purchase and inspect the raw material we require."

In reply to a question as to the extent to which Admiral Henderson's report had been adopted, Senator Pearce said:—"The Government neither accepts nor rejects the report as a whole. The Government takes it as the advice of a highly-qualified man. For the present we are dealing only with the naval unit, which was practically agreed upon before Admiral Henderson came to Australia. When the construction of the naval unit has been completed it will be the duty of the Government, before taking any further step, to give the most careful consideration to Admiral Henderson's recommendations. The report will be judged according to the circumstances of the day and the capacity of the Commonwealth to carry the burden of naval expenditure.

"It seems ridiculous to say to-day what we are going to do 20 years ahead. Admiral Henderson points out that in dealing with the future he is only dealing with it in the light of present-day knowledge. There is no doubt he gives us most valuable advice, and we will give it all weight.

Nothing has yet been decided by Ministers concerning the establishment of a naval base. A destroyer base will have to be provided, and Admiral Henderson has recommended Westernport, on the Victorian coast, as a suitable site. Early consideration will be given to this question, for, to quote Senator Pearce, 'we do not know when we may be turned out of our temporary base at Williamstown.'"

ROUGH SEA TRIPS.

BUNINYONG AND WHANGAPE.

THREE HORSES KILLED.

Vessels of all sizes have been faring badly, whether off the coast or at sea, during the past few days. The Howard Smith liner Buninyong was 71 hours covering the distance from Brisbane to Sydney. She left the northern port on Saturday, and reached Port Jackson yesterday morning. Progress had to be fought against a southerly gale, which developed into a cyclone. The steamer was severely buffeted, and for hours at a stretch could make no headway. Large waves broke over her at frequent intervals. Captain Robinson describes his experience as having been among the worst on record. In contradistinction with this trip, the Bombala, which left Sydney on Saturday evening, was swept along to such an extent that she reached Brisbane in a trifle over 36 hours from wharf to wharf.

The experience of the Union Company's steamer Whangape, which left Wellington on March 29, with over 450 horses on board, was most exciting, and at times perilous, the vessel having encountered a severe storm, which necessitated her course being altered. On Wednesday she evidently ran into the heavy south-east gale which had almost overpowered those steamers then making for Sydney. The animals below were severely knocked about. It was almost impossible for them to keep their feet as the vessel pitched and rolled. Some tried to jump clear of their stalls. Two died, or were killed, by being knocked about, and a third succumbed after the vessel had reached an anchorage in Watson's Bay. In the worst of the storm one of the horses jumped out of its stall and had to be lashed in a bullock pen. Captain Edwards was satisfied, in the circumstances, that the fatalities were so few. The horses were heavy draughts, and others suitable for coaching, together with four thoroughbred yearlings. They are here for the Easter sales. The vessel also brought two prize bulls and a cow for the Royal Show.

TO ENCOURAGE SHOOTING.

MORE FACILITIES WANTED.

RIFLEMEN DISGUSTED.

The inadequate accommodation and lack of facilities for riflemen at Sydney were brought before the Minister for Defence by a deputation from the National Rifle Association at the Hotel Metropole yesterday.

Mr. E. J. Brown (president of the association), introduced a strong deputation to the Minister, and emphasised the necessity for providing more targets at Long Bay. He said that it would be wasteful to spend more money on the Randwick Range, because in the course of a few years there was every probability that that range would have to be abandoned, owing to the growth of the city. Already houses were being built in dangerous proximity to the range. It was absolutely necessary to give metropolitan riflemen more facilities for shooting. In the metropolitan area they had only 83 targets, and at present there were 4700 men in the military forces, and 1700 in the rifle clubs, who needed ranges for practice. Then, as soon as the compulsory military training scheme was in order, there would be roughly about 18,000 more to provide for. It frequently happened now that rifle clubs could not get targets to hold their matches. This was very discouraging to members of the clubs, many of whom were giving it up in disgust. It was very hard to keep the clubs together, and something would have to be done immediately. Another matter that required attention was the telephone system at Randwick. The telephones were worn out and useless.

Senator Pearce promised that, in addition to the eight targets now nearly completed at Long Bay, 20 more would be erected almost immediately, and 25 additional would be provided for on the Estimates. They would have to rub along with what they had for the present, but he would see the money went on the Estimates this year to provide for the additional targets at Long Bay. They would then have 53 targets for use. He would also make inquiries into the complaints about the telephone, and do his best to have them remedied.

PRISONER COMMITS SUICIDE.

COOTAMUNDRA, Tuesday.

At the Quarter Sessions yesterday, before Judge Docker, Edward Pearce was charged with assaulting his wife, and was found guilty, with strong recommendation to mercy. He was remanded for sentence. A gaoler locked Pearce in a cell, and then took another prisoner to the dock. About an hour later Gaoler Dixon unlocked the cell to take Pearce up for sentence, and discovered him hanging dead by a strap attached to the window of the cell. The coroner held an inquest, when a verdict of suicide was recorded.

ALLEGED ROBBERY UNDER ARMS.

ACCUSED COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

CLONCURRY, Tuesday.

Reginald Coates and George Price appeared at court on Monday on a charge of robbery with violence and stealing.

In course of evidence Thomas Gilett, of the West Leichhardt mail change, said the prisoners came to his camp on March 14, and at the point of a revolver took a rifle and 120 rounds of ammunition.

Ali Mahomet, a gardener near Mount Cuthbert, said that on March 15 the accused came to his place, ordered him to put up his hands, and stole from his house a rifle and 47 cartridges, a watch and chain, and a pair of trousers.

Accused were committed for trial. [illegible]

TALE OF THE CENSUS.

DELICATE QUESTION OF AGE.

NOT ENOUGH CARDS.

On the whole the public response to the census is regarded by the Statistician's Department officers as satisfactory, although the enumerators may have another tale to tell. The department is receiving plenty of inquiries, most of which could be answered by any intelligent reader of the instructions issued with the census cards. Evidently the trouble with some people is that they were overburdened with printed instructions, and wanted an interpreter of the explanation. Occasionally a request is received from some earnest citizen for a card to replace one lost or destroyed, or an original because the applicant states that he was missed by the deliverers of the cards.

Much dissatisfaction exists in certain districts respecting the inadequate supply of cards. At Newtown a regular procession of persons was noticed at the police station, the majority complaining that they had not received any cards at all. Discounting some of the complaints, for some no doubt mislaid their cards or were away when the enumerator called, it appears that some were missed by the deliveries. Of course, that may not be the fault of the enumerators, for it was clearly to their advantage to miss nobody, so as to facilitate the completion of their collection of the filled-in cards during this week.

Some are leaving the filling-in of the card till the time the enumerator arrives so that they shall not make a mistake. They fear the penalties that await the person who makes false entries, but they need have no fear of punishment if they give the particulars asked for to the best of their belief. They are not being asked to swear to the correctness of all the entries. The people who neglect to send in any cards at all are in a much more dangerous predicament, as they are liable to a heavy fine for such remissness.

Many interesting stories are already in circulation respecting the census. One publican tells with gusto how he discovered the age of one of his barmaids. She had told him to put down 18 as her age, but he laid down the pen and solemnly told her that she looked older, and that if 18 were wrong he would be fined £50 and she £10. The age increased by six years at once.

A father of a family with several Christian names had some condemnation for the small cards. He could not write their names in the small space in his large hand, and compromised with the initials. This inadequacy of space was generally noticed, but a census is not taken so often that absolutely ideal conditions shall prevail every time it is.

CHURCH UNITY.

ADDRESS BY LORD CHELMSFORD.

MANLY CHRISTIANITY.

A public meeting was held in the Pitt-street Congregational Church last evening to consider the subject of the uniting of the Presbyterian, Congregational, and Methodist Churches

His Excellency the Governor, Lord Chelmsford, presided, and referred to the necessity for the Churches concentrating their efforts in social work.

Surely nothing could be more deplorable, he said, than the alienation at the present moment of the vast masses of the population from the Churches. He could not but think that this was largely due to the belief that the Churches had no concern with the daily life of the people. (Hear, hear.) Heaven forbid that he would for one moment advocate a political ministry, but he believed it was the duty of the Churches not to hold aloof from what was of concern to every good citizen. What we called politics formed a very small portion of the real life of the community. (Applause.) We wanted manly Christianity. (Applause.) After all, if he might venture to say so, without irreverence, the Founder of Christianity was every inch a man, and ministers must not lose sight of that fact. Was there not a tendency sometimes to affect an accent or manner of speech which clearly differentiates the minister from the layman? He did not want for one moment the other extreme. There was nothing that one disliked more than the minister who was a little ashamed of his cloth, and was more lay than the layman. But surely there was a mean. Another point was Did the laymen want stronger meat more often than it was served up to them (Applause.) Those who were interested in their religion, and in the deeper sides of their religion, could get that meat for themselves. But there were men who were not in the way of getting this meat, and wanted it brought to them. For instance, the great scientific movement known in the past 30 years had not been without its effect on the region of theology, and surely it was worth bringing home to men that the same methods of observation and study which were the basis of modern research had been employed in theology. (Applause.)

The Rev. Principal Harper moved,—"That this meeting, composed of members of the Congregationalist, Methodist, and Presbyterian Churches, believe it would be for the promotion of the kingdom of our common Lord and Saviour, and for the religious benefit of the community, that our churches should be united into one great Church, and rejoice to learn that the deliberation of the joint committee has produced a basis of doctrine and a scheme of polity as a groundwork on which negotiations for union can be conducted, and pledge ourselves to use all our influence for the accomplishment of the proposed union." He said they wanted union because there was an instructive desire for union, in all His people placed there by the blessed Lord. The churches felt the paralysing influences of division. The native races said to the missionaries, "We want one Christianity. We don't want to have forced upon us the multitude of sects that have arisen in Europe from causes we cannot judge of." (Applause.) In Australia the Church, broken up and divided and competing, was quite inadequate for its work. He could see no way to alter this condition of things except the way they now suggested.

The Rev. Walter Mathison, B.A. (Congregationalist), said that whatever they did must be done in recognition of the fact that the Church did not stand instead of Christ; that Christ was not merely the Alpha and Omega of Christianity, but the whole alphabet of it. (Applause.) It might come about that their present differences were only separate aspects of the old truth, and if these differences were combined into one great whole the result would be a far nobler thing than those differences could be in their separateness. And if the differences were sacred, unity was more sacred still. (Applause.) If the differences were consecrated with the blood of martyrs union was consecrated with the blood of Christ. (Applause.)

The Rev. W. H. Beale said that in the proposed basis of union they had made no sacrifices of any vital truth, and the proposal in itself was an indication of the prevalent sentiment. This movement might not eventuate in their lifetime, but it would yet take place, and all the differences that now separated the three churches would disappear. There were compelling forces that urged them on to unity—the force of unbelief, irreverence, disregard of God's day, His house, and His Book, the standing aloof from the fellowship of His people. If union would make their church work more effective, then surely that would determine them upon union. (Applause.)

The motion was carried unanimously.

CHRIST CHURCH CRISIS.

THE VACANT INCUMBENCY.

SYNOD NOMINATORS RESIGN.

A deadlock has arisen in connection with the vacant rectorship of Christ Church, St. Laurence. The synod nominators—Archdeacon Boyce and Canon Vaughan—have tendered their resignations.

The church has been without an incumbent for several months past. In November last year the Rev. F. J. Albery resigned and went to England. Just at that time the Archbishop of Sydney (Dr. Wright) took a firm stand on the question of vestments. Ever since, a joint board of nominators has been endeavouring to appoint a successor to Mr. Albery.

Christ Church has always been regarded as a "very high" church. There were several other changes of note at the time Mr. Albery left Christ Church, the Rev. Sydney Marston and Rev. Mr. Pitt severing their connection with St. James'.

The resignations of Archdeacon Boyce and Canon Vaughan have not yet been accepted by the board. No statement has been made as to why the step was taken, but seeing that the joint board has been sitting for several months without accomplishing anything, the assumption is that the synod and parochial nominators have been unable to agree on vital matters. Archdeacon Boyce and Canon Vaughan are low churchmen.

The Rev. F. J. Albery, who is now in England, succeeded to the incumbency of Christ Church when the Rev. Gerard Trower was appointed to an African Bishopric. Bishop Trower is now stationed in North-west Australia.

MINISTER FOR LANDS TOUR.

TAKING STOCK OF COUNTRY.

WEE WAA, Tuesday.

The Minister for Lands (Mr Nielsen), accompanied by Messrs. Black and Horne, Ms.L.A., arrived here on Sunday evening from a trip through the scrub by motor. Yesterday morning the party motored to Yarrie Lake, about 15 miles in the scrub, returning at noon, when a deputation waited on the Minister in the Shire Hall, asking that railway connection be made between Wee Waa and Coonamble. It was stated that the country between here and Coonamble was the finest wheat and farming land in the State; but towards Narrabri it was neither fit for farming nor grazing, being bloodwood and gum country. Further, the route suggested was the shortest and cheapest to construct, an admirable connection for transferring stock in drought from one district to another, and owing to the vast timber resources it would tap it would be payable in a very short time. The deputation further asked for the dedication of the land on the lagoon banks for recreation purposes, and an area on the common for a showground.

The Minister, in replying, stated that he was keenly interested in the settlement of scrub lands. He had undertaken the trip to see for himself its vast possibilities, and enable him to judge the best means of opening it up. What he had seen of the scrub had impressed him very favourably, and at one portion of the scrub, within a few miles of Wee Waa, called Murrumburrah, the land appeared as good as that of its namesake down south. He considered that it had been an absolute injury to the State that the scrub had not been opened up before, for which previous Governments were responsible. He could assure the deputation that it was going to be opened now. But instead of making land available first, this Government proposed to construct railways first, and open the lands after, so that settlers would not be isolated. As far as the route for the railway was concerned, he promised that he would advocate which one he considered best in the interests of the State. In regard to the two other matters, he would arrange them on his return.

A luncheon was given by the citizens at the Imperial Hotel, about 50 being present. Mr. Coppleson occupied the chair.

Replying to the toast of the Ministry, Mr. Nielsen congratulated Wee Waa upon its advancement since his previous visit ten years ago. In regard to his department, he was now taking stock of New South Wales, and had appointed three commissions to go through and classify the lands, as it was impossible to cut up land on the chessboard principle. As far as policy was concerned, he could assure them that the allegations of confiscation were groundless, and the contracts entered into prior to the party coming into office would be strictly adhered to.

HAREM SKIRT CRAZE.

KALGOORLIE, Tuesday.

A young woman, employed as a barmaid, was locked up on a charge of drunkenness in Kalgoorlie last night while wearing a harem skirt. She was brought before the Police Court this morning. It was thought that the harem skirt of crimson hue would be worn, and a large number of spectators attended in expectation. However, she appeared in a skirt concealed by a long grey coat, and her counsel attributed her position to over-indulgence in champagne. She was a much-humiliated woman, and wept bitterly. The Bench agreed that the night's incarceration was sufficient punishment.

DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH.

MOTION BY BAPTIST CONGRESS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

At the Baptist Congress to-night it was resolved, on the motion of Mr. J. A. Packer (N.S.W.) "That this congress, representative of the Baptist churches of Australasia, takes the opportunity of expressing hearty sympathy with the workers of the Commonwealth and the sister Dominion of New Zealand in their just aims and aspirations for a fairer distribution of wealth; for a greater equality of opportunity; for educational and social advantages; for better conditions of living; and for the extension of the religious principle of arbitration to the settlement not only of industrial but international difficulties. And it further urges upon the ministers of our churches to seek more earnestly to promote an intelligent and truly Christain settlement of social problems."

STRIKE HEROES.

SENATOR FINDLEY'S EULOGY.

"A PUBLIC DUTY."

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A contribution of £10 to the Harvester strike funds was received to-day from Senator Findley. Senator Findley sent with his cheque a letter in which he stated:—"In forwarding a subscription to the strike fund I consider it a public duty to add an emphatic expression of sympathy with the cause for which you are struggling, and of enthusiastic admiration of your methods and courage. You are standing up sturdily for the principle and consistent practice of unionism. You are fighting for a principle which is imperishable, and is in that sense heroic. In that sense, too, you are heroes, and it would ill become those of us who are non-combatants to withhold our sympathy and every practical encouragement in openly expressed agreement and publicly given subscription. I wish you all success in your plucky struggle against banded wrong, and your steadfastness in the cause of unionism. Without these there would be no Trades Hall, no Labour movement, and only industrial serfdom, politically unrepresented, socially little respected, and economically ill rewarded."

A BOXER'S DEATH.

ELEVEN MEN DISCHARGED.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Henry Ford, 53, stevedore; Leslie O'Donnell, 22, athlete; William Robert Williams, 36, traveller; William Callaghan, 27, watchman; Charles Lawrence, 32, coal trimmer; Robert Whitelaw, 31, blacksmith; John Gover Williams, 41, butcher; James Francis Russell, 34, furniture maker; Timothy Land, 25, dairyman; Claude O'Donnell, 25, tailor; Ellis Mobbs, 30, boxmaker, appeared at the Newcastle Police Court to-day on a charge of having in company caused the death of James Robert Boland, 23, generally known as Bob Bryant, on March 25 last. On the application of Inspector Banks the men were all discharged.

CADETS FOR ENGLAND.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

Seven cadets shot off to decide which two should go to the coronation. Cadets Curtin and Shepherd scored highest, with 59 and 58 respectively.

THE WOLFRAM RUSH.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The excitement in connection with the discovery of wolfram in large deposits at Callawonga, near Yankalilla, continues intense. Claims are being pegged out rapidly, and much of the neighbouring country is being carefully inspected. It is reported that an offer of £30 was made last night for a hundredth part of one of the original claims.

THE TERALBA DIFFICULTY.

MEN AND PROPRIETORS MEET.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

A conference between the miners and proprietors of the Teralba collieries was held to-day, to consider the rates and conditions prevailing at the collieries. The conference consisted of four representatives of the men and a similar number of representatives of the proprietors. The mines concerned are Northern Extended, Pacific, Rhondda, Northumberland, and each of the collieries were represented at the conference. At the conclusion of the meeting it was stated that the discussion had been of an amicable nature as far as it had gone, and there was every reason to believe that a satisfactory settlement would be effected. The conference lasted all day, and will be continued some day next week. If any concessions are made they will date from the first of this month.

A PATRIOTIC QUEENSLANDER.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Mr. William Morse, a Brisbane solicitor, who was a passenger on the Orvieto, refused to sign the census paper on the ground that it was a New South Wales paper, and the boat was then in Queensland waters. Mr. Morse was informed that the Customs officials would not allow him to land, and he only filled in the paper on being assured that he would be counted in the Queensland population. He said it was a matter of principle, as Queensland might lose the 25s per capita grant for ten years. He was primarily a citizen of the Commonwealth, but in regard to the per capita grant, he was a Queensland citizen.

NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

LORD DENMAN'S CAREER.

SOLDIER AND POLITICIAN.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON (via Fremantle), March 10.

The career of your new Governor-General is not of the sort which lends itself to a summary in the "Who's Who" manner. Many Australians will, therefore, welcome a short sketch of a more intimate type, based upon facts which are familiar enough to Londoners, but may be new on the other side of the world.

Lord Denman succeeded to his barony in 1894, at the age of 19, but his public work dates from the time of the South African war. The new Governor-General has served his apprenticeship as a politician, courtier, and sportsman—three of the professions open to the young British aristocrat. But it is as a soldier that Lord Denman should be introduced to future Australian friends. If a single episode must be singled out, let it be some exciting weeks in 1900. The South African war was at its height. Lord Denman was in command of mounted troops at Harrismith, consisting of a squadron of the Derbyshire Yeomanry and a colonial corps from Port Elizabeth, known as Prince Albert's Guards. Almost every day there was a fight of some kind. Lord Denman's squadron was alternately advance and rear guard. The brigade scouts were no use—the Boers picked off three in one afternoon—so Lord Denman decided that scouts were a luxury which could be dispensed with. Dividing his squadron into two parties, he handed over one-half to his only subaltern, and took the remainder himself. The march continued with one-half of the squadron on either side of the track, riding about three miles ahead of the main column. Telling the story of the march afterwards, Lord Denman recalled that his squadron was frequently mistaken for Boers by his own side. "Three days running I was shot at by our own infantry. Once after getting out of a tight corner from the Boers we were received with a regular fusillade just as we were congratulating ourselves upon our success. The horse of a man riding behind me was killed.

It was from experiences such as this that Lord Denman derived his first political interests—mounted infantry and army remounts. Both these questions cropped up again in Lord Denman's early speeches and magazine articles. But for the South African War, Lord Denman has himself told us, he would have settled down to the restful and retired life of a steeplechase rider. Shortly after the Harrismith March Lord Denman was wounded. His column had been ordered to burn some farms, and a party of mounted infantry chanced to get into a tight corner. Colonel Firman sent Lord Denman with reinforcements. As he came under fire he was hit in the thigh, the bullet just missing the main artery. There was no more fighting for the time being. "Captain" Denman was carried back to camp, a 48 hours' trek, in a bullock waggon, across the veldt, followed by a long train journey to Mooi River Hospital, in Natal. Still rest was impossible. The hospital was overcrowded. Lord Denman and some other wounded men were sent to Howick, at Mooi River. The hospital train was late, and the wounded were left tied up in their stretchers on the platform. Small wonder that many invalids failed to make the hoped-for quick recovery. In Lord Denman's case dysentry (contracted at the Maitland Camp, Capetown) supervened, and he was invalided home. Before he was fit again the war had ended.

Reference has been made to the two strong convictions forced upon Lord Denman by his South African experiences. One was the value of mounted infantry; the other was the all importance of the problem of army remounts. In December, 1899, before he went to the front, Lord Denman had propounded a scheme for a corps of roughriders, trained as mounted infantry. His enlistment with the 18th Middlesex Imperial Yeomanry in the following month prevented him carrying his suggestion into actuality. While still at the front, however, Lord Denman contributed an article to the "Nineteenth Century," which aroused considerable discussion. He dwelt upon the value of mounted infantry as scouts and skirmishers, and suggested that they might some day prove to be more useful than cavalry, owing to their better shooting capacity. "One mounted infantry man is worth three foot soldiers," and Lord Denman concluded with the opinion that in the next great European war mounted infantry might be used as part of the great cavalry screen by which movements of large bodies of men were covered.

In November, 1902, Lord Denman wrote a further article for the "Nineteenth Century" based upon his experience at the remount depot in Pretoria. The article was entitled "The War Office and Remounts," and Lord Denman had occasion to characterise the principal types of remounts which had come under his charge. Of them all the Cape pony was probably the best. When it was good it was very good indeed. Unfortunately the British War Office had so arranged matters that the Boers had all the good specimens, and the British most of the bad ones. The Canadian and Texan remounts he considered badly broken in; the Hungarians were "good looking, but a sort with a weakness for collapsing quickly." Lord Denman has since formed a high opinion of the possible value of the Australian horse for army purposes. He is looking forward to studying this aspect of the remount problem at first hand during his stay in Australia. After his return from South Africa, Lord Denman frequently took part in military debates in the House of Lords. The subject of his maiden speech in July, 1902, was the reform of Sandhurst. Speaking with the knowledge of personal experience, he said that Sandhurst was quite unsuited for its main purpose—that of training young officers who had just left school. The entire curriculum was too ambitious, a cadet being instructed in the employment cavalry and artillery. He is taught how to handle a division, how to wield an army corps, and how to march an army corps into action. Yet when he joins his regiment the cadet is put back for three months' recruit drill on barrack square. "How much better," urged Lord Denman, "if this instruction in the duties of an ordinary private had preceded the instruction in handling an army corps."

Much of Lord Denman's knowledge in army and remount matters came from his experiences as an amateur steeplechase rider. Lord Denman is fond of polo, and may play in Australia. He has also been the owner of a number of smart hurdlers which have been first past the winning post, with "owner up." In November, 1898, he scored his first public win with Black Maria, by Retreat—Stop Thief, at the Aldershot autumn meeting. Before going to the front in January, 1900, Lord Denman sold his horses without reserve, Black Maria bringing 290 guineas, and Sheriff's Officer 480 guineas.

Lord Denman's predilection for general politics was increased by his marriage with Miss Gertrude Pearson, only daughter of Lord Cowdray, better known as Sir Weetman Pearson, contractor. Like her husband, Lady Denman came of political stock. Lady Cowdray is one of the most active workers in the Liberal cause. Her daughter was called upon to join the scanty band of Liberal entertainers directly after her marriage. The fewness of Liberal peers ensured a man of Lord Denman's tastes and experience being offered Ministerial office when his party came into power. This came about in 1905. For some time Lord Denman had been doing sterling work for his party in the constituencies. He was elected a member of the Eighty Club on the same day as Lord Beauchamp. On December 16 Mr. Campbell-Bannerman offered Lord Denman the post of Lord-in-Waiting. In February of the following year Lord Denman was called upon to represent the Irish Office in the House of Lords, Mr. Boyce, then Chief Secretary, being Commoner. Lord Denman finally became chief Liberal Whip in the Lords. The last honour conferred upon the new Governor-General was the captaincy of the hon. corps of Gentlemen-at-arms. Lord Denman succeeded Earl Beauchamp in the office when the latter joined the Cabinet. The four-hundredth anniversary of the corps' creation took place during Lord Denman's captaincy. The day was celebrated by a great banquet at St. James' Palace, followed by a remarkable reception given by Lord and Lady Denman at Carlton House Terrace. This is the town house of Lord Cowdray, which has frequently been used by Lady Denman for her big political receptions.

The new Governor-General and Lady Denman leave for Australia directly after the Coronation. Their English friends feel assured that their term of office in the Commonwealth will earn for them a rich measure of esteem and regard. It will be found that Lord and Lady Denman unite social and intellectual qualities, which Australians will welcome and appreciate.

THE REFERENDUM.

MR. WATSON AT PADDINGTON.

"CHANGE THE RULES OF THE GAME."

CONSTITUTION NOT SACRED.

In the Paddington Town Hall last night Mr. J. C. Watson addressed between 500 and 600 electors on the referendum proposals.

He said that no Constitution should be regarded as sacred. (Hear, hear.) The people who had to live under the Constitution should be able to mould the laws so as to bring them into line with ever-changing conditions. Even though the Federal Constitution was framed by men of marked ability, Australia had since that time progressed in every direction. It did not follow, therefore, that because the Constitution was framed by able men eleven or twelve years ago, the people of Australia should not lay hands upon it. (Applause.) The proposed legislation was designed to meet the new set of conditions, and was absolutely and imperatively required in the interests of the people of Australia. (Hear, hear.) It was not proposed to hand over any powers to an alien race, but for the people of Australia to arm themselves with greater powers, so that they could be used if thought necessary. The power asked for in regard to trade and commerce was not by any means an exclusive power. The States' Governments would not be wholly prevented from dealing with these matters.

Referring to the Seamen's Compensation Act, which was declared ultra vires by the High Court, Mr. Watson contended that, "Despite Mr. Wade's lawyerlike statement, there was at the present time, so far as New South Wales was concerned, no power by which seamen could recover a red cent for an accident which occurred outside the harbour." That was a ridiculous state of affairs. (Hear, hear.)

"A few nights ago," continued Mr. Watson, "Mr. Levy declared that the Labour party desired to interfere with the High Court, and was like a crowd of football barrackers who downed the football umpire because he gave a decision against their side. But the truth is that we don't want to interfere with the umpire; what we want to do is to change the rules of the game. (Applause.) We do not object to the umpire giving a decision under the rules of the game, but we do say that there is nothing in the history of British communities which will encourage the belief that we are to remain dominated by any Court of Law no matter how highly placed." (Loud applause.)

On the question of industrial legislation, the speaker asked the electors to give power to one authority to preside over the whole of Australia on all matters of fair wages and reasonable hours. It had been asserted that the Federal Arbitration Court had levelled down rather than levelled up. That was not so in the bootmakers' award. In that instance Mr. Justice O'Connor took the highest rate as the standard. (Hear, hear.)

The amendment, which was designed to deal with corporations, would not in any way affect municipalities. The High Court had already decided that municipalities were State instrumentalities, and could not be touched by the proposed amendments.

Quite recently Sir Joseph Carruthers erupted in characteristic fashion, and declared that State legislation dealt adequately with company law. In his (Mr. Watson's) opinion, the company law obtaining in New South Wales was rotten. It enabled a company to pay, say, 10 per cent. dividend and keep piling up reserves. Directors were enabled to have an inside knowledge of the company's finances, which was withheld from the shareholders and general public. Such a law was not in the interest of shareholders and investors. (Hear, hear.) But even if the law were the best that could be devised, it did not follow that the company laws of the other States were similar.

The only effective way of dealing with monopolies was for the people of Australia to take them over and run them themselves. The great American meat trust was already attempting to gain a foothold in Australia. (Applause.) Some people doubted whether the Meat Trust would ever come to the Commonwealth.

A voice: They are here already.

Mr. Watson: Quite so; and their object was to gain control of the markets of the world, and, incidentally, the Australian market.

TEMORA, Tuesday.

Colonel Ryrie arrived here on Monday for a fortnight's campaigning on the referendum. He addressed splendid meetings at Combaning and Bagdad, where he found audiences enthusiastic. Colonel Ryrie is strongly advising electors to follow Mr. Holman's lead, and vote "No" to both questions. Labourites are expecting Mr. Holman to follow Mr. Beeby's example, and deliver an address in his electorate before polling day.

TAMWORTH, Tuesday.

Mr. D. Storey and Mr. Levien addressed a large meeting here on Monday night in opposition to the referendum proposals. Both had a good hearing. Mr. Storey denounced the tyranny of the Trades Hall in gagging State Ministers, and said that Messrs. M'Gowen, Holman, and Beeby had thrown over the Trades Hall domination, and were looking longingly to the Independent party, which was prepared to welcome them and give them a haven of refuge.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

Mr. Carr, M.P., addressed a meeting here on Monday night on the referendum. He said that the wording of the Constitution in its present form was good enough for any man of common-sense, but the legally trained mind in its tortuous course read certain narrow meanings which he did not think those who framed the Constitution intended. No Government in the English-speaking dominions had so little power as the Federal Government today. In view of the narrow reading of the Constitution in the High Court the Federal Government was asking for absolute power, so that any situation which might arise might be dealt with. The only valid argument against the referendum proposals was the present constitution of the Senate upon State instead of on a population basis. This had been urged by Mr. Beeby; but whilst there might be something in it, there was no great evil.

GLEN INNES, Tuesday.

Mr. F. J. Thomas, M.L.A., delivered an address this afternoon on the referendum proposals before a largely-attended meeting of electors. He urged them to vote "No."

HAY, Tuesday.

Sir John Quick addressed a meeting in the Federal Hall last night in opposition to the referendum proposals. There was a large attendance. The speaker contended that the proposed amendment of the Constitution would mean a violation of the Federal compact and an encroachment of the State functions. The existing powers of the Federal and State Parliaments to deal with trade and commerce had been in operation for the past ten years, and there had not been a single serious complaint over the distribution of the power or the way in which it was exercised. He emphatically denied the assertion that the State Governments had not passed sufficiently drastic laws dealing with internal trade and commerce for the protection of the public. The adoption of the amendment as proposed would take away from the States the power to regulate their own trade, and would unduly load the Federal Parliament with domestic work. He was not an apologist for trusts, combines, or monopolies, but he contended that the Federal Parliament had ample power to deal with them, and instanced the Federal Anti-Trust law in support of his contention.

A motion was carried that the meeting declare itself emphatically opposed to the principles contained in the proposed alteration of the Constitution.

MILTON, Tuesday.

Mr. Arthur Cocks, M.L.A., addressed a good meeting here last night in opposition to the referendum proposals. He dealt severely with the muzzling of the Labour Ministry, and asked was it reasonable to follow men who imposed such curtailment of free speech and action? Mr. Cocks was accorded a vote of thanks.

QUIRINDI, Tuesday.

Last night Mr. Henley, M.L.A., addressed a meeting of electors in the Oddfellows' Hall. The attendance was moderate. Mr. Henley, who was well received, said it was impossible to properly govern a large area like the Australian continent from a centre as remote as the Federal capital. Centralisation meant the destruction of self-government. The way the referendum questions were put was an insult to the intelligence of electors, and a violation of the principles of democracy. He advised them to vote "No." A vote of thanks was carried.

TAREE, Tuesday.

Senator Millen addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting in the School of Arts, Taree, on Monday night in opposition to the referendum. He was listened to attentively, and created a most favourable impression. The voting in the district will be strongly against the proposed amendments.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

The Court of Appeal to-day commenced the hearing of the case in which T. Kennedy Macdonald, M.L.C., is appellant, and the sons and daughters of the late Robert M. Greenfields are the respondents. Macdonald was executor and trustee of Greenfields' will, and, as the result of investigations by the Supreme Court in camera, Macdonald was ordered to pay into court moneys owing by him to the estate, totalling £3647, failing which a writ of attachment would issue. Macdonald appeals against this on the ground that the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction to make the order.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

For the last six months the Savings Bank deposits have increased at the rate of £1,500,000 a year. The last two months have been particularly brisk.

THE NURSES' FAIR.

TO-DAY'S OPENING CEREMONY.

Lord Chelmsford, State Governor, is to open at the Town Hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon the All Nations' Fair, which is the outcome of the citizens' effort to raise £5000 for improving the accommodation for the nursing staff of the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital. The appeal is one which has the support of an influential section of the community, and is backed by the statement of the hospital board itself that the distressing conditions under which the nursing staff now work must be rectified. The fund which it is felt confident the fair will produce will be supplemented by a Government grant, and the new home which it is proposed to erect will supply the needs both of the present and the future—at least for some time to come.

A rehearsal of the pageant which is to form the chief feature of the opening ceremony was held last night, and gave promise of a brilliant and imposing spectacle when all is in readiness this afternoon. The stalls representing the nations have been erected, only the finishing touches being required to provide a decorative scheme which should be pleasing and attractive to every eye. The East challenges comparison with the West, Britain with her oversea Dominions, and art and industry will be found to be fully represented. The stocking of the stalls has been largely supplemented by gifts from city business firms, and from private sources in the city, suburbs, and country.

The programme of entertainments published in the advertising columns indicates that in this department care has been taken to secure that novelty which ensures interest. Seven of the leading brass bands of the State are assisting, besides well-known vocalists, instrumentalists, and entertainers in other branches of amusement. The admission fee entitles everyone to a chance in the art union, which offers over 100 prizes, and children will be admitted at half-price. The fair is to last for seven days, and the worthiness of the object will no doubt attract large numbers of both town and country visitors, who have flocked into the city for the Easter festivities.

Lady Fairfax and Mrs. J. B. Chapman acted as judges of the doll-dressing competition. They express themselves as being very charmed with the work exhibited. The awards are as under:—Class A: First prize, £10 10s, Miss Dalgarono; second prize, £2 2s, Miss Lee. Class B (Public schools): First prize, £2 2s, Phyllis Wood. Class C: First prize, £2 2s, Grace Chapman; second, 10s, Stella Cutler. The exhibits of Helen Faithfull and Dorothea Titums being highly commended. A special prize of £1 1s was awarded to Nurse Jenkins for a doll with trousseau and trunk; and Miss Moser's entry was highly commended.

WHARF LABOURERS' STRIKE.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

At Kingston a strike occurred at Murray Bridge wharf on Tuesday, 40 men being affected. The trouble is with the Gem Navigation Company, who brought men from Renmark to handle growers' goods. Mr. Ryan, one of the U.L.U. organisers, has arrived from Adelaide. The situation is acute. An official of the Gem Navigation Company said:—"We have been expecting this for some time. The company is under contract to handle these goods, and we are determined to carry out that agreement."

MEASLES ON R.M.S. OMRAH.

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

During the voyage of the R.M.S. Omrah from Colombo to Fremantle an epidemic of measles broke out on board. When the vessel arrived this morning five families were found to be affected. They were conveyed to Perth and placed in the measles ward at the Victoria Hospital.

THE EASTER INFLUX.

Easter this year promises to produce as great a stream of visitors as that which came into Sydney in 1901 to witness the Commonwealth inauguration ceremonies, and already difficulty is being experienced in securing accommodation through the ordinary channels. The Director of the Government Tourist Bureau, however, believes that there is probably a good deal of accommodation available in the city and suburbs, although the stranger in the city is unable to locate it. Therefore he is co-operating, in the interests of visitors, with the proprietors of hotels and boarding-houses. Applications are being received daily from the other States for rooms, and the bureau is endeavouring to meet the demand by supplying information.

SYDNEY FEMALE REFUGE.

The sixty-second annual meeting of the Sydney Female Refuge was held at the institution yesterday. The report showed that the number remaining in the institution at the end of 1909 was 45. During 1910 85 were admitted. The earnings of the inmates during the year realised £828.

AUSTRALASIAN BAPTISTS.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The second Australasian Baptist Congress was continued to-day. The Rev. F. W. Boreham, president of the Tasmanian Baptist Union, moved,—"That this congress solemnly affirms its profound conviction that, in days when powerful influences are being extended to provoke great nations to discord and strife, it is the imperative duty of all who bear the Christian name to devote the entire weight of their personal and public influence to the effort to foster international amity and goodwill. This congress, remembering the world-wide approval which a few years ago greeted the proposals for steady and gradual disarmament, views with disappointment and alarm the amazing multiplication of armaments on the part of the great Powers, and the congress urges upon all members of our congregations the increasing necessity for cherishing jealously the great ideal of peace, which is involved in the very essence of Christianity, and the need for discountenancing on every possible occasion those elements in modern life which tend to glorify and precipitate war. That this congress respectfully requests every Baptist minister in the Commonwealth and New Zealand to read this resolution from his pulpit on some Sunday during 1911, and to make such references to the general subject as each may deem to be desirable and proper." Mr. Boreham bewailed the fact that powerful writers were doing all they could to inflame the passions of the nations. He had been quite shocked that naval officers, the best of them with whom he had conversed, took it for absolutely granted that war with Germany was part of the programme of the future. They talked about it as a certainty, as a thing they were preparing for. Of course he could understand naval men making preparations for war, but he was shocked that such men should be looking forward to a war between Great Britain and Germany as one of the steps of the immediate future.

The Rev. D. Macnicol, in seconding the motion, said that he had been through the South African war, and he had seen cruelty and bloodshed to an extraordinary degree.

The Rev. W. S. Rollings (S.A.) thought that the provision to make a boy army for the defence of Australia was the most evil thing that had been placed on the Statute-book of Australia. It was taking a large number of decent boys from their homes and compelling them to associate with larrikins. (Hear, hear.) Military camps were to be schools in which boys were to be learnt patriotism, and they were to be taught it by being made proficient in the most up-to-date methods of assassinations. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was agreed to unanimously.

At night Mr. A. Packer (N.S.W.), who was the Australian delegate to the first Russian congress, gave a lecture with limelight views on the subject, "With the Heretics in Russia."

The congress will be continued to-morrow.

NORTH SHORE FERRY.

REDUCTIONS OF FARES SUGGESTED.

Last night at the meeting of the North Sydney Council, Alderman Clark moved,—"That, while appreciating the action of the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., after many years, in reducing the charges for season ticket holders to a small extent, this council is of opinion that, in view of the large profits derived by the company as a result of the traffic brought to it by Government railway, tramway, and other public means, it is desirable that a substantial reduction should be made to the travelling public paying cash fares, and that this resolution be communicated to the Minister for Public Works and the directors of the Ferry Company." The company had lately increased its capital from £200,000 to £300,000, and its dividends from 10 per cent. to 12½ per cent. The motion was carried on the voices.

"19-20" AT THE PALACE THEATRE

"Primitive," unfortunately, sums up the entertainment given at the Palace Theatre last night under the title of "19-20," a musical military frisk in three acts, composed by Mr. Geo. Tutt, libretto by Mr. P. C. Gray. Two or three march tunes and valse airs of a commonplace character, and very simply harmonised, that "went with a swing," including choruses for the most part rendered unisonally, represented the best of the composer's efforts, whilst the libretto was crude. Under these circumstances, it was impossible for the Lyric Opera Company to reach within reasonable distance of the standard customary in the case of first-rate amateur productions at a metropolitan theatre. This was regrettable, because the Lyric Society has staged "19-20" prettily, with scenery by Harry Whaite and Les. Williams. The tableau showing the military encampment, "Dry Up," near Yasberra, was admirably characteristic and picturesque. Another bright feature was the interpolated ballet by Miss Ruby Hooper's pupils, the 12 dancers in daffodil and gold, followed by a group of juvenile dancers, and by a third body of children, contributing to a graceful ensemble. Enthusiasm also followed the pas seul by Miss Madge Elliott, an especially clever young professional ballerina. The plot of the piece had to do with the rescue from drowning in the Clyde (Scotland) of Jessie Macdonald (Miss Alice Harker). Her brother, Major Malcolm Macdonald (Mr. J. H. Yuill), has brought his sister to Sydney in the hope of discovering her rescuer, whom he will then challenge to mortal combat, in accordance with the inherited family tradition "that any man who holds a female Macdonald in his arms must marry her or fight the head of the clan." As a matter of fact, Jessie had already secretly married her rescuer, Lieut. Jack Langham; and the imbroglio in a tedious libretto arises from the suspicion falling upon Ebenezer Mifflin (Mr. Jack Hall), who has just proposed marriage to a charming widow, Mrs. Brighton Early (Miss Stella Allen Newton). When challenged by the Macdonald, he gets out of danger by allowing the company to suppose that it was indeed he who married Jessie, and the latter, to save her husband from her infuriated brother, at first keeps silence. Mr. Jack Hall made some capital out of the part of the fussy and boastful Mifflin, and sang with spirit a couple of well-written comic numbers. The burlesque court-martial suggested an impromptu charade, and generally the libretto-scheme was crude. Girls in military uniforms looked well, and in the hasty preparation experienced direction had been bestowed by Messrs. Sid. L. Smith (producer), E. J. Beauman (conductor), and Miss Katie Potter (who arranged the choruses). "19-20" will be repeated tonight and to-morrow.

Middle-weight division: C. Lynch v T. Smythe, L. Turner v K. Thompson, A. Williams a bye.

AUSTRALIA'S NEED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A short time ago the spirit prompted me to write a letter to a London paper on the scarcity of domestic labour in Australia. I have by this mail received 155 letters from all parts of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, from people longing to come to Australia, but not knowing how to obtain information on the subject. They are mostly from domestic servants, both men and women, and in hardly any case does the letter represent a unit. One man, a gardener, has ten children, another seven, and nearly all mention friends who are also desirous of emigrating to this land of sunshine. Some of the letters are pathetic in the struggles they reveal to make both ends meet, or even to obtain employment, however badly paid. There are letters from retired army and navy men still in their prime, and able to turn their hand to anything; and one woman writes she has three daughters tailoresses, all anxious to come. In every case where the writers are unable to pay their own or part of their passage money they state their eagerness to have the same deducted from their wages on arrival. May I suggest that a standing advertisement be inserted in one of the London daily papers, stating where information on the subject of emigration can be obtained? That it is at present not made too easy the enclosed letter will show. I am handing the letters I have received over to the Emigration Bureau, with the exception of a large number with enclosed stamps for a reply to numerous questions as to Australian conditions, climate, prices of food, rents, etc., etc., which I am endeavouring to answer to the best of my ability.

April 4. I am, etc., E. H.

MINING.

LIMITED SPECULATION.

SILVER, COPPER, AND GOLD QUIET.

After the brief flutter in Bullfinch Proprietary shares on the previous day, when the fight was against the holders of scrip, the market relapsed yesterday morning into what is becoming a state of chronic quietness.

Though the amount of business recorded was a slight improvement on that of the morning of the previous day, there was very little buoyancy about the market. In the copper division business was confined to Tolwong Mineral, Hampdens, and Kyloe Copper ordinary, which changed at late easier rates. Mount Elliotts were wanted at 96/6 ex div. 10/, which makes the quotation £5/6/6, or equal to the sale rate of the previous day. Steady offers were made for Queen Bee. There were a few inquiries for Chillagoes and Great Fitzroys at fairly steady rates, but Wallaroo and Moonta were quoted wide, whilst Mount Morgans had sellers, but no buyers declared.

With the exception of B.H. Junctions and B.H. South Blocks, which sold a fraction easier, values in the silver division were practically unaltered, except in the case of Sulphide Corporation ordinary. B.H. Souths commanded steady offers, but sellers were undeclared.

Outside the Bullfinch group, which was represented by a fractional recovery from Monday's very weak sales, gold shares were extremely quiet as regards share transactions. At the same time, however, there were fair inquiries for Baker's Creek, Cosmopolitan (N.S.W.), Occidental, Buckland River, Buckland River South Extended, South Glanmire and Monkland, No. 2 South Great Eastern, and Kalgurli South.

In the tin section, Great Britain Sluicing changed hands at a steady figure, whilst Tongkah Harbour Tin repeated the decline of the previous day.

As the list of Stock Exchanges show, an extremely characterless market ruled during the afternoon.

MINING NOTES.

Operations at the Queen Bee copper mine during the fortnight ended March 25 show that the main north drive, now in 278ft from the shaft, is still in soft black slate, with splashes of copper through it. The drive has been stopped for the present, owing to shortage of rock-drills and labour, and in order to push on south drive and sinking of main shaft, but work will be resumed as soon as possible, as prospects are very promising. The south drive off the west crosscut cut the ore body exposed in the east crosscut at 200ft point. It is about 13ft wide, and the ore is of good quality, from 4 per cent. to 10 per cent. copper the full width of the drive, with ore still showing on both sides. The main shaft was sunk 25ft to 110ft from the plat at the 570ft level.

The B.H. Proprietary Company has received a cable message, dated London, April 2, giving the following quotations:—Silver, 2/0 5-16 (official quotation); lead, £12/17/6 (buyers' price); shares, £1/15/6 (buyers' price); and spelter, £23/5/ (buyers' price).

BROKEN HILL MINES.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The Broken Hill South Blocks mine is now steadily sending its zinc middlings to the minerals' separation plant on the Central mine. The mine is doing steady work, but the mill is still only operating two shifts, which may be the rule for another month or so. Development work is at present limited. The mine just now has a full staff of men.

The B.H. Block 14 mine last week raised and despatched 500 tons of carbonate ore to Port Pirie.

BROKEN HILL SOUTH MINE.

RICH ORE IN SECTION A.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

At the B.H. South mine last week the intermediate west crosscut on 970ft level was extended to 10ft in ore going 13.3 per cent. lead, 10oz silver, and 17 per cent. zinc. The winze from this level, in section F2, was deepened to 10ft in ore going 20.4 per cent. lead. Rich ore is also showing in section A4 going south, also at the 970ft level, values going 20.1 per cent. lead, 24oz silver, and 19.5 per cent. zinc. The north drive at the 1070ft level, section F4, shows a fair seam of ore 1ft wide. The new east crosscut in section E2 is in 6ft in ore, going 15 per cent. lead, 5oz silver, and 16 per cent. zinc. Diamond drilling on 1070ft level showed in all, in section A5 3ft of sulphides of high-grade, assaying 23.4 per cent. lead, 14.4oz silver, and 25.4 per cent. zinc. At 61ft the bore entered 15ft of sulphides worth 17.6 per cent. lead, 11oz silver, and 16 per cent. zinc, and then passed into mineralised ground.

MOUNT MORGAN COMPANY.

COPPER AND GOLD VALUES LOWER.

DECLINE IN OUTPUT.

The operations of the Mount Morgan Gold-mining Company, Limited, for the month of March resulted in a decreased output of gold and Copper, due wholly and solely to a falling-off in the value of the ore treated. The tonnage handled, both at the gold reduction and copper reduction works was in excess of that of the previous month, but the lower value of the material told its tale.

The position of affairs during the past six months will be seen at a glance at the following figures:—

THE CHILLAGOE COMPANY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Chillagoe Company (Chillagoe) advises the recurrence of torrential rains through that district. It is stated that as much as 72 inches fell in three days at Kuranda. The company's railway sustained some damage from the consequent floods, and it will be 10 days before repairs can be sufficiently effected to permit of through traffic. On the Government railway from Mareeba to Cairns traffic is also blocked by the floods.

THE GOLDEN WEST.

THE WATER DIFFICULTY.

SOUTHERN CROSS, Tuesday.

G. Atkinson, whose find at Mount Jackson was reported in the early part of the year, brought some splendid specimens of gold-bearing quartz here to-day. He states that they were taken from a reef on his property, and were broken over a width of 3ft 6in. Questioned as to the water supply at Mount Jackson, Atkinson says it has absolutely petered out. The Government dam is dry, and while there is a small quantity of water in the battery dam it is unfit for human consumption. Several prospecting parties are out on that line of country, but are having a bad time with the water difficulty.

With reference to the conference held at Marvel Loch on Saturday, the men are basing their claims for an advance in wages on the terms arrived at on Bullfinch, but the mine-owners point out that this was only a temporary arrangement. It is considered likely the Marvel Loch workers will take their case to the Arbitration Court.

WESTEN AUSTRALIAN MINES.

KALGOORLIE, Tuesday.

The Ida H. Company (Laverton) during March crushed 1200 tons for 1007oz of gold. There were cyanided 800 tons of sand for 112 oz, of a total estimated value of £4393. The estimated profit was £1200.

ZINC CORPORATION.

A GREAT RECORD.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The Zinc Corporation put up a great record for March. The plant treated a record tonnage of tailings, and produced a record tonnage of concentrates. The values of both zinc and lead concentrates were greatly above the average, and the working costs were reduced from 9/6 to 8/10 per ton. A record profit was also established.

The plant treated 33,570 tons, which produced 10,945 tons of zinc concentrates, assaying 46.0 per cent. zinc, 12.5oz silver, and 5.9 per cent. lead; also 1161 tons leady concentrates, assaying 57 per cent. lead, 36.5oz silver, and 15.8 per cent. zinc. The estimated income from all sources, with lead at £25 per ton, was £38,915, and the working expenditure £14,866, equal to 8/10 per ton. With spelter at £23, the estimated net profit for the month would be £15,256, but the average was £22/18/7. The expenditure on construction was £1257.

The comparative figures for the past three months are as follows:—

	Jan.	Feb.	March.
Tailings treated, tons	23,600	27,130	33,570
Zinc concentrates, tons	6,633	8,400	10,945
Lead concentrates, tons	888	924
Estimated income (spelter at £23)	£20,101	£27,292	£38,915
Estimated profit (spelter at £23)	£2,270	£7,248	£15,526
Working costs per ton	9/11	9/6	8/10

MINING IN THE STATE.

WAGGA, Tuesday.

The warden, Mr. George Stevenson, P.M., has visited and reported on the gold rush at Murrill Creek. He found work proceeding well on a number of claims, and is sanguine as to a satisfactory result from the trial crushing of M'Lean, who has 50 tons ready at the prospector's mine. A Narrandera syndicate is having a crushing plant erected. The warden suggests that the Minister for Mines should send an inspector to get full particulars, and be of assistance to prospectors.

RAFF DEFEATS CORBETT.

After having a bit the better of the contest right through Harry Raff dropped Les Corbett twice in the twentieth round, whereupon the police intervened and called a halt, Raff being adjudged the winner. Corbett, who has been out of the game for nearly a year, made a wonderfully good showing against his younger and tricky opponent.

FINANCIAL.

PROPOSED INSURANCE AMALGAMATION.

A proposal has been put before the directors of the Commonwealth Insurance Company a Melbourne concern, for amalgamation with the recently-formed Insurance Offices of Australia, so the "Argus" states, and to this it attributes the greater interest taken in the shares of these two companies by the market during the past week. The Commonwealth Company has been approached by other offices more than once previously, but the offers made were not deemed sufficiently tempting. The company has been in existence for eight years in its present form, and for 28 years as Melbourne Lloyd's Underwriters. During the year ended June 30 last gross premiums accounted for £16,453, while for the current term this item is expected to be about £20,000. Its assets totalled £25,491 at the date of the last balance, £10,169 being Board of Works debentures (at cost), £5925 fixed deposits and loans on mortgage, and £2385 cash and balances at agencies, while sundry debtors, suspense account, and premiums outstanding stood for £7012. The authorised capital of the company is £50,000, in 100,000 shares of 10/ each, of which 49,410 have been issued, and are paid up to 8/ each, while the dividend paid has for some time been at the rate of 6 per cent. The I.O.A. Company was formed in September last, with an authorised capital of 500,000 shares of 10/ each, of which 300,000 were offered to the public, 5/ being called up. The terms of the proposed amalgamation have not been officially disclosed, but it is understood that shareholders in the Commonwealth Company are to receive shares in the I.O.A. at the rate of a little more than two shares for each Commonwealth share. In the event of the amalgamation being carried through, which is a matter for the discretion of shareholders, the Commonwealth Company would go on as at present, under the same management and directorate.

JAPAN'S COMMERCIAL AIMS.

It is understood that the tariff negotiations now proceeding between Japan and Great Britain are the outcome of the fact that the existing Anglo-Japanese Treaty of Commerce, which came into force 12 years ago, expires on July 17 next. The commercial treaties with France, Germany, and other countries also come to an end at the same time, but the treaty with the United States has been extended for a period of one year. In each case the provisions of the treaty are similar; but the British, French, and German treaties contain an additional convention dealing with the Japanese tariff. When these treaties were negotiated Japan sought to obtain the abolition of extra-territoriality, and was ready to make counter-concessions in other directions. This being so, the Conventional Tariff which was then agreed upon, and which is still in force, is entirely one-sided. Japan is desirous that the new treaties shall be of a more reciprocal character, and the negotiations now progressing so satisfactorily with Great Britain and other countries have this idea of reciprocity in view. With regard to the new tariff which has lately become law in Japan, it is pointed out that according to the Japanese Constitution this may be superseded by a special treaty with any foreign Power without the consent of Parliament, although the law itself remains unaltered. The new commercial treaties will in the main follow the lines of those shortly to expire, but with this important addition—that in certain cases there will be added a new special tariff.

MANLY ELECTRIC SUPPLY COMPANY, LTD.

An abridged prospectus of the above company appears elsewhere in our columns. The proposal is to float a company with a nominal capital of £20,000 in £1 shares, of which 11,500 shares are to be offered to the public, 4000 shares, plus £6500 in cash, go to the vendors, and 4500 shares will be held in reserve. The new company is to acquire the assets and a liability of £920 of the Manly Electric Light and Power Company, Ltd. The assets are valued at £8011, and the goodwill is stated in the prospectus as £2488. The net value of the assets, less liabilities, is, however, only £7091, and the real goodwill £3408. We have not been supplied with an unabridged prospectus, which should give some information on the following point omitted from the abridged prospectus, viz., the net profit made by the vendor company. The value of the assets taken over, too, should have been valued independently of the vendor company.

MARCONI AND TELEFUNKEN COMPANIES.

Reuter's Agency states with reference to a communication from Berlin recently published by that agency that the Marconi Company and the Telefunken Company have agreed to form a new company, each transferring its interests to that new company under the direction of the two interests, or, in other words, there has been merely a fusion of the two interests, but no ceding from one to the other.

THE MARKETS.

Generally speaking, the business done yesterday was of a satisfactory volume in distributing lots, but between houses the characteristic of the markets was quietness. Perhaps stocktaking, which has been proceeding recently with some firms, was the cause. Excitement centred in turpentine, another rise in Pinetree being noted, and it closely approached Pratt's. Linseed oil remained unchanged, though forward lots were not quite so firm. The local make, Meggitt's, is moving off freely at the listed prices. Ten casks were sold yesterday at 5/3. All fish oils and whale oils were at the late high prices. Ten casks of fish oils changed hands. There was an extensive inquiry for rocksalt, both white and red, the former being quoted at 65/ and the latter 45/ to 47/6 a ton. Parcels to arrive were just as firmly held. Chinese walnuts received some inquiry, but were found to be unprocurable. Generally, they are lower in price than the Italian product. Essences were on the short side, and moved off freely. Anchovy and bloater paste also received attention. Regular shipments of Mildura fruits are coming forward, and in consequence of reports as to damage buyers are found to be more exacting than would otherwise be the case. The experience of agents is that lots which would be passed without difficulty in an ordinary season are now refused. The position is, however, simply this, that if the fruit which has been passed by the inspector is not taken now it will have to be taken later on. Stocks will not permit of any picking and choosing. The size of the fruit is larger than ordinary.

At the tea auctions yesterday 800 packages of Indians and Ceylons were offered, and 550 were sold, prices ranging from /8½ to /10½ a pound. Bidding generally was good, and the market displayed more animation. A satisfactory amount of business was done privately. Two hundred packages of Ceylons sold up to /11½. Advices stated that there was little coming forward, so that the market would seem to be greatly dependent on stocks on spot.

Imported cement remained a scarce commodity, not nearly sufficient to satisfy inquiries. Two hundred casks were sold at 13/6. Wire-nettings and barbed wire continued in general demand. Some movement was noticed in galvanised iron, both plain and corrugated, as the result of Monday's reduction of ten shillings a ton.

In the jute market there seemed a disposition to arrange a bear movement on woolpacks, and it was reported that Calcutta showed a somewhat weak tendency. It may be, however, that to fill up the steamer which is about due to leave, a concession would be made for some lots. The price on spot remained firm at 2/4½. 25 bales being sold on for Queensland account on this quotation. Ten bales of cornsacks sold at 5/3. Business in branbags at 3/10 was of little moment.

WORLD'S VISIBLE WHEAT SUPPLY.

The sudden fall which occurred in the wheat market at the commencement of the week has naturally resulted in some inquiry as to the cause. We know that the direct cause is the large amount coming forward, which, according to our cable from London, published to-day, is 7,440,000 quarters, over a million quarters in advance of the amount afloat on the same day last year. But, in addition to this, there is no doubt, in the opinion of "Beerbohm," that, provided official estimates of the last two wheat crops are correct, North America has a large quantity of wheat over and above requirements, and it is therefore quite possible that exports from the United States in the next few months may be larger. The wheat is believed to be in the country, and it remains to be seen whether farmers will be satisfied with prices obtainable. There is also the world's visible supply to be taken into consideration. On March 1 it was larger than on that day of any year since 1895. Excluding the Australian visible supply, the totals for the months mentioned of this year and the two previous years were:—

	1911. Qrs.	1910. Qrs.	1909 Qrs.
March 1	21,100,000	16,920,000	18,280,000
February 1	21,385,000	15,735,000	17,315,000
January 1	22,015,000	15,350,000	16,795,000

EXPLOITING AUSTRALIAN BUTTER.

According to our London correspondent, the methods of the people who manipulate the market of Australian and New Zealand butter are causing great dissatisfaction. The "exploitation of colonial butter" is a subject now being debated in the "Grocer," and many and bitter are the remarks made by big and small buyers who think themselves injured. One of the letters states: "It was the president of the Bristol Provision Trade Association who said at one of their meetings that the trade in colonial produce was a monopoly in the hands of about half a dozen firms. It is quite amazingly true, and to their manipulations is mainly due the congestion of the article on the London market, the apathy of the provincial markets, and their reluctance to handle it. The clique want the buyers of the five-box lots, and want to compel the buyers of 500-box lots to come in on the same terms. The prices are fixed in secret conclave, not in the interest of the colonies, but to suit the 'book' of the few and their speculative deals." The gist of the complaints seems to concern the up and down market movements of Australian butter, caused by "manipulation." Thus the buyer is afraid to cut Australian butter regularly, because he knows not what a week may bring forth in the way of price.

BREADSTUFFS.

The market for wheat yesterday was weak, with only small lots offering. Shippers continued at 3/1 to 3/1½, ex truck Sydney, for farmers' lots, but there was no inquiry for parcels. They were not wanted. London was cabled lifeless, with a disinclination to buy, and while this state of affairs continues the local market will remain in a state of stagnation. Millers' price for primest was 3/4.

Flour continued dull of sale, at the convention price of £8/5/. Should wheat show any further signs of weakness there will be a disposition to consider a reduction.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 2558 tons of wheat and 138 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The wheat market was dull and weak. Farmers' lots were quoted at 3/, trucks, Port Adelaide, 2/11 outports. There was very little disposition to sell, and no large parcel trade was doing. Flour was quiet, rates being unchanged. Millers are waiting for farmers to sell before adjusting quotations upon the basis of current prices of wheat. Bran and pollard are firm at /12 to /12½, with a tendency to advance. There was a good turnover in dairy produce on a firm market. Butter: Best factory sold at /11 to /12½, dairy /10 to /11, stores /7 to /8. Eggs were firmer at 1/4½ to 1/5½ per dozen. Cheese was steady at /4½ to /5 per lb. Almonds were selling freely at auction at /6½ per lb. There was a good turnover in honey at 2¼ to /3¼.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

ONIONS VERY WEAK.

The most remarkable feature of Tuesday's market was the drop in the price of onions. The three steamers Moorabool, Tyrian, and Riverina have brought about 5000 bags, and as that is about a month's supply, in one week the prices have come down accordingly. Sales were effected at £2 and up to £2/10/, and nothing beyond that price was obtained. Maize was still firm, and generally in good demand. Chaff sold steadily, and other feed lines were in keeping. Potatoes were firm, though another shipment had arrived.

Current quotations were:—

DAIRY PRODUCE.

EGGS SLIGHTLY FIRMER.

There was a slightly firmer tone in trade generally on Tuesday, but the only line showing alteration was eggs. New-laids, when of unimpeachable quality only, were bringing 1/11, but 1/10 was still the general price. It is to be remembered that the price of 1/11 is only for excellent eggs of good size, and not for mixed preserved and pullet lots. The genuine scientific egg-farmer is undoubtedly able to mitigate the circumstance of distance by careful packing and expeditious forwarding, and in consequence can always command a good price; but there are many who supply eggs to markets who are only amateurs at the business, and whose eggs, though perhaps at times of good quality, usually are very variable. It seems still a point that quality can command a price, and that the method of grading produces such ... laid consignments may succeed once or twice, but is sure to be found out in the end, and from that time forward that brand of egg will be, metaphorically speaking, "a frost." The sooner that egg-men realise that honest packing and careful grading pay best the better it will be for all concerned; many do, of course, and these remarks do not apply to them. But then, again, many do not. Butter was still rather dull, though the secondary grades were better sought for. Lard was still active. Bacon found ready sales at unaltered rates, and ham sold steadily. Honey was good at /3 for best, and the secondary grades were also steady. Other lines were unaltered.

The following prices were current:—

Butter.—First-grade 86/, medium 82/ to 84/, secondary 76/ to 81/ per cwt; dairy 68/ to 74/ per cwt.

Lard.—Bulk, /5½; packets /6¼; special packets /6½, bulk /6¼ per lb.

Cheese.—Prime loaf /5½ to /5¾, large /4¾ to /5, medium size /4½ to /4¾, good /4 to /4½, inferior from /3, special /6½ to /7 per lb.

Bacon.—Prime factory, sides /6¾ to /7½, flitches /7 to /7½, middles /8½ to /9; special sides /6½, middles /9¾ to /10, flitches /8¾, shoulders /5½ per lb.

Hams.—Bacon, /8 to /9, prepared /9½ to /11; special double covers /12½; single cloth, /11½ to 1/ per lb.

Eggs.—Northern river, 1/ to 1/1, choice 1/2, candled 1/3; South Coast and railway 1/1 to 1/3, choice 1/4 to 1/5; suburban, new-laid 1/9 to 1/10, choice 1/11; duck eggs, 1/2 to 1/5, choice 1/6 per dozen.

POULTRY.

The following prices were ruling:—Hens, extra choice 3/ to 3/6, good 2/9 to 3/; roosters, extra choice 4/, good 3/ to 3/6; chickens, small 1/ to 1/6; Muscovy ducks, 3/6; drakes 4/ to 5/; English ducks, 2/6 to 3/; turkeys, choice hens 5/ to 7/6, cocks 10/ to 15/; guineafowls, 4/6; pigeons, 1/6 per pair.

Messrs. Mossman and Ellis report having obtained the following prices at their auction sale yesterday:—Eggs, case to 1/3, new-laid 1/8 to 1/10, choice suburban 1/11, duck to 1/6 per doz.; fowls, young roosters 2/6 to 3/9, choice suburban to 4/9, small from 1/6; fat hens, 3/3 to 3/9, choice suburban to 4/6; ducks, English 2/3 to 3/, no choice to hand; Muscovy, 2/9 to 3/3, choice suburban to 3/9; drakes, 4/6 to 5/6, choice suburban to 6/6; turkeys, hen, small to 5/6, medium 6/6, good 8/6; small to 6/6, medium to 8/6, good to 12/6; geese, to 5/; pigeons to 2/ per pair. There was a good demand for very best eggs only. The extra heavy supplies of poultry to hand caused prices to ease still further. The market is likely to be glutted till Easter, and prices may go lower.

APIARY PRODUCTS.

The following were the ruling prices:—

Honey.—Choice western, /2½; special, /3; good northern, /2½; dark and candied, /1; rough, /1½ per lb.

Beeswax.—Prime clear 1/1 to 1/3, dark 1/ to 1/1 per lb.

FIREWOOD.

Twenty-five trucks were forwarded, and the demand was good. Good sales were effected at the following prices:—

Best boxwood, 18/ to 19/6, good 17/ to 18/; ironbark and stringy, 12/ to 16/; best bakers' wood, 15/, good 14/ to 14/6.

AUCTION SALES.

THE RAILWAY MARKET.

A HUMOROUS MARKET.

Many of the buyers at the Redfern saleyards on Tuesday had apparently been knocked on the funny-bone rather severely, as they were suffering from over exuberance of good spirits. It is no doubt superfluous, but we may add that the spirits were not alcoholic. Outlet was found for their good humour in the various little well-known tricks they have up at the yards, and auctioneers, buyers, and inoffensive onlookers were to be seen parading about with various tickets adhering to them, several showing that they had been "oiled and examined" on a certain date, others were wanted "for repairs," and still others were marked as "urgent" and "refrigerating." One bidder there was who looked like an animated advertisement page of a daily paper, so thickly was the back of his coat pinned with tickets and papers. It is an understood thing that, while the recipient remains in the sheds, he is to be unacquainted with the joke, though very few are allowed to wander through the city ticketed. It is often humorous to lookers-on to see one joker smiling broadly at an unfortunate, ignorant of the fact that at the very moment he is amusing himself at someone's else expense another artist is likewise engaged in making him a subject. One sedate old seller was distracted by the antics to such an extent that he knocked down a truckload about threepence below what he intended it to get. A well-known figure in the yard strolled from sale to sale with a tail, consisting of several feet of rope, and it was the same person who had his paper fired while his attention was temporarily diverted. These and other jokes no doubt helped towards making only 50 trucks put through, as compared with 72 trucks yesterday. Most of the lines offered were bid for slowly, and very little animation was shown, even in chaff and potatoes, which were the only lines which called forth bids at all freely, prime potatoes bringing from 6/ to 6/5, good 5/ to 5/9, medium 3/1 to 4/6 per cwt, and inferior 2/ per bag. Choice wheaten chaff brought 4/5, prime from 3/9 to 4/, good 3/6, and medium 2/9. Prime oats sold freely at 2/9, mixed chaff having a difficulty in moving off at 2/10. Choice large bales of lucerne have found purchasers at 4/, good at from 2/6 to 2/10, and inferior at 1/4. Prime rack oaten hay was bid for keenly, eventually being knocked down at the satisfactory price of 4/8. The only truck of lucerne chaff sold was of medium quality, and brought 2/4 per cwt. Prime dry yellow maize left sellers at 2/8, good samples going at 2/6½. Oats were not in demand, a fine lot of Tartarian side-bearing oats finding no purchaser, and being such good quality stuff, it was a fair indication that buyers had good stocks in hand. Good whites went under at 2/6, medium Algerians finding buyers at 2/2.

Fifty trucks were offered for sale, and of these fourteen were passed in, i.e.:—Chaff, 16, passed 4; lucerne hay, 6, passed 2; oaten hay, 2, passed 1; lucerne chaff, 4, passed 3; maize, 2, passed 0; oats, 4, passed 2; wheat, 1, passed 1; and potatoes, 15, passed 1.

A very strong demand ruled for all descriptions of greasy wool, and good conditioned lines were 5 per cent. above the closing rates of the weekly series, other sorts ranging from par to 5 per cent. advance on late rates. Attractive scoured lines were well competed for at prices from par to 5 per cent. above the last auction, but short and faulty scoureds were not in keen demand.

Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Ltd., offered a catalogue comprising a fair selection of greasy and scoured. In the grease the highest price was /12½, paid for 4 super of WMcM/Maneroo/Rafaworth, 9 AA w h of the same mark making /12½. This was a well-grown wool in super condition. LIVE STOCK MARKET.

MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 20,000 fat sheep were yarded. The supply was well suited to trade requirements, a large proportion consisting of good and prime qualities. The market opened weak, with a further tendency in favour of buyers. For best merino wethers prices were barely maintained, while for other grades, especially good and prime crossbreds, prices rapidly receded to fully /6 per head under late rates. During the latter part of the day the decline was even morepronounced, closing dull at decidedly reduced rates. Quotations:—Prime crossbred wethers, from 15/9 to 17/9; extra, 18/ to 20/; good, 14/6 to 15/; second, 13/ to 14/; with hoggets from 11/6 to 12/9; prime crossbred ewes, 14/ to 15/; extra, 15/9 to 17/9; good, 12/ to 13/6; second, 9/9 to 11/6; inferior, from 7/; prime merino wethers, 13/6 to 15/; extra, 15/6 to 16/9; good, 11/6 to 13/; second and inferior, from 8/; with merino ewes, 8/ to 13/3.

Fat Lambs.—10,500 were yarded. Opening sales were brisk at advanced rates; but as the sale progressed biddings became weaker, and prices receded to lower rates. Prime sold at from 11/3 to 12/9; extra, 13/ to 15/6; good, 10/ to 10/9; second, 8/ to 9/6; inferior from 7/.

CARELESSNESS IN TAKING OF CENSUS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I would deem it a favour if you would grant me a little space in your valuable paper for a few remarks on this matter.

I was travelling this morning by the express from Brisbane. In the same compartment were seven other passengers, not one of whom had filled in a census paper, owing to the fact that they had been travelling all night.

At Newcastle a porter, who was collecting tickets, asked for census papers. He was then informed that no papers had been given to them. He replied that they would probably "fix them up at the other end." At Strathfield another railway official came to "collect" papers, and he "supposed" that papers would be forthcoming on arrival at Sydney. When we arrived at Sydney there was no one giving out papers, so I presume that these people did not get any papers at all.

Now, Sir, this is only one compartment (containing eight persons, seven of whom will probably be "among the missing"), and as there were, I suppose, at least 300 people on that train who came from beyond Newcastle, if the other parts of the train were "managed" as skilfully, then somewhere about 200 people are, and will be, lost to New South Wales for the ensuing ten years. I am, etc,

April 3. R. PATRICK.

THE WEATHER.

Fine, cool, and pleasant conditions prevailed throughout the State during the past 24 hours, not a single station reporting rainfall. The highest maximum temperature was 89 at Wilcannia and Moree, while many of the minimum readings were below the forties on the high land. Kiandra was the lowest, the registration there being 3 degrees below freezing point. Other low readings were, 33 at Nimitybelle, Rockley 36, Coonabarabran 37, Orange 38, and Molong 39.

THE TURF.

COMING AUTUMN MEETING.

POINTS OF HANDICAPPING.

The arrival at headquarters of numerous equine visitors from other States has improved the general interest in the coming A.J.C. Autumn Meeting, and the success of the same seems fully assured, inasmuch as many of the fancied horses engaged in the various races are in excellent trim for the important tasks ahead of them. The success of a race meeting does not depend so much upon mere numbers as upon the bodily condition of the horses engaged. Condition, as a rule, brings about closer contests than attempts at handicapping horses. A small army of racers is doing progressive work at Randwick, and many of the horses have been improving their condition in public of late. Some trainers are confident that one good race under colours is equal to half a dozen training gallops.

At Rosehill recently we were privileged to see many prominent handicap horses out, and we were, therefore, afforded an opportunity of differentiating between them, and valuing the Doncaster Handicap imposts in the broad light of late public form. Several events at Rosehill served to upset the preconceived ideas of students of racing, handicappers in particular, based upon Doncaster Handicap weights. The running also provided bookmakers with a golden opportunity of scoring heavily over their clients. The results will enable them to face the coming Easter meeting with comparative equanimity. The first surprise came with the Camellia Stakes, a race run over the Doncaster Handicap distance (one mile), when Torula (6st 11lb) beat Wirilla (9st 5lb) by a head, with Sandbath (7st 7lb), a hot favourite, two lengths off in front of Safrano (9st), Nangar (8st 10lb), Grist (8st 8lb), Call Boy (8st 7lb), and The Reckoning (8st 3lb). All these, with the exception of Nangar, are in the Doncaster Handicap at imposts that enable Wirilla to take off 12lb; but Torula is divested of but 1lb, and Sandbath must put on 6lb. If there be anything in handicapping, horses that are fit and well, as these two are, Sandbath is clean out of court. Call Boy, who was perhaps short of a gallop, is entitled to take off 14lb, and Safrano and Grist—both very backward—are relieved respectively of 25lb and 11lb. Providing this pair improve meanwhile, which is extremely probable, they should have at least an equal say with Wirilla, who was wound up fit and well for the Rosehill race, and the previous week showed excellent winning form at Warwick Farm.

Surprise number two came with the Rosehill Cup, which resulted in Crown Derby, 8st, winning cleverly, if not easily, from Bright Laddie, 8st 12lb, with Electric Wire, 8st 10lb, two lengths away. In the Doncaster Handicap Crown Derby has 16lb less to carry, and Bright Laddie 4lb, but Electric Wire puts on 2lb; therefore the Riding Master mare has a decided pull in poundage over her two Rosehill victims. In consequence, she has shortened in the betting from very long odds to a place among the best backed in the race. Among other Doncaster Handicap candidates that behaved satisfactorily on the opening day at Rosehill were Maltster Maid, Gladswood, and Miss Corelli, while Mundoie returned to public notice after a long absence, and was heavily backed, but failed. Perhaps, in the vernacular of the turf, he was "too new," and may make amends at Randwick. Of the quintet mentioned, Gladswood and Miss Corelli are the most likely to distinguish themselves at headquarters.

When the weights for the Doncaster Handicap appeared astonishment was expressed at Flavinius being placed above Malt King. There was certainly only 2lb difference, but the opinion was fairly general that Malt King, a proved w.f.a. horse over a mile, was better entitled to the place of honour than a first-class handicap horse like Flavinius; but Malt King's owner was evidently dissatisfied, and withdrew his horse on the appearance of the weights. Subsequently Byplay, 8st 10lb, and Son of the Marsh, 8st 4lb, were withdrawn. The scratched trio were among seven more of less prominent Doncaster Handicap candidates that ran in the Rawson Stakes, over 9 furlongs, at w.f.a., at Rosehill, on Saturday last. Their positions at the finish and the weights carried, as well as the allotments made by the A.J.C. handicapper, are set out in the appended table:—

Doncaster Handicap Weight.	—	Rawson Stakes Weight.
9st 5lb.	Malt King (1st)	9st.
8st 10lb.	By Play (2nd)	8st 12lb.
9st 7lb.	Flavinius (3rd)	9st 2lb.
8st 12lb.	Electric Wire (4th)	9st 6lb.
7st 12lb.	Lord Foote (5th)	7st 7lb.
8st 4lb.	Son of the Marsh	9st 2lb.
8st.	Beverage	9st 6lb.
8st 3lb.	Wirilla	8st 13lb.
8st.	Sequarious	8st 11lb.
8st 11lb.	Desert Rose	8st 4lb.

Malt King won the Rawson Stakes in a common canter; in fact he was easing up over the last half furlong, and By Play, who was running on better than the others, cut Flavinius out of second place by a length, and Electric Wire was a couple of lengths off with Lord Foote, while a big gap separated this pair and the others. Had this performance taken place before the A.J.C. weights appeared Malt King would surely have been called upon to allow Flavinius at least 7lb for the beating, and doubtless his owner already regrets having so hastily scratched him. If Beverage was anything near his best on Saturday, his prospects of winning the Doncaster Handicap are scarcely worth discussing, in view of the fact of Flavinius meeting him 13lb better, while Wirilla and Sequarious are 18lb and 19lb better off. The same remark applies to Desert Rose, who will need to improve at least a stone to beat Flavinius. The Rawson Stakes running points to Flavinius again beating all those behind him.

No less than 13 of the 15 starters in the Clyde Stakes at Rosehill are engaged in the Doncaster Handicap, and 11 of them carry from 3lb to 14lb less in the big race than they were burdened with at Rosehill. The two that receive no concession are Snowfoot and Sandbath. Of the others Miss Corelli is the best off in respect of weight, having 14lb less, and as the gallop is calculated to improve her this very honest daughter of Holbrook is likely to give a better account of herself on Easter Saturday. Lager, who won this race easily from Royal Merv and Grist, takes 9lb off, which leaves her in the Doncaster with a more than average chance, but consideration must be given to the fact of this fine daughter of Maltster being in excellent buckle at the time, having raced a good deal lately, while her brother (Grist), who meets her on a pound worse terms in the big mile race, is still backward [illegible] but his second run in public for nearly two months, therefore when everything is carefully considered the most likely of those that ran in the Clyde Stakes to figure prominently in the Doncaster Handicap are Grist, Miss Corelli, and Lager. Last year Storey, who ultimately won the Doncaster, won the Clyde Stakes in much the same style as did Lager. The Rosehill form, summed up, points to Flavinius, Wirilla, Gladswood, Crown Derby, Bright Laddie, Miss Corelli, Call Boy, Royal Merv, Lager, and Grist being the cream of the Doncaster horses who carried silk. These, with Mundoie, Full Sail, Gold Thread, Kerlie, and Nuwarra Eliya, will make up a representative field, and one likely to provide a contest worthy of the traditions of Randwick, and another week may bring Miss Corelli, Nuwarra Eliya, and Grist into a brighter light.

Wagering on the Sydney Cup is quiet, compared to the business of the Doncaster Handicap. The Parisian is at a very short price, while By Play, Bridge, and Eric are the best backed of the others. Bridge is a fine stamp of a horse, with hooked hocks, but that did not prevent him from winning the New Zealand Cup of two miles. He is to be M'Lachlan's mount in the Sydney Cup, and with that jockey in the saddle had a run at Rosehill, but is yet backward. Doubtless a fortnight's work will make another horse of him. Cadonia, who is a good deal above himself, was well backed for the Club Handicap at Rosehill, and though badly ridden was doing well at the finish, and looked like running on. However, of the Rosehill lot, By Play seems the best of the Cup horses that ran, while Safrano, Tanami, and Cadonia all seem invested with fair prospects in the great A.J.C. long-distance race.

WEIGHTS COMPARED.

A feature of Saturday's racing at Rosehill was the proportions of the fields. No fewer than 96 horses were out under silk during the afternoon, or an average of 16 per race. Horses holding Doncaster Handicap and Sydney Cup engagements were Grist, Miss Corelli, Malthusian, Sandbath (imp.), The Reckoning, Flavinius, Wirrilla, Electric Wire, Lord Foote, Safrano, and Call Boy; those with Doncaster Handicap engagements only were Gigandra, Lager, Royal Merv, Beverage, Torquay (imp.), Sir Lawrence, Hartfell, Locomotion, Snowfoot, Sequarious, Desert Rose, and True Spec; while the Cup candidates only were Adgio, Patronatus, By-Play, Tanami, Eric, Bridge, Cadonia, The Lad, Mil, Elkhorn, Moorilla, and Black Prince. The weights carried by the horses engaged in the short distance handicap at Rosehill and their imposts for the mile race at Randwick are as under:—

	Clyde Stakes, 7f.		Doncaster H'cap, 1m.
Gigandra	8 10	..	7 13
Lager (first)	8 10	..	8 1
Grist (third)	8 4	..	7 11
Miss Corelli	8 4	..	7 4
Malthusian	8 4	..	7 11
Sandbath (imp.)	7 13	..	7 13
Royal Merv (second)	7 10	..	7 2
Torquay (imp.)	7 10	..	6 12
Sir Lawrence	7 10	..	7 3
Hartfell	7 10	..	7 5
The Reckoning	7 10	..	7 7
Locomotion	7 3	..	6 7

The comparison shows that Gigandra will have 11lb less to carry, Lager 9lb, Grist 7lb, Miss Corelli 14lb, Malthusian 7lb; Royal Merv 8lb less; Sir Lawrence 7lb, Hartfell 5lb, The Reckoning 3lb, and Locomotion 7lb more; while Sandbath will carry the same weight as on Saturday. On Saturday's running Lager seems the best investment in that bunch.

Subjoined is a comparison of the weights carried in the Club Handicap at Rosehill, with those allotted for the long distance handicap at Randwick:—

	Club H'cap, 1m 3f.		Sydney Cup, 2m.
Eric	9 7	..	8 4
Bridge	9 7	..	8 7
Cadonia	8 0	..	7 8
Safrano	8 6	..	7 6
The Lad	7 2	..	7 7
Mil (third)	7 2	..	7 11
Elkhorn	6 7	..	6 10
Moorilla	6 7	..	6 7

Thus it will be seen that Eric will have 17lb less to carry in the long distance race, Bridge 14lb, Cadonia 6lb, Safrano 14lb. The Lad 5lb more; Mil 9lb less; Elkhorn 3lb more; and Moorilla equal weight.

HAWKESBURY RACE CLUB.

AUTUMN MEETING.

The Hawkesbury Race Club, which has been in existence over half a century, and whose destinies have been guided for over 40 years by that efficient organiser, Mr. C. S. Guest, secretary, has, despite the competition with proprietary racing, regained the position it held in the world of sport before the depression of the early "nineties" reduced its prestige. About that time the extension and regrading of the track became absolutely necessary, and the old buildings needed renewal, while the funds of the club were at a very low ebb. Notwithstanding the unpromising outlook, the good sportsmen who controlled the institution faced the situation, and in the meantime not only have they doubled the prize money, but have effected improvements on the track and in the reserves the cost of which runs into thousands of pounds, with the result that at present it ranks among the best-equipped racecourses outside of Randwick. And in this connection some credit is due to the Rosehill Racing Club, the management of which, in the true sportsmanlike spirit, placed its course at the disposal of the old institution when assistance was most needed, and so enabled it to tide over the difficulties which then beset it. The meeting which takes place next Saturday promises to be one of the most successful in the annals of the club. Horses of good quality are engaged, the track was never in better condition than at present, and an efficient transit service has been arranged, while, as usual, the commissariat department is in capable hands.

The Autumn Handicap, the principal race on the card for the Hawkesbury meeting on Saturday, has some notable horses on the list, at the head of which is the Melbourne Cup winner Comedy King, to whom Mr. Quinton has allotted the steadying burden of 10st 10lb. Comedy King is succeeded by the Caulfield Cup winner Flavinius, to whom the imported horse is conceding 15lb. Eric, who appropriated the A.J.C. Metropolitan last spring, is in receipt of 11lb from the Caulfield Cup winner. Further down the list is Apple Pie, who with 7st 5lb in the saddle ran third to Comedy King (7st 11lb) and Trafalgar (9st 2lb) in the last Melbourne Cup, and last month with 7st 10lb in the saddle she was badly beaten by The Parisian (7st 7lb) in the Australian Cup. On this occasion she has been called upon to carry 7st 12lb over a mile and a quarter and 100 yards, and though her performance in the Rosehill Cup under 8st 4lb on the opening day of the Rosehill meeting was not very attractive—she finished fifth—with 6lb off her back she may be hard to beat in the big race at Clarendon next Saturday. It is not probable that Comedy King will be numbered among the starters, but Flavinius may face the music, and should have a good look in.

The Doncaster Handicap candidate Lager, who won the Clyde Stakes, 7f, at Rosehill on Saturday under 8st 10lb has been sent up 13lb in the weights for the Flying Handicap to be decided next Saturday at the Hawkesbury meeting, and now figures on the same mark with Maltchester and Wirrilla at 9st 9lb. Miss Corelli, who started second favourite for the Clyde Stakes and shaped disappointingly, has been allotted the same weight as she had in the saddle, and Hartfell, who was just beaten out of a place in the same event, has a like impost in the sprint race at Clarendon. Full Sail seems to have a good chance under 7st 13lb, while Adjacent, Flavigny, and The Maze read well at their respective weights.

TATTERSALL'S CLUB.

The annual general meeting of the members of Tattersall's Club takes place in the clubroom, Pitt-street, at 8 p.m., on Thursday, the 20th instant, the business to be transacted on that occasion being the election of chairman, treasurer, four members of committee, and two auditors, as well as to receive the report and balance-sheet for the year ended February 28. Candidates for any of the aforementioned offices must be proposed and seconded at least seven days prior to the day of election, and must tender their consent in writing at the time of nomination.

SALE OF RACEHORSES.

BLAIRGOUR BRINGS 1600 GNS.

There was an exceptionally large gathering of persons interested in turf pursuits at Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co.'s stables, Randwick, yesterday afternoon, when several well-known racehorses were brought under the hammer. The greatest interest was centred in the Wallace horse Blairgour, whose dam, Wakeful, was among the best of modern performers on the race track, and it was confidently expected that brilliant careers awaited her progeny. Blairgour opened his winning account in the V.R.C. Hopeful Stakes, and it was not until the following spring that he again troubled the judge in the V.A.T.C. Memsie Stakes. In February last, however, he gave racegoers a taste of his quality by winning the Oakleigh Plate and the Futurity Stakes at the V.A.T.C. Autumn Meeting. A strong favourite for the last Newmarket Handicap, he failed in the great sprint race at Flemington, and his owner, Mr. C. L. Macdonald, decided to retire from the turf. Having disposed of his other horses in Victoria, Mr. Macdonald determined to submit Blairgour to public competition in Sydney, and he was the first horse paraded yesterday. Though the train which brought him to Sydney was seven hours late, he was landed in splendid condition, and stepped into the ring bright and fresh. Bidding opened with 500 guineas, and in 100-guinea bids he ran up to 1300 guineas, then with rises of 50 guineas he reached 1600 guineas, and at that he was knocked down to the well-known Sydney sportsman, Mr. T. Longworth. The New Zealand-bred mare Artillerie brought 500 guineas, the bid of Mr. S. Green, who secured her for his Shipley (Vic.) stud. The Maltster horse Maltchester retired from the ring unsold when bidding ceased at 625 guineas; and the hurdle racers Emerald Isle and Pakau also left the arena without changing hands. Blue Robin found a new owner, and Poppyfield went cheaply.

The lots sold are as under:—

B h Blairgour, by Wallace—Wakeful, 5yrs—Mr. T. Longworth, 1600gns.
Br m Artillerie, by Royal Artillery—Nantes, 5yrs—Mr. S. Green, 500gns.
Br g Blue Robin, by True Blue—Miss Robinson, 4yrs—Mr. J. Hurley, 300gns.
Ch g Poppyfield, by Voyou—Fairy, 6yrs—Mr. R. Clancy, 45gns.

FULL SAIL PUTS UP A FAST MILE.

Several owners were present at Randwick yesterday morning to see their horses at work. The middle grass track was in use, and several good gallops were run on it. J. Burton was the "early bird," and he sent Rockweed for a useful six furlongs gallop, no time being made. Philio and Breach were mates over a smartly-run half-mile, and Beverage ran once round at a steady pace, accounting for the last six furlongs in 1m 20s. Bright Laddie easily ran a mile in 1m 47s, while Nangar and Sourabaya covered a mile and a quarter strongly. Eric was not out for time-making over six furlongs, but Mil and Something Irish were on terms over a mile and a quarter in 2m 14½s. Brazil finished several lengths ahead of Crown Grant, Seaham, and Ecuador over seven furlongs in 1m 32s, while La Pistol and Adgio made moderate time over seven furlongs. Diabolo, alone, ran nine furlongs in 2m 0½s, and Snowfoot covered three-quarters of a mile in 1m 21⅕s, a distance which Gladswood and Malthusian put past in 1m 18s. Queen Foote and Lord Foote slipped over nine furlongs in 2m, and Sequarious ran eight in 1m 47s. Patronatus and Moorilla accounted for a mile and a half, the last circle of which was run in 2m 22s—a very fair performance. Nuwarra Eliya went in taking style over seven furlongs in 1m 31½s, and Blue Gem got once round in 2m 23s. Dorando ran a mile and a quarter in 2m 19s, while Piastre and Posio covered five furlongs in 1m 5⅕s. Royal Fleet cast a mile behind in 1m 52s, and Colma six furlongs in 1m 20s. Mindful and Kerlie finished together over a mile in 1m 46½s, and Miss Corelli ran six furlongs in 1m 17s. True Spec was sent a steady once round, as was Danaus. Cadonia and Bridge were on almost level terms when a round had been run in 2m 24½s, while Crown Derby ran seven furlongs in 1m 32s. Comedy King galloped a mile and a quarter comfortably in 2m 16s, and he moved freely. Trafalgar was out, but only did steady pacing work. Lager ran six furlongs in good style, and Maltster Maid covered a furlong further in 1m 32s. Maltchester ran five furlongs in 1m 5s, while The Lad and Black Prince were together over seven furlongs in 1m 33s. Aerobelle ran four furlongs in 53s, and Mirabexta slipped over the same journey in 51½s. Full Sail put up the mile record of the morning by running the Doncaster Handicap distance in 1m 44s. He was ridden by E. Turner. Sconser ran six furlongs in 1m 21s, while Leuron and Bubble Up accounted for seven furlongs in 1m 32s, and Alured got over half a mile in 53½s. Desert Rose disposed of six furlongs in 1m 17s, while The Parisian put past a mile and a quarter in 2m 14½s, and he went easily throughout. By Play accomplished the same journey in 2m 16s. Eye Glass was not extended over a useful journey, and Aurum was all out to run six furlongs in 1m 21s. Sandbath proved that he can both gallop and stay by beating Apple Pie by four lengths over a mile and a quarter in 2m 15s. Blairgour was out on the tan, but only put in a strong five furlongs gallop, and Posaune ran nine furlongs in 2m 6s.

TRACK NOTES.

Trafalgar, Bibbenluke, and Gillamatong, in charge of Walter Hickenbotham, have arrived safely from Melbourne, and were on the Randwick training tracks yesterday morning. Trafalgar never looked better in any of his previous visits, and was restricted merely to useful exercise. Flavian and Captain White, two shapely and smart sons of Flavus, have come over in charge of Mark Whittey, and look well to the eye. Cripps has arrived with Mr. A. T. Creswick's pair, Boyong and No Trouble; and Frank Musgrave was out with Mindful and Kerlie, while the Melbourne trainer Mulcahey has put in an appearance with Sentrosus. A. Skirving is expected to-day with Broadsword and Orosova. James Scobie and James Wilson, junr., arrived last week to superintend the training of their horses, and the veteran Isaac Foulsham is on the spot with a couple of smart two-year-olds, Sconser and Arnisdale, both by Maltster.

Another Victorian visitor, Full Sail, who has been heavily backed for the Doncaster Handicap, was responsible for the only sensation of the morning. With Turner—about 8st—up he ran a mile in 1m 44s on the middle grass track, where all the fast work took place, and which was in first-rate order. This white-legged chestnut is unquestionably a bold galloper, but he was not carrying much on his feet. Comedy King, who has filled out into a grand horse, did his gallop—a mile and a quarter in 2m 14½s—in great style. He took his time over the first furlong, and finished with something in hand. Bright Laddie was another that was responsible for a smart task. With a fair weight up he ran nine furlongs in 2m 1s, and spent 15s over the first furlong. Bright Laddie is a full-fleshed horse and a free sweater, but though he was in a great lather when he pulled up he did not blow much, which indicated that he is clean inside. Patronatus, who galloped strongly, does not appear as bright as he was in the spring. Gladswood showed to advantage in a six-furlong gallop with Malthusian, who is handicapped with a good horse's weight, but Gladswood is evidently the better of the pair, and Burton has both in first-class trim.

Eric never looked better to the eye than at present, and another who seems all right is Sequarious, who ran a mile in 1m 47½s. Mr. James Wilson invariably trains his horses light—but wins his share of races—and Diabolo, Danaus, and Bobadea are no exception to the rule. Danaus is a brilliant galloper. With a very light weight up he ran nine furlongs under two minutes, a journey over which Diabolo spent 2m 2½s, which is half a second slower than the time put up by Golden Point. The lastnamed is a powerfully-built, muscular horse, and a nice goer. Nuwarra Eliya, whom M'Lachlan has been engaged to ride in the Doncaster Handicap, shaped attractively over seven furlongs which he ran without an effort in 1m 31s. By Play, who is in blooming health, covered a mile and a quarter stylishly; and Dorando was bowling along over the same distance in his usual attractive style. However, both these were put in the shade by The Parisian, who, carrying Cooper (about 8st), went off steadily for a mile and a quarter, and ran the distance in 2m 14½s, the last mile in 1m 46s. Sandbath created a surprise by running a mile and a quarter in 2m 15s, and badly beating Apple Pie by several lengths. Beeberu and Veronite treated the spectators to some sprinting by rattling over five furlongs in a tick under 1m 4s.

Crown Derby, who looks very light after her Rosehill race, went off stiffly from the mile post, and, taking 16s to run the first furlong, she covered the mile in 1m 48½s. Arnisdale, a fine-looking colt, was a trifle too good for Sweet Malt in a half-mile sprint. Maltster Maid was another that shaped well over seven furlongs. Kerlie and Mindful have not forgotten how to gallop. They ran a mile in 1m 46½s, but may have improved upon that, if wanted. Blairgour, looking real well, was only cantered. Desert Rose, with a light weight up, knocked off six furlongs in 1m 17s, as might well be expected of her. Sentrosus was not asked to make time over a mile; nor was Sconser over six furlongs. Bridge and Cadonia did a nice even, improving gallop over a mile and a quarter, and both pulled up hearty and well; and Miss Corelli, with a light weight up, displayed great dash in her six furlongs spin. Among the two-year-olds nothing shaped much better than Respect, who beat Orodes over five furlongs in 1m 4½s, and carried M'Lachlan. Earnshaw apparently has a couple of good ones in Poseidon's brother, Jacamar, and the Etra Weenie colt, Posadas; and Burton has a good colt, a white-legged chestnut, by San Francisco from Alga, who is a smart galloper, but his trainer has had a world of trouble with him during the past two months. The colt's legs are full of humour, and, after exercise, all rapidly; but Burton now has the trouble under control, though it is doubtful if he will have the youngster cherry ripe for the meeting.

NOTES.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Rosebery this afternoon. The track is first-class going, and large fields may be anticipated. The transit service includes special trams to the racecourse gates, while the ordinary traffic on the Botany line will also be available. The first race is timed to start at 2.15 p.m.

The programme for the Easter meeting of the Wollongong Jockey Club is announced for the 20th inst., the prize-money for which amounts to £100, distributed over five races, the principal of which are the Easter Stakes and Wollongong Mile of £25 each. Nominations must be lodged with the secretary, Mr. J. Denmeade, before 4 p.m. on Monday next, 10th inst.

Trainers and jockeys entitled to admission to the saddling paddock at the Hawkesbury Race Club's autumn meeting at Clarendon next Saturday, can obtain the necessary tickets between 10 a.m. and 3.30 p.m. to-morrow, at the office of the Rosehill Racing Club, Elizabeth-street, city.

The weakening of Blairgour to an outside price for the Doncaster Handicap leaves the Queenslander, Bright Laddie, at the head of the quotations for the mile race, a point better favourite than Lager, who is a point in front of Nuwarra Eliya, then two points away, come Full Sail, a similar number in advance of Gold Thread, with Flavinius four further back. The Parisian still holds premier position in the Sydney Cup, two points better than By Play, the New Zealander, Bridge, is four points further back, and two in advance of Apple Pie, who is followed in the quotations at similar intervals by Eric and Patronatus.

The scratchings recorded yesterday in connection with the A.J.C. Autumn Meeting were Simple Simon, out of the First Steeplechase, and Zeppelin, out of the St. Leger.

Portway was yesterday struck out of the Nursery Handicap in connection with the Hawkesbury Race Club's autumn meeting.

Mandate, a two-year-old bay colt, by Ibex from Tarella, has been placed under the tuition of P. Nolan, at Randwick. Mandate is the property of a Newcastle sportsman.

Our local correspondent telegraphs that Mr. A. M'Dougall has been elected secretary of the Broken Hill Licensed Victuallers' Racing Club, the result of an exhaustive ballot. There were 11 applicants for the position.

The Moss Vale Jockey Club has (writes our local correspondent) decided to hold its next race meeting on Saturday, May 13. A programme of five events has been arranged, the prize money amounting to £35.

The Southern District Trotting Club has provided £80 for its next meeting, to be held on the Junee racecourse on June 3.

The annual meeting of the Mudgee District Racing Club has been fixed for the 25th and 26th inst., and the prize money totals £250, distributed over five events.

That backers are not altogether devoid of conscience was proved at Melbourne last Saturday, when a bookmaker received a letter containing a £5 note, accompanied by an explanation that the ringman had overpaid by that amount. The note was signed "Conscience."

Our Bathurst correspondent telegraphs that during an exercise gallop yesterday morning E. J. Ingersole's racing mare Rose Atlie, ridden by Edwards, fell, broke one of her hind legs, and was destroyed. She was valued at £500. The jockey was rendered unconscious when the horse fell.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Adam Skirving left for Sydney to-day in charge of Broadsword and Herova, who are engaged at the A.J.C. autumn meeting. Broadsword has 8st 8lb in the Doncaster Handicap, and Herova 6st 7lb in the Sydney Cup.

TROTTING AND RACING.

The most-talked-of subject in Sydney trotting circles just now is the challenge published by trainer D. J. Price to match the New Zealand mare Sal Tasker against the Sydney horse Denver Huon for £500 a side, the race to take place on Victoria Park racecourse within six weeks. Mr. Frank Geddes, the owner of Denver Huon, has replied that he cannot see his way clear to race so soon, as the horse has been out of the hands of his regular trainer, A. Millsom, for some months, but he has met Price to the extent of placing a deposit of £100 in the hands of the secretary of the Australian Trotting Club to bind a match for Denver Huon to race Sal Tasker on Victoria Park track in three months' time, best two out of three two-mile heats, in harness, with galloping pacemakers.

For the first time in its history the Royal Agricultural Society of New South Wales has placed on its programme a handicap race for high-class trotters and pacers to be decided by speed alone, and the response from owners has been very gratifying. An entry of 25 has been received, and the quality of the horses engaged may be judged from the fact that horses are to be handicapped on a 2m 35s basis. Victoria will be represented by Mr. J. B. Zander's imported horse Mauritius, whilst among the principal horses belonging to this State are Pickwick, Victorine, Huon Hue, Dexter, Huon Patch, Whirlpool, Hazel G., Jim Mc., The Nut, Huon Boccaccio, Polly M., and other fast ones.

Trotting has never before received such a fillip in this State as will be given during the present month. Over £1300 in stake money will be distributed among owners. The New South Wales Trotting Club will be first in the field with its Easter meeting on the 15th instant; the Australian Trotting Club will hold two meetings on Victoria Park on the 18th and 24th respectively, the Royal Show trots will cover the 11th to 15th, and the Bathurst Agricultural Society, where the track is one of the best half-mile courses in Australia, will bring off a series of trotting events on the 26th, 27th, and 28th inst. New Zealand will be represented by the crack mare Sal Tasker, who holds the Australasian two-year-old record with 2m 20s, Victoria by Mauritius, Emulator, and others, whilst all the principal horses in this State will be among the competitors.

ROWING.

THE INTERSTATE CARNIVAL.

STRONG N.S.W. TEAM.

The New South Wales Rowing Association has the control and responsibility of the annual interstate rowing carnival, which will take place on the Parramatta River on May 6. Six States will be represented in the eight-oared championship, and for the amateur sculling championship Victoria will send H. Stevens, and Tasmania C. M'Villy, while John R. Towns will represent this State. New Zealand will be represented this year by C. Stone, the amateur champion of the Dominion. He is not a big man, but he has excellent performances to his credit, and recently has given evidence of his merit. New Zealand is not a party to the agreement between the several States of the Commonwealth, and there is no obligation to return the visit, such as there is between all the States. Probably it would be something towards the advancement of amateur rowing if it were so.

In 1888 we had the first oarsmen from New Zealand, when a crew from the Canterbury Rowing Club was second in the champion fours, which was won by Victoria, stroked by G. E. Upward. After that we had as scullers W. J. Bridson, a really good man, from Wellington; Cormack, and a four-oared crew of three brothers Seymour and the late J. M. Daly. Last year New Zealand sent a four to Hobart, and was successful in winning what was termed the championship in fours of Australasia. A second crew from Blenheim also competed, but was easily beaten. Since then the Blenheim four turned the tables on the winners of this particular race, who hailed from Wanganui.

In reference to the representative sculler of this State, J. R. Towns, of the renowned and greatly-respected family of which the ex-champion sculler of the world is best known, has proved himself one of the best amateur scullers this or any other State has produced. He is 13 stone weight, well put together, and has the grit to see a race right through to the finish. His career has been nothing like what it should have been, but being a teacher under the Department of Public Instruction his duties have been such that he had no settled place of abode for any length of time.

C. M'Villy, who will represent Tasmania, and who is holder of the "blue ribbon," is a man who is sure to make his mark, for he is a strong lad, and has the capacity for sculling. He was for some time under the guidance of that clever mentor, George Towns, who formed a very good opinion of him. H. Stevens, of the Essendon Club, Melbourne, is probably not so hard a man to beat as was the consistent and now veteran sculler Percy Ivens, who for 10 years was always in the front.

Of the interstate eight-oar crews it can be safely stated that New South Wales will be represented by a good combination of experienced oarsmen. With Roger Fitzhardinge as stroke, and well backed up by men he knows can see a race to the very end, our crew should inspire confidence in the minds of those who have in the past rowed themselves, or been in close touch with the sport. Practice so far has been in a superior class of working boat, built by G. Towns, but the crew will shortly take to the racing boat, by the same builder, and which got its first win last May in Tasmania.

Victoria has a long list of wins in the eight-oared championship, but since the race rowed on the Parramatta six years ago has lost grip of the winning sequence, so Tasmania and this State have had a long-looked-for share of the pleasure and benefits of victory. It is for the advancement of the sport that wins should go round, and to the credit of the controllers of rowing in Victoria be it said that they frankly and generously acknowledge that it is so. With a decided break in the line between the veteran oarsmen and the new generation of rowers in Victoria there is a marked falling-off. It will not result in a permanent depreciation, for the facilities for crew rowing on the Yarra, and other smooth water courses, and the assistance given by country clubs, is sure to bring about a revival. It may be here now.

Queensland came into the game in 1885, then left for five years, and then got a win—the only one so far—in 1891 on the Yarra. The victory was due to the coaching and experience of Colin Bell, a Cambridge University man, who really knew what he was talking about. When we saw him first, fresh from college, in 1888, he brought a four-oared crew from Brisbane. Critics smiled when they saw the splashing, the rolling of the boat, and the screwing of the bodies. A well-known sportsman got their time for the top mile on the Parramatta—5¼ minutes, and finding this was faster than any of the other crews could do, he went to see the race, and among those who were the victims of misplaced confidence was an old member of the "Meres." He is now in a position to look back with some degree of pleasure to the time when there was no Telephone Exchange, of which he is now a very responsible officer. Brisbane won easily.

The Queensland Association has a limited choice of oarsmen, and the crew to come to Sydney this month is the best that can be gathered together at the present time. It may be better than some detractors think, and there is always one thing certain—that is a cheery greeting from our rowing men, whether as losers or winners. It is pleasing to note that Victoria has a Queenslander in the boat this year—and we have a Tasmanian.

FOOTBALL.

RIVAL EXPONENTS OF THE GAME.

BUSY TIME AHEAD.

Moore Park always affords the Sydneysider some clue as to the seasons. Spring sees the cricketing contingent emerge to oust the footballers from the green sward. On Saturday the park was divided between the vari-coloured guernseys of the footballers and the whites of the cricketers. Soon, however, the footballers will enjoy their winter monopoly.

Already the senior clubs are working hard with training operations, and first practice matches of the season have already been played. The chief interest for lovers of the game will centre round the rival Rugby exponents, the Union and the League. Representative matches will be played by both bodies. The Australian game, however, is making steady progress, and each season sees a greater following for the game which has attained such a vogue in the southern State. Then the other competitor for public patronage is the football association playing "Soccer" rules, and claiming amongst its votaries teams from the fleet and most of the suburbs. Besides the senior clubs there will be the usual district, church, and school competitions for juniors. The game's afoot.

RUGBY UNION.

The Metropolitan Rugby Union's annual meeting is fixed for to-night, when the adoption of the report will be moved and office-bearers elected.

Practice matches begin on Easter Saturday, and the majority of the first grade teams will be engaged. There will be a number of places to fill in some of the teams, and selectors will have their hands full in the trials. A meeting of club secretaries is called for to-night at 7.30 o'clock at the Union rooms.

The Metropolitan Rugby Union competitions commence on May 6. This is to be confirmed at the meeting to-night. Last season they started on April 23, on account of the international programme.

There will be no bye this season in the first-grade competition. This is consequent on the disbandment of Sydney, the result being that there are now ten teams instead of eleven, as was the case last year.

Each team will be engaged on every Saturday, which is much preferable to the previous régime of an empty day in turn, which often meant that players were not occupied on that day.

As the Union is not going to insure the players, as in previous years, it has been suggested that each club should have its own insurance fund, the members to pay a fixed amount weekly to insure them against accident, etc. This appears to be a good move, and secretaries would do well to inaugurate the system early.

The English Rugby Union has decided to admit oversea representatives to its meetings when the subject of the rules and laws of the game is under discussion.

This is a matter that will give general satisfaction to the New Zealand and Australian Rugby unions, who have both been moving for some time to get alterations made in the game.

Some of their suggestions have occasionally been approved by the English Union, but a large amount of correspondence was always necessary, and considerable time elapsed before questions were settled.

Now that there will be direct representation on the committee, matters can be explained better to the governing body, and the local conditions in New Zealand and Australia brought under its consideration. Dr. H. Bullock is the representative of the New South Wales Rugby Union.

Representative matches will be comparatively few this season, after the extraordinary programme of last year. The only games of this character in Sydney will be New South Wales versus Queensland. There is a probability of a team visiting New Zealand at the close of the season.

A New Zealand Universities team is coming across in July, and will provide a lot of interest. The team is to meet the Sydney University on the 1st, and a team to be arranged on the 8th July. The last team that was over here, although defeated, included some good individual players, and was a very popular combination.

Several country branch unions have held their annual meetings, including Richmond River, Hartley (Lithgow), Mudgee, Northern Branch (Newcastle), Central-Northern (Tamworth), Manning (Taree), and Bellinger.

Central-Western, at Orange on the 6th, and Macleay, at Kempsey on the 8th, are meetings for this week.

The New South Wales Referees' Association will hold its meeting on Tuesday, April 11, at the Rugby Union rooms.

During the season no less than 271 grade matches were refereed by members of the association, and many other games, including those of the Great Public Schools, the Public Schools' A.A.A., and the Tramway Union.

There were 16 international fixtures controlled by members, viz., Messrs. N. B. Martin, C. E. Morgan, C. B. Cochrane, and T. Pauling, and there were also a number of matches in the country in which Sydney referees took part.

Sydney University will have a fairly strong team, including a number of last year's players. L. J. Reynolds will probably be captain again, and E. W. M'Keown, M. Maxwell, J. H. Metcalfe, N. M. Broughton, A. B. Gaffney (forwards), E. M. Fisher, C. J. Kelly, S. M. M'Lennan, B. C. Pockley, A. C. Jekyll, J. P. Kenny, and S. R. Stafford (backs) are all available.

Waldron, who played some years ago, is also going to turn out, so there are 14 experienced first-grade men to start with. As there are several younger players from the Great Public Schools who have since joined the University, the prospects of the team appear very bright.

Then there is the match with the New Zealand Universities' team to cause additional interest.

Glebe will have 10 of last year's team to start the season with. S. A. Middleton, J. Clarken, M. Fraser, T. J. Griffin, R. Stuart, Ives, Cunningham, F. Wood, F. Buckle, T. O'Neill have all been playing for a considerable time, and will again be wearing Glebe's colours. Massey-Westropp, who was with Sydney, will also be available for the backs division.

North Sydney are getting a smart team together, but have unfortunately lost Gregory, St. John, and Proctor, while Shaw has recently been operated on for appendicitis, and will not play. These men were all showing excellent form last season, and would have been most useful.

H. D. Hughes, Casey, Hodgson, Graham, Sayers, Coltman, Floyd (forwards), and Berkery, Humphreys, and Mayo (backs), are some of the pick of last season's team who will be playing again.

Eighteen new players gave their names in at the annual meeting. Among them were Ryrie and Geddes from the City and Suburban Rugby Union, which has provided a number of men for North Sydney D.F.C. of late.

Then there is M'Atee, from New Zealand, a back who is said to have done good things over there, and also Hicks, a tall forward with a good reputation, from Queensland.

The members are very keen to get going this year, and the team as a whole should improve on last season's performance.

T. J. Richards, writing from Johannesburg, doubts whether he will reach Australia this year. He was considered one of the finest forwards in the "Wallabies" by some critics, and has had the distinction of representing both Australia and England. His ankles are giving him trouble at present, and he is not sure of them. He says if he does play out here this season it will be in Sydney, so the probabilities are that one of the local clubs will gain a good forward.

M. Macarthur, another Wallaby, who was not playing last season, will probably be one of Eastern Suburbs' front row this year. He has taken the secretaryship of the club, and will be the right man. He will strengthen the pack considerably, both on account of his hooking and his play in the open.

Eastern Suburbs are going to have a practice match at Victoria Barracks on Saturday at 3 o'clock. New members will be tried out, and all players who wish to take part should be on the ground at the above time. Junior players are specially invited.

The club will possess a smart team. A number of last season's men are available, including E. Fahey, H. George, N. E. Row, J. Duffy, R. Allen, T. Alpen (forward), and J. D'Alpuget, H. Millner, H. Corbett, A. Newman (backs).

D. Wallack, W. McGee, E. Healy, H. Baker, W. M'Donald, and Livingstone, who played with the Sydney Club, now defunct, are also available.

The prospects of the Red, White, and Blue brigade appear very bright, and they should place a first-class team in the field.

They usually play brilliant football, and their victory over University last year by 11 to 6 was a splendid, open game.

The City and Suburban Rugby Union opens the season on April 23, when all the teams will be engaged.

The Great Public Schools' competition opens on Wednesday, May 3. Last season the King's School came out on top, with Newington College second.

The Rev. E. F. Waddy has been appointed honorary secretary of the association.

Sydney Training College decided, at the annual meeting, to enter teams for the second and third grade Metropolitan Rugby Union competitions this season, and there is a movement also to form an ex-students' team. Mr. L. Murray has been appointed honorary secretary.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

A PROMISING PROGRAMME.

There is a big season ahead of the Rugby League. Even the phenomenally successful season of 1910 looks like being eclipsed. Numbers of well-known players have seceded from the Union ranks, thus making the league correspondingly stronger.

The local champions will during the year be pitted against touring teams from New Zealand and Queensland. These events, together with the usual metropolitan competitions, will provide sufficient entertainment locally for the league followers.

Chief interest, however, attaches to the personnel of the "Kangaroos 1911." The Northern Union has cabled an invitation to the League, which has been accepted, and the Kangaroos, 28 strong, will leave by the Orsova for England on August 5. The league first grade competitions will probably begin on the last Saturday of this month, and that will give the Kangaroo candidates three full months to catch the selectors' eye.

Our old opponents, the Queenslanders, will visit Sydney probably early in June, and the All Blacks will be in our midst, following closely on the heels of the northerners. The Maorilanders are reported to be particularly strong this year, and will give the Kangaroos a hard tussle for supremacy.

The first grade contestants will this season be restricted to eight, viz., Glebe, Newtown, South Sydney, Eastern Suburbs, Western Suburbs, North Sydney, Balmain, and Annandale. There are over 20 applicants for positions in the second grade, while the name is legion of those clamouring for third grade honours. Then there will be competitions amongst the juniors, the Tramway League, and other associated leagues. The league officials have their hands full.

THE KICK OFF.

The ball was set a-rolling on Saturday with practice matches at the Sports Ground. Two matches were put down for decision. South Sydney and Eastern Suburbs fought a fine, even game, the former winning by the narrow margin of 13 to 12. Glebe had a far easier task in accounting for North Sydney, whom they downed to the tune of 16 points to 7.

At Metters' Ground, Newtown was pitted against Balmain, and the game was chiefly remarkable for poor kicking at goal. Several times the three-quarters got going, and crossed, and the Blues finally won by 18 points to 9. Also at Metters' Ground Annandale and Western Suburbs tried conclusions, and a good struggle ended with the scores 3 all. The practice matches will be continued on Saturday next, and until the regular competitions begin.

PRACTICE MATCHES, SATURDAY, APRIL 8.

Sports Ground, Eastern Suburbs v N. Sydney, 2.30.
Sports Ground, South Sydney v Balmain, 3.30.
Metters' Ground, Newtown v Western Suburbs, 2.30.
Metters' Ground, Glebe v Annandale, 3.30.

NEW SOUTH WALES LEAGUE.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

When an ordinary club final attracts nearly 50,000 spectators, it is either a very fine game or party feeling runs high, or both factors operate to draw the crowd. In Melbourne the Australian game often attracts crowds of twenty and thirty thousand, while the record is well on towards the figure named. So there must be some excellence in Australian football. Here in New South Wales for many years votaries of the game have been divided between the imported "Rugger" and "Soccer," and it is only comparatively lately that the home-grown brand of football has caught on.

Last season was so very successful that lovers of the bright, open play provided by the league exponents are confident that still further success awaits the game in New South Wales.

Next Friday the annual meeting of the New South Wales Football League will be held, and full preparations made for the coming season. Already eight teams have entered the first grade competition, while two more are knocking at the door. In the second grade 12 have entered, while two additional teams have applied for places. Further progress is also noted in the junior divisions.

Last season was a record for the league, and many brilliant games were contested. The final was won by Y.M.C.A., with East Sydney next on the list. The Y.M.C.A. won the Rawson Cup, the Norwood Club's challenge shield, and now proudly fly the league premiership pennant. The Y.M.C.A. have always been well to the fore in the league matches, and this year feel confident that they can retain their supremacy.

Practice matches were played on Saturday, and will be continued this week end. The competition games will be set in motion on Saturday, April 15.

N.S.W. FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION.

THE PROGRESS OF SOCCER.

Soccer players, like their Rugger friends, are anticipating good things during the winter, and, judging by last season's successes, they will not be disappointed. Not only will the usual competitions be contested, but there is quite a probability that a representative New South Wales Soccer team will tour Tasmania and New Zealand.

The new departure from last year's practice will be the division of the metropolis into eight districts, instead of twelve. This decision was come to at the annual meeting.

Another departure quite possible will be the establishment of an Australian Football Federation, to control the game throughout the Commonwealth. This will be only what must come if the game is to continue to progress, and if the visits of interstate teams are to be properly managed. Already the Australian and New Zealand associations have agreed to the appointing of Mr. Gibbs as Australian representative on the Football Association in London.

In order to ensure that the vacancies in the senior teams should be filled up from the junior ranks, the association last year controlled and carried to a successful issue no less than eight distinct competitions. The Gardiner Cup competition, carrying with it the blue ribbon of New South Wales Soccer, was responsible for a record entry. Four country and fifteen metropolitan teams competed, and in a well-fought, well-attended final H.M.S. Powerful defeated Helensburgh, and so won the coveted cup.

Record entries came to hand for the metropolitan league honours. The competition was divided into two divisions, Glebe winning the Rawson Cup and Ultimo the Association Cup. A play-off for the metropolitan premiership saw Ultimo on top. The second grade honours fell to Rozelle, in an undefeated record, and Pyrmont won the third grade competition. For the Norse Cup also record entries were received, Ultimo Bulwarra coming out on top. In the juvenile department Leichhardt Rovers defeated Pyrmont Rovers in the final.

With a view to ensuring a constant stream of young players, the schools' competition was sedulously attended to. In the A division Rozelle won without suffering a single defeat in 15 games. Only one goal was registered against them, and 55 for. The B division fell to West Leichhardt. With all these competitions in full swing, there is little doubt of the virility of the soccer game in New South Wales.

CRICKET.

RETROSPECT OF THE SEASON.

The embers on the 1910-11 cricket hearth are smouldering; the first-class season has ended, and in a few weeks' time the club season will have closed. In the musty-fusty past of Sydney cricket the official ending of the season was set down for Queen's Birthday, May 24. But in those days the population of Sydney was not nearly so numerous as now; neither were the votaries of football and Rugby in particular. Local cricket was not then thought of, and, although the senior matches were played upon enclosed grounds and on the Domain, the first junior matches were played upon the matting wickets of Moore Park and the Agricultural Ground. It was on those wickets that many cricketers who afterwards became famous were wont to play on Saturday afternoons. To-day our grade cricketers would scorn to play on anything but turf, yet, when the local scheme first came into force, the lower grades had to be content with mud and concrete wickets.

The great interest taken by the public and players in Rugby football has had the effect of curtailing the cricket season to such an extent that it now ends fully a month earlier than in former days.

The Australian first-class season which has just ended will go down to history as being one of the most successful—from the Australian viewpoint—ever experienced.

The South Africans have come and gone, and have failed in their endeavour to wrest the cricket laurels from the Cornstalks, thus following in the footsteps of the cricketers of England.

By many critics—newspaper and otherwise—the Africans were expected to defeat the pick of Australia, notwithstanding the fact that the latter had not only won the rubber against England in 1907-8 in Australia, and 1909 in England, whereas, although the Africans had twice beaten England in a series of matches on the matting wickets of South Africa, they have yet to win their first match against England on English soil.

The wonderful success which the South African bosie bowlers met with in England in 1907 created quite a sensation at the time, and it was stated that even in her best days Australia had never sent over such a powerful bowling side.

Mr. R. E. Foster, the famous batsman, in a long and eulogistic article in "Wisden," described the methods of Faulkner, Vogler, Schwarz, and White, and expressed the opinion that Vogler was the best bowler in either hemisphere.

Mr. S. H. Pardon, editor of "Wisden," however, in discussing the tests, favoured the chances of Australia against the Africans, because of the presence in the teams of the three great left-handers—Hill, Bardsley, and Ransford.

The history of these test matches has been written, and the conclusion arrived at is that our wickets had as much to do with the "silencing" of the bosie bowlers as the left-handers or, for that matter, the right-handers.

Experience has taught us that there is a vast difference between bowling on English wickets and Australian ones.

Having beaten England and South Africa in three successive series of tests, the Australians will enter upon the next series—to be commenced against England in Sydney at the end of the present year—with great confidence. With the end of the 1911-12 season they will leave for England to take part in the triangular series of matches which has been arranged against England and South Africa.

English critics are rather prone to underrate the merits of Australian cricketers, and this, too, notwithstanding that our representatives have, to use the racing vernacular, "answered every question put to them."

Recently one writer classed our bowling as being only moderate, forgetful of the fact that it proved too formidable for both English and African batsmen.

So far as New South Wales is concerned, the future prospects appear very bright. Not only are there several most promising batsmen, but there are also many young bowlers who are developing the bosie ball. This class of bowling will, notwithstanding the failure of the South Africans to successfully exploit it on our wickets, become one of Australia's greatest "weapons of offence" in international cricket.

The local competitions are drawing to a close, the second last round of matches having commenced on Saturday last.

Redfern, Gordon, and University are the three leading teams, and the first-named two met at Redfern. All roads led to the oval, the match proving a veritable magnet. It is problematical if a larger crowd has ever attended a Sydney club game, well over 10,000 spectators being present.

The Redfern oval is one of the few "free" grounds in the metropolis, so that only £18 was taken at the gates of the pavilion reserve. The Redfern Council have control of the ground, but on this occasion they generously gave it free of charge, as well as the takings, to the local club.

The presence of Trumper, Macartney, Iredale, and Emery undoubtedly attracted the multitude, many of whom hoped to see Trumper repeat his effort of 1902 on the same ground, when he scored 335—one of the most wonderful innings ever played.

However, like the weather, play was rather dull and drab, if Macartney's dashing innings of 52 be excepted. Trumper made 34 by ordinary cricket, and Iredale's 42 was a lucky effort. Shortland and Lobban scored 70 between them late in the innings, and saved the side from collapse. The innings terminated for 237.

Redfern fielded brilliantly, Goddard, the captain, being exceptionally so. The bowling was also very good. Emery and N. Mailey, both Bosie bowlers, took nine wickets between them, the former's share being six for 68, and the latter's three for 78. At times Emery rises to greatness as a bowler, and Saturday was one of his good days. Mailey had no luck, but the bowler who can keep Trumper and Iredale quiescent like he did on Saturday, especially on such a small ground, must be able to bowl some. He possesses great possibilities, for he makes the ball bias "either way" many inches without sending a "wireless" to say so.

Redfern have lost one for 28, and an interesting finish is anticipated on Saturday next.

At North Sydney Central Cumberland scored 261 against the local team, the Rev. E. F. Waddy top-scoring with a brilliantly-made 54. O. Smith (47), F. Humphries (35), and J. B. O'Neill (43) were the other chief run-getters, the two first-named playing brilliant cricket. Hordern bagged seven wickets for 105, and was hit about freely. His bowling finger, which was injured during the fourth test match, has not yet mended.

Central Cumberland's total is not a formidable one to such a strong batting side as North Sydney, who, however, have not proved very consistent this season.

At the Sydney Cricket Ground Middle Harbour performed with distinction in dismissing Sydney for 156, though the total was only 81 when the eighth wicket fell. The feature of the innings was Hall's brilliant effort. Of the last 75 runs scored he notched 66, and achieved the very rare feat of scoring the whole of the 29 runs added for the tenth wicket. Of the remaining batsmen Asher was the only one to reach the twenties.

Middle Harbour have lost five wickets for 107, after the first three had fallen for 11. The villagers require 50 runs to win, with half their wickets intact. Randell (three for 18), Gee (three for 30), and Middleton (three for 67), were Middle Harbour's successful attackers. Collins bowled well for Sydney. It was a bowler's day.

At one period of the Glebe-Petersham match it looked as if the former would be leading at the end of the afternoon, as Cotter and Christie—a "fast and slow" combination—got rid of half the side for 40 runs. Petersham, however, though a young team, are fighters, and they lived up to their reputation on Saturday. First Andrews (46) and P. Newton added 84 for the fifth wicket before the former was bowled by O. Hogue's first ball. Afterwards Newton found useful partners in Alpen (20) and Rowe (16), the result being that when play ceased on account of the bad light the total was 255 for eight wickets—a splendid recovery. P. Newton carried out his bat for 111, a masterly effort. Cotter took four for 67, though at one time his record was three for 12. As Bardsley and Kelleway are back in the team, Glebe's batting has been strengthened considerably. Still, they may experience difficulty in dismissing the remaining two wickets and then make the runs required in a short afternoon's play.

University, who are keen on winning their match against Paddington, are not too sanguine of success, as in reply to the Tricolours' total of 255 they have lost three wickets for 36.

Small and Noble were Paddington's chief run-getters with 74 and 57. The former, who had a charmed existence, hit 11 fours. He survived two very confident appeals for catches behind the wicket. Noble, as usual, played soundly. His is a very broad bat. Roy Minnett took six for 82, and sustained his pace well. Barbour took two for six. He very rarely bowls for his side now. Why?

University have several tolerably useful men to go in on Saturday next, and Paddington are not yet out of the wood.

So far Burwood have the upper hand of Waverley, having scored 46 without loss in response to the seasiders' total of 204. Four batsmen contributed more than two-thirds of the runs—Pite and MacKinlay 35 each, and Grace 39 and Carter 35. The wicketkeeper played brilliant cricket, hitting five fours and one six.

Ward Prentice and P. W. Docker scored 46 without loss off 14 overs, and will recommence on Saturday with 21 and 20 respectively. Dupain (three for 35) was Burwood's most successful bowler.

A proposal is being put forth in the South African press for a match to be played between the teams which toured Australia and the next best eleven. One visitor pertinently remarked that about the last thing the returning team would want to do on their return was to play cricket. Why should the loss of the rubber affect a cricketer's enthusiasm for his game?

Another proposal of a different nature has been made by Mr. Frank Mitchell, a well-known English player, who has played a lot of cricket in South Africa. In the London "Times" he suggests that an "Imperial" match be played between England and a colonial side, the latter to be picked from the ranks of the Australian and South African teams, which will visit England in 1912. The colonial team could be selected by the two captains, with a third selector as an umpire; probably the president of the Marylebone Club. The match could be played at the end of the season. It was Mr. Frank Mitchell, and not Sir Abe Bailey, who first suggested the triangular test matches, which are to be played in England in 1912.

As Australia has defeated both England and South Africa—the former in successive tests in Australia and England—and as South Africa has defeated England in South Africa, and was defeated narrowly by England in only one match in England in 1907, it would appear to the cricket student that the combined team would prove too strong for the motherland. Mr. Mitchell's idea is to play the match for the benefit of a cricketers' fund. A match that would probably prove a big draw, but would lose its "Imperial" flavour, would be that between the winners of the triangular series and a team selected from the two defeated elevens.

A presentation is to be made to David Nourse on his return to South Africa. Before the test matches started Mr. A. Ballantine, a South African cricket enthusiast, cabled to David that he would give him £10 for every century he made in the tests. The left-hander failed to notch one, though in the fourth he carried out his bat for 92. His fine performance in conjunction with Faulkner in the second match against New South Wales, when they scored 319 for the third wicket, and his consistent batting during the tour, has prompted his Durban admirers to testimonialise him on his return. When the last African mail closed nearly £20 had been subscribed in two days.

SAILING.

SIX-FOOTERS FOR THE ISLANDS.

AMONGST THE YACHTS.

The past season was a satisfactory one for the yachts. There were about the usual number of club fixtures, and, in addition, four regattas, good support being accorded to most of the events.

Four ocean races were sailed, the contest for the Basin Cup being the longest and most interesting. This year's was a very successful fixture, Mr. C. Trebeck's Petrel being the winner.

The race to Broken Bay under the auspices of the Newport regatta, was robbed of much interest by the paltriness of the wind.

A prominent feature in the season's racing was the good form shown by Rawhiti. That there was no race for the Sayonara Cup—which would have been sailed in Sydney Harbour—was a great loss for yachting, as an interstate contest always has an importance of its own that no local event can approach. Besides, if it had taken place, it would have awakened the dormant interest in the big class which only wanted the spark of interstate interest to burst into flame. It would have given the 10-12's a stimulus that would have kept them going as a strong class.

Another disappointment was the falling through at the 11th hour of the Northcote Cup race.

Outside the ordinary racing there were events for cruising yachts, a ladies' race, and an auxiliary handicap, all of which were keenly contested, and excited considerable interest.

The Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron opened on the 22nd October, the Prince Alfred Yacht Club having held a successful regatta and combined opening function with the Sydney Amateur Sailing Club, a week previously.

Subjoined is a table showing the number of starts and the places secured during the season:—

DOINGS OF THE 18-FOOTERS.

Instead of winding up the season with a harbour outing as heretofore, the Sydney Flying Squadron and Sydney Club each decided this year to bring their operations to a close with a smoke concert. The Sydney Club held theirs a week or two ago, while that of the Squadron was carried out on Monday evening, at the Queen's Hall. Mr. T. S. Donald (president) occupied the chair, and presented trophies to the officials. The chairman had an appreciative word to say for each recipient as he came forward; and special reference was made to the good work performed by Mr. J. Young, as honorary secretary for a number of years, work which Mr. Young preferred should not be recognised by even the presentation of a trophy. On behalf of the Sydney Club, Mr. T. H. Jones (president) also took occasion to make similar presentations to the officials of his club, and in each instance thanked the recipient for his services. An enjoyable programme was submitted, and Mr. Roy Allen made an efficient accompanist.

The Port Jackson Skiff Club will conclude its programme on Saturday with a novice handicap, while the Mosman Amateur Club will finish up with a race open to all boats, whether registered with them or not.

The 6-footers which were shipped to Gizo, in the Solomon Islands, last month, reached their destination without mishap. They numbered half a dozen, and were the Arline, N.S.W., Acme, Ena, Thelma, and Irene. The arrival of the small fry is said to have created quite a sensation among the natives; but, to the astonishment of all, they soon found themselves handling the "cockle-shells" in good style. No doubt, they have realised ere this that there is plenty of excitement to be had out of the sixes, and that in a good breeze it is quite easy to be emptied out of them. Luckily for the natives, the largest sails of the dingies were not sent; but doubtless, when they become used to their new acquisitions, and a spirit of rivalry grows among them, they will go to work and increase the sail area. The exodus of these dingies, of course, meant that the North Sydney Dingy Club lost something like half its fleet, but they are to be replaced, and some of the new ones are already under way.

The boats 18ft and over which race under "best and best" conditions have just experienced another prosperous season. These are the sailing craft, which have always formed the chief attraction on the harbour so far as the public are concerned; but the Universal Half-holiday Act operated to extend greater patronage to their contests than in previous seasons. This, of course, meant extra revenue for the Sydney Flying Squadron and Sydney Sailing Club, which practically control this branch of the sport; but, on the other hand, the prizes were increased, and during the season a grand total of £552 was distributed amongst the 18-footers and the one or two other boats which race with them.

A feature of the season was the revival of the interstate contests between New South Wales and Queensland. The 18-footers reappeared in the northern capital, but the best boats were not sent to represent this State, and the championship went to Queensland. Golding, Arthur, and Advance, which did battle on behalf of New South Wales, however, did all right in the handicap races, and brought back a fair share of the prize-money.

As in previous seasons, Mr. W. M. Ford, jun.'s Australian was the most successful boat, but for the first time since Mr. Ford has owned her she did not win any of the season's championships. She was disqualified in the Flying Squadron's championship, while she finished second and fourth in the remaining two. Chris Webb, as usual, sailed the Australian in all her races. The State championship was won by Acme, in charge of C. Dunn, the Flying Squadron's by Vision (W. J. Duncan), and the Sydney Club's by Nimrod (C. Hayes).

During the season 28 races were sailed by these boats on the harbour. The Sydney Club provided ten, for prize-money of £212; the Flying Squadron ten, for £225; the 18ft sailing committee two, for £40; the Dingy Clubs two, for £17 10s; the Balmain Regatta two, for £21 10s; and the Anniversary Regatta two, for £36. The following table shows the performance of the boats during the season, and how this prize-money was distributed:—

Besides the above, Vision, Acme, and Donnelly II. sailed in the Newcastle regatta on New Year's Day, and won £17, £13, and £3 respectively; and Golding, Advance, and Arthur, in that order, won £17 1s, £16, and £8 at Brisbane carnival.

LACROSSE.

DRASTIC AMENDMENTS.

FORGING AHEAD.

1910 was a red letter year in the history of Australian lacrosse, for then the first Australian Lacrosse Carnival was held, Adelaide being the venue.

So far as New South Wales was concerned, the year was full of promise, with no small amount of fulfilment as well. For the first time in eleven years local lacrosse players visited the City of Churches, and displayed their efficiency with the Canadian game. Also, for the first time, a second grade competition was carried out. Considering that this was the twenty-seventh lacrosse season in New South Wales, the emergence of the juniors was rather belated, but none the less welcome.

Last evening, at the Y.M.C.A. Hall, was held the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the N.S.W. Lacrosse Association. The annual report recorded a year of progress in the matter of clubs, improvement in the style of play, and increase in popular interest. Thirteen teams entered the association's competition—a gain of four on the previous year. Eight of the teams competed in the first grade, and five in the second.

The A grade play maintained the improvement shown in 1910. The Petersham Club secured the premiership. The new rule of the association giving the right of challenge was availed of by the Sydney team, but the challenged leaders—Petersham—emerged triumphant from the ordeal. When the first four teams played off for the premiership the competition points were as follow:—Petersham 22, Mosman 20, Sydney 18, Stanmore 18, Waverley 10, Burwood 6, University 6, and Balmain 4. Petersham thus secured as its absolute property the Spalding pennant.

The B grade was won by Manly, with Stanmore II. as runners-up. Then came Petersham II., Sydney II., and 'Varsity II. The chief trouble for the association was the difficulty of securing suitable grounds and competent referees.

It was satisfactory for New South Wales to be represented at the Adelaide carnival, especially as there was no financial guarantee from South Australia. The other States competing in the carnival were Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, and Western Australia. Victoria secured the honour of being the champion lacrosse State. The following represented New South Wales.—D. W. Cross, C. U. B. Gurnett (captain), H. L. Dawson, C. Thomas, W. Drummond, W. J. Boyce, W. O'Neill, J. Ferguson, C. Hughes, R. Rowe, G. Gabriel, and L. Newman.

The next Australian carnival will be held in 1912, probably in Sydney.

One thing the annual report makes special mention of was the question of professionalism. While not entering into any discussion as to the merits or demerits of professionalism, the association congratulated itself on standing for the very essentials of amateurism.

All the sporting bodies nowadays recognise that to ensure the success of their sport the young idea must be captured. Last year the association failed to get the schools to interest themselves in lacrosse. One only—Katandra College, Ashfield—played the game. Until other schools take the matter up there could be no lasting impetus to the game, and no new recruits to take the place of the old players.

REVISION OF RULES.

One result of the Adelaide carnival was the conference of delegates, and the consequent proposed amendments of the rules. These were somewhat drastic, and all of the State associations have to give them consideration and endorsement.

The first amendment relates to the crosse itself. The bar on bagging the crosses has been removed. Players had disregarded this embargo for some time.

The weight of the ball, instead of being from 4½ to 4¾ ounces, was put down at 5½ to 6 ounces.

The playing ground area was reduced from 150 yards to 125 yards in length.

The rule relating to the "face off" has been more fully defined. After the captains have tossed, the ball is "faced off" in a ring 10 yards in diameter, in which no other player shall be allowed to enter until the centre men have pulled the ball clear of it.

Other amendments refer to the goalkeeper, and tend to discourage kicking the ball in play.

During the evening special reference was made to the valuable services of the president, Mr. J. J. Virgo.

SWIMMING.

LONGWORTH AT WOLLONGONG.

A RECENT VISITOR.

Mr. A. C. W. Hill, hon. secretary of the New South Wales Amateur Swimming Association, is in receipt of a letter from our recent visitor, Mr. William Henry, chief secretary of the Royal Life-saving Society, in which Mr. Henry says:—"I reached home safely and well on February 20, after a very pleasant voyage, and at the annual meeting, held on Tuesday, February 28, I made a statement with respect to the tour. There was a very large attendance of members, and representatives present from all parts of the United Kingdom, who were extremely interested, and received my remarks with much enthusiasm, particularly when I made reference to the intense interest evinced everywhere in swimming and life-saving; also your wonderful goodness to me during my stay among you; and I was specially requested to convey to you the heartiest thanks of the meeting for the many favours so generously and cordially granted to me by yourself, the members of your executive, the many friends of our society, the people, and the press, which I trust you will be so good as to accept and make known, also my own heartfelt thanks and grateful acknowledgments of the hospitalities which all so generously conferred upon me, and which will ever be remembered with feelings of highest gratitude and pleasure. In the report of my tour, which will be published in the issue of the annual report of May 1, I shall endeavour to deal as fully as possible with the details of my visit, and try to convey the splendid impression I gained, so that the members in all parts of the empire may be the better able to appreciate the good work being done in the interest of the objects of our society and the cause of swimming everywhere."

Accompanying the letter is an interim report and balance-sheet, showing that during 1910 awards totalling 11,779 were issued by the society, as against 10,495 in 1909, making a total of 89,242 issued since the awards were first instituted in the year 1892. The bulk of the awards were made up of elementary, proficiency, and teachers' certificates and bronze medallions, but also included 308 awards of merit, and 11 diplomas, the highest award of the society. The balance-sheet discloses a balance on the year's working of £78 15s 1d, and a total balance of £1231 5s 10d, a very satisfactory position.

The swimming and surf-bathing season is closing, although there are several clubs with fixtures yet to be decided. Among the surf clubs, the Freshwater Club has its annual carnival set down for Saturday next at the local beach, and, given fine weather, the exhibition of surf events on this fine beach should be among the best of the season. On the following Saturday (Easter Saturday) the Cronulla Club will follow with its annual fixture. Permission has been granted by the Swimming Association to amateur swimmers to compete at each of these carnivals, on the understanding that events other than the rescue and resuscitation competitions are restricted to amateurs.

Several swimming clubs have fixtures yet to be decided. The Pyrmont Club, owing to postponements from wet weather and for water polo, has no less than half a dozen events to run off, and intend to carry those through as opportunity offers. Other clubs with races to be decided are the Rechabite, Drummoyne, Bondi, and Ryde clubs. The last mentioned club intends to carry through the club championship and a members' carnival on Saturday afternoon next, when the Bondi Club will also decide an event. The Rose Bay Club will definitely close its season with a smoke concert and distribution of prizes to-night.

Another fixture during the week will be the annual carnival of the Mosman school, which will be held on Friday afternoon at the Balmoral Baths. This school has 280 active swimmers, several of whom are promising long-distance swimmers.

W. Longworth, the Australian long-distance swimmer, who represented the amateur body at the carnival of the Wollongong school at Wollongong on Wednesday last, reports that there was a large attendance, and that the function was excellently managed. Over 30 events were decided during the afternoon, and there was an entire absence of any waits or delays. Longworth, in addition to giving an exhibition over 880 yards, won the 100 yards race for amateur swimmers in 56 2-5s. The course, it may be mentioned, is about three yards short of the 100 yards. A party of boys from the Fort-street High School also made the trip. The management was evidently a contrast to that of some metropolitan carnivals, and notably that of the Eastern Suburbs Club at Bronte on Saturday last, when the public were left in entire ignorance of the results of the various events, and the competitors in the 220 yards Eastern Districts Championship had to wait on the board for five minutes while a rope was being found to mark the finish of the race.

FIXTURES.

The Sydney Club has arranged a number of reunions for the winter months with the idea of keeping the members together. The first of these fixtures will be held next Sunday morning at the Domain Baths, when competitions will be carried out in the gymnasium and in the water. Following is the list of events to be held during the off season:—

April 9.—Quoit tournament; 33 yards handicap; club football. May 7.—Swinging punching ball competition, 25 yards handicap; club football. June 11.—Clubs and dumb-bell competition; springboard diving handicap; club football. July 9.—Skipping competition; 33 yards handicap; club football. August 6.—Fixed punching ball competition; novelty event in the water; club football. September 3.—Blindfold boxing competition; 25 yards handicap; club football. October 1.—All-round gymnasium competition; springboard diving handicap; club football.

GOLF.

ON THE LINKS.

BIG DAY'S PLAY AT KILLARA.

The centre of attraction on Saturday was on the links of the Killara Club, where opening-day competitions were held for amateurs and professionals. The links were in very good condition, and the weather, despite a rather strong southerly wind, was propitious. A large entry of 108 players was received, and despatched by the committee and secretary without hitch. Many ladies visited the links in the afternoon, and evinced a keen interest in the play. The conditions were 18 holes stroke for amateurs, and 36 holes for professionals. S. G. Barker, who won the amateur event, excelled himself, for, with a previous best round of 89, he clipped seven strokes off it, finishing with 83, which, deducting his handicap of 19, left him the excellent card of 64 net.

Barker played particularly good golf going out, taking only 38 for that portion of the journey, including a 2 at the short 8th. With a little more care he should have been even less, for a careless approach at the ninth cost him a stroke. The home run, though including two sixes and a seven, was done in the fair figures of 45. Barker drove a long straight ball, and missed very few putts. L. F. Osborne, of Manly, had also an excellent round to his credit, and, with A. Orr, divided the honour of putting up the best gross score for an amateur. As Osborne has a handicap of 15 he no doubt feels very pleased with his performance, which was the result of good steady golf. Going out he was all fours and fives, and was only 39 at the turn. Coming home he continued to play soundly, and, with the exception of the 12th, which cost him six, was all fours and fives again, until the 18th, where he pulled an iron shot, and took six. He took 41 to come home, and was round in 80, finishing second. W. W. Lyon, who filled third place, is an improving young player, of Killara, who will certainly find his way into one of the teams before long. His round of 84 was characterised by long clean driving and good approaching. He played his round in the morning, and was thought to have a winning card until Barker and Osborne came in later in the day. C. W. Starling, who followed, is a long-mark man, his 93 being his best competition effort to date.

The popular Concord captain, A. Orr, was in his best form, and put up an excellent round of 80. He was out in 38, with sixes at the first and fourth holes, but he made amends by holing the fifth and seventh in threes, and the eighth in two. Coming home he had six fours in the first seven holes, but took five at the short 17th, and failed also at the 18th, where he took seven, finishing, however, with 42 for the second half.

A word must be said about the handicapping, which was first-class, as witness the fact that no less than 30 players finished with net cards under 80.

Great interest centred in the professionals' competition, for which there were 14 entries, there being no notable absentee, except F. Popplewell, who, after his recent operation for appendicitis, is not quite strong enough to play. Considerable galleries followed the leading players, and were amply rewarded by some fine play. D. G. Soutar proved to be the winner with two splendid rounds of 74 and 77 from scratch, and, naturally, also won the prize for the best gross score. Starting out in the morning, he took sixes at the first two holes, but quickly warming to his work, got a 3 at the third, a performance he repeated at the fifth. From there to the turn he was square with bogey at each hole, and was out in 39. Coming home he excelled himself, and played magnificent golf with scarcely a flaw in any department. He notched threes at the 10th and 11th, and an orthodox 5 at the 12th. The next three holes cost him 4 apiece, but he dropped a stroke by taking 5 at the 16th. The 17th cost 4, and at the 18th two splendid shots found the green, and making no mistake with the putt, noted a fine 3, being back in 35, as against a bogey of 39. He had six threes in his round, which was made up as follows:—

Out: 6, 6, 3, 5, 3, 5, 4, 3, 4—39.
In: 3, 3, 5, 4, 4, 4, 5, 4, 3—35—74.

In the afternoon Soutar did not do quite as well, but played golf of very high standard nevertheless. He was out in 40, having taken 6 at the third. Coming home he was a model of consistency, taking fours for each of the holes until the last, which cost him 5, being back in 37. With a short back-swing, he put terrific force into his drive, and got long, straight balls. He was rather unfortunate once or twice on the greens, where he lost two or three strokes.

J. N. Anderson, the Brisbane professional, who ran second with two good rounds of 75 and 79, thoroughly earned his success, and proved himself a brilliant player. With no physique to speak of, he drives a very long ball, and uses his irons with effect. His morning round was unmarred by any defect, and in the afternoon, with the exception of a seven at the first hole, he played consistent and good golf. He took the 4th hole with a perfectly played 3, and an accurate tee shot was rewarded by a 2 at the 8th. He was out in 39, and back in 40, having six fours in the second half. The young Kensington professional, A. East, who tied with Anderson for second place in the handicap event, has a very nice style, and plays a good all-round game. Curiously enough, he took 6 for the first hole in each round, but for the rest of the rounds played solid golf. In the morning he was out in 41 and back in 40, and in the afternoon 38 and 41 were his figures. J. Donald was consistent with rounds of 77 and 79, and in the morning had no hole on his card over 5.

In the afternoon, however, two sixes and a seven marred what would have been a splendid round. B. Clarke played a good round in the afternoon, and but for three sixes would have done better than his return of 78 gross. The Killara professional, F. O'Brien, played a very good game, notching an excellent 77 in the morning, when he had nothing on his card over 5. He was out in 38 and back in 39, and did not make many mistakes, his best hole being the 9th, where two good shots were followed by a putt which found the bottom of the tin. In the afternoon he failed at the 6th and 12th holes, taking 7 at each; but, notwithstanding, completed the second half of the journey in 39, bogey figures. Carnegie Clarke's morning round was not quite in his best style, though he, too, did not have to record anything over five, but going out in the afternoon he played probably the most brilliant golf of the day, taking no less than six of the first nine holes in threes. He took only 33 for this half of the round, a performance which had not before been equalled at Killara, and had a six in the total. His figures for this part of the round are worth recording, and are—

5, 3, 3, 3, 3, 6, 3, 3, 4—33.

Coming home he failed to maintain the same high standard of play, but did not do badly until the eighteenth, when a well-played second shot just caught the top of the bunker and dropped into the ditch. Dropping out, he found a bad lie, and reached the ditch again, the hole taking him nine. V. East did not repeat his performance of the previous week at Kensington, and was not in his best form, finishing a long way down the list.

OTHER LINKS.

C. H. Kloster put up his best competition round to date at Manly in the stroke handicap. He had been trying for some time to break 100, and on Saturday succeeded. For a long-mark player his 98 was a very consistent round, each half of which was accounted for in 49, and his record might have been better but for a couple of sevens at holes bogeyed in four. It is Kloster's first win, though he has been mentioned in despatches more than once. H. H. Stiles, who is showing considerable improvement, was a good second, and other players bore witness to good handicapping by being well in the hunt.

While S. G. Barker was busy scoring his win at Killara, his brother, F. W. Barker, was putting up a good game at Bonnie Doon, where he won the bogey handicap with a good card square with the Colonel. The Barker family had a day out, but while S. G. was closely pressed F. W. had matters all his own way, his nearest competitor being seven down.

Saturday was opening day at Royal Sydney, but attracted a very disappointing entry for the mixed foursomes, which were won without difficulty by J. S. Marks and Mrs. W. H. Christian with the good score of 64 for 13 holes. Golf seems to be languishing somewhat at Rose Bay, though the fact that the open and amateur championships of Australia are to be played there in September should galvanise the game into life again. Many of their members have joined suburban clubs in other to play in the inter-suburban matches, and the club would no doubt derive considerable benefit by itself entering a team for the competition next season.

The Dobroyde club's programme for the season has been issued, and is on quite new lines, inasmuch as, with the exception of about half a dozen stroke and bogey competitions, the whole of the season is given up to match play competitions, by far the most enjoyable form of golf, as well as the most beneficial for improving the standard of play. The innovation is a step in the right direction.

Next Saturday will see the commencement of the third round of the suburban interclub competition, when the most important match will be that between Bonnie Doon and Killara. Each club has so far an unbeaten record, and the winning club in the coming engagement will have an excellent chance of annexing the premiership. The first meeting is on the Killara links, where the home players may be expected to establish a lead, but whether they can then prevent Bonnie Doon reversing the decision in the return match at Bonnie Doon remains to be seen. Killara has seldom made a good showing at Bonnie Doon, and the last two seasons have been badly beaten there. They have, however, a much improved team this season, and may be depended on to put up a good fight. Concord and Manly, at Concord, should be a good engagement, with the odds on Concord; while Hunter's Hill should have no difficulty in beating Parramatta. Dobroyde has the bye.

In the B grade, Manly should beat Concord, while good matches are likely in the Bonnie Doon v Killara and Drummoyne v Parramatta engagements.

LEURA CLUB.

The following programme has been arranged for Easter:—Saturday, April 15: Morning, stroke handicap; afternoon, bogey handicap. Monday, April 17: Morning, stroke handicap; afternoon, bogey handicap. Tuesday, 18th: Afternoon, mixed foursomes. Entries (which should be accompanied by the competitor's club handicap, both par, stroke, and bogey) for the above competitions close Thursday, 13th inst, with the hon. secretary, Mr. Arthur V. Hilliard, 82 Pitt-street, Sydney, or Leura.

A local professional, C. Campbell, recently put up an excellent round of 72, as follows:—First round: 5, 5, 6, 3, 5, 4, 3, 3, 4—38. Second round: 4, 4, 5, 3, 4, 4, 3, 3, 4—34. Total, 72.

BASEBALL.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR THE SEASON.

PUBLIC SCHOOL COMPETITION.

The introduction of baseball into the Public schools last year means great impetus to the pastime. The enthusiasm aroused and the proficiency attained under adverse circumstances, in one short season, was remarkable.

Many converts were made, and schoolmasters who had never seen the game played recognised its usefulness. Fourteen teams of all ages and sizes participated in the competition, which extended over a wide area, embracing Petersham, Stanmore, Leichhardt Central, Leichhardt West, Burwood, Camperdown, Cleveland-street, Parramatta, Bondi, Forest Lodge, Enmore, Hurlstone College, and the High School. The small boy displayed as much capacity as his bigger brother. Petersham came out on top, after exciting and close contests, with Cleveland-street, Hurlstone College, and the High School in the final matches. As a result of team work Petersham secured the handsome silver medals, and holds a shield given by Mr. W. J. Proud, as well as a pennant in club colours presented by Messrs. Spalding Bros., of America.

It is anticipated that the number of schools competing during the ensuing season will be largely augmented. From this nursery the success and progress of baseball, under wise control, is assured. Boys who have left school should be catered for, and not allowed to drift away. Organisation should be the watchword.

That baseball is slowly but surely growing in popularity has been strikingly evidenced by the increased attendances around the district's diamonds. At the recent annual meeting of the association more new faces were seen, and the interest evinced was most pronounced.

A proposal emanating from the Rugby Football League may lead to games being played as curtain-raisers. Nothing better could happen for the advancement of baseball than to place it before crowds so that it may be learned and understood. The league suggests playing it in the summer, its proper season, but the difficulty of securing grounds stands in the way.

Now that players of the calibre of M. A. Noble, Austin Diamond, E. Jansen, T. Gleason, P. H. Winning, M. Shea, and other top-notchers who bore the brunt of the battle in the past have retired, it is pleasing to see so many youthful enthusiasts coming on.

Last season 10 clubs competed in the first grade, and nine in the second. Burwood won easily in the district race, and Waverley for the third year in succession gained the minor grade honours.

Migrations and other causes may lead to the disbandment of North Sydney and Middle Harbour, but proficient exponents like the Minnett brothers and the Woolcotts will be found in other clubs. The personnel of other teams will probably undergo some changes. The sterling sound arm pitcher Dick Antill, who has gone on the land, will be missed by Burwood.

Several new clubs have been formed. Summer Hill and the Y.M.C.A. have already entered the lists; Chatswood is another spoken of, while the Pioneer Boys and Petersham Juniors will throw down the gauntlet.

Mr. J. A. Minnett, president of the association, has signified his intention of presenting a shield. Unfortunately, the long-drawn-out cricket competition will preclude preliminary contests.

It has been decided to open the season at Petersham Oval on the 6th proximo with a gala field day, conducted on American lines. The programme will include interesting events for seniors and juniors incidental to baseball, such as base-running, sliding, battery work, etc., as well as a parade and exhibition games by the schoolboys and grade competitors.

A scheme has been agreed to under which the district system will be modified to allow of permits being granted, subject to prescribed conditions, whereby senior teams may be brought closer together in point of proficiency in every department. The competition will consequently be made keener and more interesting. A committee of five has been appointed for this purpose.

In the past the greatest obstacle to the advancement of baseball has been the want of convenient and suitable grounds. This season, although Waverley and Leichhardt ovals, hitherto entirely available for baseball, may have to be shared with other winter sports, there will be enough grounds for all requirements.

In July next an interstate carnival will be held, in which representative teams from Victoria, South Australia, Tasmania, and New South Wales will engage in a series of games.

The Melbourne Club baseball team will undertake its annual trip to Sydney to meet our leading combinations.

The prospects of baseball were never brighter. Unfortunately, however, the coffers of the association have been depleted in outfitting schools and in sending the interstate team to Victoria. Strong efforts are being made to raise the sinews of war, and when funds are available much more will be done to popularise a glorious game.

PETERSHAM'S FIRST YEAR.

Something like a record was shown by the Petersham Juniors in their first year. They started the season with a team which had only one experienced player in it—A. Panton. The rest were raw recruits. Yet these novices were so apt to learn that during the season only two defeats were registered against them, while eight games were won. The defeat of Stanmore—second graders—was a meritorious performance. Most of the players in the Petersham School Club—which won the first school baseball competition last season—were members of the Petersham Juniors. The success of the club was due in large measure to the able coaching of the president, Mr. Tom Roberts, and the work of the captain, W. A. Panton.

VISIT OF CHAMPIONS.

LEAGUE NOTES.

The Australian Club's meeting at M'Grath's Hotel was well attended by club members. Amongst the visitors were the league president (Mr. A. E. O'Brien) and the league secretary. The club has mapped out a first-class road racing programme. The first of a series of road races is to take place on the Homebush course on May 6. Mr. E. Connington was elected secretary in place of Mr. S. T. Miller, who resigned. Four new members were enrolled. Entries for the road race close on the 29th instant.

A movement is on foot to promote a syndicate with a view of reviving league track racing next summer. The attendances at recent union and league race meetings has encouraged those interested in the sport to believe that, if the leading stars of the American racing circuit (such as "Jackie" Clark, Frank Kramer, Major Taylor, Floyd MacFarland, etc.) or the Continental riders (Walter Rutt, Henry Mayer, and Paul Guignard) could be induced to come the sport of professional cycle racing could be revived. There is no doubt the question is a live one, and in all probability negotiations are even now pending between the proposed promoters and the riders.

The official handicapper of the League of New South Wales Wheelmen has issued the following marks for the mile and mile and a half handicaps to be run at the sports meeting, Canbelego, on April 17:—A. W. Marsh, 20yds, 30yds; A. Ryan, 60yds, 90yds; J. J. Henderson, 90yds, 130yds; H. J. Batchelor, 110yds, 160yds; V. E. Kennedy, 110yds, 160yds; T. Barron, 120yds, 175yds; A. H. Sands, 120yds, 175yds; A. K. Knight, 120yds, 175yds; W. A. Weale, 120yds, 175yds; T. Price, 130yds, 190yds; A. E. Baker, 130yds, 190yds; F. Grimmond, 130yds, 190yds; R. F. Millyn, 140yds, 205yds; W. Kelly, 140yds, 205yds; J. Tipping, 150yds, 220yds; G. G. Knight, 150yds, 220yds; R. G. Knight, 160yds, 235yds; H. Boland, 160yds, 235yds; J. Doyle, 160yds, 235yds; N. Tipping, 160yds, 235yds; W. H. Hodge, 170yds, 250yds; J. H. Crombie, 180yds, 265yds; E. J. Parsons, 180yds, 265yds; F. Millyn, 200yds, 295yds; R. A. Mitchell, 200yds, 295yds. The handicap for H. A. Ward was withheld pending his performances.

The Gilgandra Club, under the guidance of Mr. W. Gorton Barker, has arranged for a sports meeting on May 24; entries are due on May 10, and handicaps are promised for May 17. There are four handicaps, one-half, three-quarter, one, one and a half miles, and a slow race. The mile handicap carries the title of the Barker Wheel Race, and Mr. Barker is presenting the first prize—a Waratah bicycle.

The prize list for the Australian Club's race on May 6 is being presented by the Dunlop Rubber Company, Bennett and Wood, Ltd., and Messrs. H. Bagnall, J. Davis, and J. Mathers. It is to be confined to club members only.

Negotiations are now being made to hold a league race meeting on May 24. It is probable the Sydney Sports Ground will be selected.

UNION NOTES.

The Marrickville Club's run card, just issued, shows fixtures up to the end of June, and members' club runs are well catered for. The Newman Handicap road race is to be run on April 29. Entries are due on the 22nd instant.

Entries for the Cyclists' Union's Easter racing have been extended till to-night, when they will close at the Sports Club, Hunter-street. There will be three events at Maitland (half, three-quarter, and one mile handicaps), and two events at Goulburn (half and one mile). In connection with the racing at Maitland there will also be a three-quarter mile handicap at Wallsend, near Newcastle, on the afternoon of Good Friday, which is being run by the Newcastle Amateur Club, and which is open to all members of the union. Entries for Sydney riders for this race also will be taken at the Sports Club up to to-morrow evening. All events are for the usual one shilling entry fee.

The following are the handicaps for the opening five-mile road race of the Willoughby District Club in connection with the Tom Carleton trophy, to be run on Saturday:—

G. Gore, S. Fisher, H. Bates, scr.; H. Schofield, A. Gow, 40s; J. Hilder, H. Fisher, 50s; H. Howard, 1m; H. Paul, A. J. Trundle, Vic. Trundle, A. J. Baillie, 1m 20s; F. Duffy, K. Brown, 1m 40s; S. Budwick, 2m 30s. The club's run card, issued this month, shows fixtures up to the end of June. A five miles road race is to be held over the Chatswood course next Saturday.

ATHLETICS.

BETWEEN SEASONS.

"Amateur athletics are booming." This statement by the honorary secretary of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association sums up the position for the past season. And if athletics did not boom in Australia, they would not boom anywhere. For Australia is the land of the out-of-doors, where it is almost a point of honour with the young manhood of the land to excel in some branch of sport.

So far as athletics pure and simple are concerned we are now between seasons. The sprinting events of the summer carnivals are all over. The winter long-distance contests have not yet begun. The meetings held by the various harriers and athletic clubs during the past season have, as a rule, been very well supported and attended. Coming events promise to be quite as successful.

The council of the New South Wales A.A.A. will meet to-morrow night, when final arrangements will be made for the annual meeting, which will probably take place on April 27. The last of the big athletic meetings of the season was held at the St. Patrick's Day sports, and on that occasion the racing was of exceptional interest. The three big events—100yds handicap for the Cardinal's Cup, quarter-mile and one mile championships—provided close and wildly exciting finishes. The cup was annexed by W. P. Booth, of the Leichhardt Harriers, who fought his way to the tape just inches before F. Strickland, of South Sydney. The 440yds championship ended sensationally. Denis Lane made the pace hot, but was challenged 100yds from home by W. F. Pattison, the 'Varsity sprinter. The pair fought it out locked together, but Lane collapsed a couple of yards from the tape, and the student won home. In the mile event another fine finish saw Fred Flowers, of Redfern, just beaten by Temple Wood, of East Sydney, by a couple of yards.

The New Zealand amateur championships recently concluded were responsible for some fine displays, Wellington retaining the championship shield, Canterbury and Southland being next in order. The meeting provided one record, Keddell, the Southland champion, winning the 120yds hurdles in the Australasian record time of 15 3-10s. If the obstacles were ten 3ft 6in hurdles, the performance is only one-tenth of a second worse than the record of Kraenzlein at Chicago in 1898, and Shaw, of Philadelphia, in 1908. Keddell also annexed the 440yds hurdles and the running broad jump.

Suburban harriers are practising for the open handicaps at the Hunter's Hill meeting on April 22. There will be a 100yds and a 440yds open race. On the same date the Newtown Harriers will contest a six miles open road race. At present South Sydney Harriers are in course of deciding the club championships. The second day's programme will be carried out on Saturday next. Botany Harriers will during the week meet to definitely arrange for the club's Melbourne jaunt. Last Saturday they put through a good programme at Booralee Park. Additional events are down for decision next Saturday. The Newtown runners have in hand a six miles open road race, to be decided on April 22. In addition, they are arranging an all-day sports meeting for June 5, and a Marathon is included in the bill of fare.

Mr. R. Coombes, well known in the athletic world, will shortly leave for a trip to England. This afternoon his friends and admirers will meet at Bateman's Hotel, and present him with a purse of sovereigns.

MOTOR NOTES.

The annual report of the Automobile Club of Victoria shows this body to be strongest numerically of any automobile club south of the line. The progress of the A.C.V. is shown in the following membership figures:—1904-5, 162; 1905-6, 172; 1906-7, 175; 1907-8, 192; 1908-9, 399; 1909-10, 523; 1910-11, 590. During the past year the sum of £183 18s 6d was spent in defending actions against members. The club ends its financial year with a bank balance of £542. The Automobile Club of Australia (N.S.W.) at the onset adopted a different policy to the Victorian body, as they took up the question of limiting the number of members. According to the latest revised rules the number of members is unlimited, and no doubt in the near future they will pull even with the southern body. A little friendly rivalry in this respect would appear to be good for motoring in both States.

The question of a speed limit for motor cars, especially touring models, is one that is interesting many municipal councillors, and the recommendation of the Mayor of Prospect and Sherwood (Alderman G. D. Ringrose) on being placed before the Hurstville Council was favourably received, and it is understood that hearty co-operation is promised. The following are extracts from the recommendations submitted:—

"During the year just closed, as Mayor I have taken all steps that I could think of to check the speed and reckless driving of motor vehicles on your classified main roads, and also to obtain some aid towards the upkeep of the Sydney and Western roads."

"The Motor Traffic Act of 1909, with its regulations, seems of little use, as at present worked, to check reckless driving, and the inconsiderate use of the Western-road at all. My experience is—and I use the road daily—that motor vehicle drivers rush along the centre of the road at anything up to 60 miles an hour, and that it is quite an exceptional one that will move aside, even to allow women drivers, or evidently timid horses, their lawful half of this main road. In fact, nine out of ten seem to look upon this road as their particular property, and all lesser folks as a nuisance. We have been granted 15-mile speed discs on Sydney-road, which I believe will lessen risks to the public there, and I trust we may yet obtain them for a portion of the Western-road. We failed, however, during the year to get any monetary assistance towards these roads' upkeep."

"I would propose that this council seek the co-operation of all shire and municipal councils, and the Local Government Association, at once, with a view to obtaining an amended 'Motor Vehicle Act,' with maximum speeds for all town and country roads inserted. This plan has been adopted in the English Act dealing with this traffic; but it was omitted from our Act for reasons not far to seek. Further, I would propose that you seek a regulation requiring the patrolling by plain-clothes police on motor bicycles of all main and tourist roads in the interests of the general public."

No doubt this matter will be dealt with by the Roads and Tours Committee of the Automobile Club of Australia, who are at present interesting themselves in the question of "good roads," not only for motor traffic, but for all classes of traction. So far it is a question to be argued as to whether motor traffic does damage the roads; certainly they raise the dust, but that does not mean that they tear up the road.

BILLIARDS.

ACTIVITY IN THE TRADE.

THE CONQUERING AUSTRALIAN.

The eyes of all Australians have been turned towards England, where young George Gray has been capturing records and bagging scalps. At this distance one hesitates to state definitely that the top-notchers are seeking cover, but there is a general feeling in that direction here. Before, however, that feeling receives expression it is advisable to consider the conditions under which so many of the leading exponents of the game are playing. They are practically all playing in the interests of various makers of tables, and are bound by strict articles which effectively prevent them meeting one another under independent conditions. On behalf of George Gray a challenge has been issued to H. W. Stevenson, but the latter cannot accept an open challenge unless released by the people upon whose tables he plays. Gray, too, is bound to play on a particular table with particular balls, so that the cable announcements respecting challenges may be regarded at present as so much advertising.

Gray is at present a centre of interest, and his wonderful execution certainly makes his play worthy of study. Already word has been received that his hazard strokes are monotonous, but in considering such a declaration one must ask who makes it. From prospective opponents, whose laurels are threatened, the complaint comes with poor grace. The strokes, for one cannot refer to Gray as a one-stroke player, have been open to the world, and have been practised assiduously for many years. No one has succeeded in mastering the losing hazard stroke like Gray.

Even Melbourne Inman, who was regarded as a wizard with the losing hazard, has to fall back a long way when compared with Gray as an exponent of hazard play.

Analysis of Gray's play shows that no two strokes are exactly and consecutively identical, and only the player of the game can thoroughly appreciate the remarkable power that can bring the ball back into position for a stroke of somewhat similar character. John Roberts perfected the more appealing top of the table play, and Stevenson, as the old champion lost some of his elasticity, displayed even superior manipulation. No one characterised top of the table play as monotonous, but it was very cold business for the opponents of these great players as they sat in a chair and watched the other fellow score. The wonder of it is that young Gray has the physical capacity to stand the strain. Top of the table play has more attractiveness, because one sees three balls moving most of the time, but with the hazard game one ball is snug under the cushion, or out of the track, or in a pocket, and only two are worked by the striker.

In this State a condition of billiard activity exists which is being reflected throughout the Commonwealth. All the table-makers are busy, and their trouble is that they cannot get their orders filled quickly enough for their patrons. Thus does sport stimulate trade. State quarrymen, wood-turners, fitters, brass and metal workers, cloth-makers, macrame-makers, carriers, the railways—all participate in the harvest. The game has become very popular, and to attempt to keep track of all the tournaments in progress in the State would be an almost impossible task.

LAWN TENNIS.

NEW SCALE OF CHARGES.

APPIAN WAY TOURNAMENT.

The committee of the Appian Way Club is well satisfied with the number and quality of the entries received for the tournament which begins on Saturday. The only cause for regret is that Parker and Fisher will be absentees. Parker is leaving for Tasmania to compete in the championships for the island State, which are to be held at Easter, and Fisher has elected to take part in the annual open tournament at Geelong.

The entries for the several events are:—

Western Suburbs singles championship 22, Western Suburbs doubles championship 11, Western Suburbs mixed doubles championship 4, singles handicap 69, doubles handicap 45, mixed handicap 25, ladies' doubles handicap 18.

The singles championship entries include those of A. B. Jones (holder), H. Rice, G. G. Sharp, L. O. S. Poidevin, G. P. Sayers, R. M. Kidston, and E. L. Jones. In the doubles appear Campbell-Rice (holders), A. B. Jones-Wright, Poidevin-Sayers, Sharp-E. Anderson, Clark-E. Jones, and Sloman-R. Anderson.

The council of the New South Wales Association has had under consideration a lengthy report from the finance committee dealing with the present position of the association, and suggesting means by which the company may be more profitably carried on.

With a few alterations the report was adopted. An important point was the necessity of obtaining increased revenue, as it was not considered possible to practise much more economy in expenditure than in former years. With this end in view there will be a somewhat higher scale of charges for those taking part in the district matches, while those in the lower grades will pay a capitation fee of 3d for each match in which they take part. It was thought that more revenue would be obtained from the ground on week days if the fact that the whole ground or a certain number of courts could be hired were generally known, and circulars are to be issued quoting the terms on which this may be done. Provision is made for establishing a sinking fund to provide for depreciation in the value of the improvements to the ground, consisting of pavilion, grand stand, etc., and also for a ground purchase account fund to supply during the next ten years the capital value of the land account, £1254 3s 4d.

The report draws attention to the fact that in the event of the revenue still being too low increased revenue would result if permission were obtained to use the ground on Sundays. At the same time it deprecates any attempt to force the matter of Sunday play at the present time, and suggests that every effort should be used to establish the finances of the association by other means first.

The council also adopted a recommendation which is of importance to clubs and branch associations conducting open tournaments sanctioned by the association. This provides that no players resident in New South Wales shall take part in any such tournament unless he be a member of an affiliated club or of the association, provided that any player residing outside the county of Cumberland, not being a member of an affiliated club or branch association, may compete in any such tournament on payment to the New South Wales Association, through the body holding the tournament, a sum of 5s for the right to play in such tournament.

The Appian Way tournament, which is to begin next Saturday, will be the first of a series of events which will keep tennis players occupied until the close of the year, for it will be followed immediately by the Mars Buckley Cup contest, the interstate match with Victoria, and the New South Wales championships. As soon as these are disposed of attention will be centred on the district and interclub competitions, which will last until the annual match against Queensland is due, and then will follow the metropolitan championships in October, and the interstate match and Victorian championships in Melbourne. The year will be fittingly brought to a close by the greatest event of all, the Davis Cup contest.

There is every reason to suppose that Australasia, the champion nation, will not be given a walk-over, as was the case last year. It may be that we shall see in Australia America opposed by South Africa, and the winner by England, but even if that desirable state of affairs should not take place, owing to some of those nations forfeiting or playing their matches elsewhere, there still remains the challenge round against Australasia, in which America, should she survive the preliminary ties, appears determined to take part.

The fact that Dr. Dwight, the president of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, has written stating that the chances of a team being sent are much more hopeful than last year, augurs well indeed. In former years his association has taken a somewhat pessimistic view of the probability of a side being obtainable, yet only once has it failed to be represented. England, no doubt, will make an effort to induce America and South Africa to play off the preliminary ties at Wimbledon at the meeting at which the All England championships take place. This will be in June, so that before long something definite as to the intentions of the nations may be expected. It is very desirable that a decision should be come to as to these preliminary ties without delay, to enable Australasia to make its arrangements for conducting the challenge tie. This must be in New Zealand, but there may be some difficulty on deciding which town shall be selected for the convincing ground. Last year Wellington was chosen on the recommendation of the N.Z. authorities, but Christchurch people were very much upset by the decision, and advanced reasons why the southern town would be more suitable, which will have weight when the question comes up again.

The All England championships will be of more than usual interest to Australians this year on account of the large number of Commonwealth players who will be taking part in them. Amongst these are expected to be R. W. Heath, A. W. Dunlop, M. H. Marsh, S. N. Doust, and E. O. Pockley, while the New Zealander, A. F. Wilding, who holds the championship, will defend his title against the winner of the All England singles. Heath's first performance in Europe may be regarded as very satisfactory, notwithstanding that he was defeated. To make a four-set match with Rahe on hard courts immediately after a long sea voyage is very creditable, for his German conqueror is one of the hardest men to beat on any description of court, and especially on those of the hard variety which are in vogue on the Riviera, and to which Heath is unaccustomed.

BOXING.

CHAMPIONSHIP CANDIDATES.

RINGSIDE WEIGHING.

Of recent years there has been much discussion on the question of ringside weighing. It crops up whenever a championship contest is mooted, but no definite rule has yet been established. At present the time or date of weighing in is decided by the holder of the title, and the challenger has either to accede to these terms, however outrageous they may be, or lose his chance of getting a match.

The whole difficulty is this: With increasing years athletes tend to run to weight, and a man who could without the slightest difficulty make a certain weight, say, two years ago would find himself hard put to it to make that weight at the present moment. Hence a curious anomaly. He is the holder of a championship, and yet cannot make the weight for the class of which he poses as the champion. If, however, he is allowed to weigh in some hours before the contest, he will have time to regain his strength and weight before he appears in the ring, and will, as a consequence, be enabled to show at his best. This state of affairs is deplorable, and shows the necessity of a supervising body to control championship battles. Lord Lansdowne's scheme was a step in the right direction, but certain grave defects were responsible for its rejection.

English sporting writers are English in their praises of Sam Langford, whom they hail as the next world's champion. There would seem to be some truth in their contention, for, judging by Johnston's actions during the past couple of years, it would appear that the present holder of the title is by no means anxious to meet Langford. True, Johnston would have all the advantage on his side, as his height, weight, and reach are much greater than Langford's, but it is still possible that in a finish contest Langford would show to greater advantage than his opponent. Langford's hitting powers are undeniable. Still, as a meeting between the two has been practically arranged, the vexed question as to the relative merits of the pair is likely to be decided summarily. Langford's recent match with M'Vea, also an American negro, in Paris, throws a fresh light on championship form. Although the contest ended in a draw, the critics were unanimous in declaring Langford the winner. The fact remains that M'Vea could stop the full term with Langford, and be within striking distance of him at the finish. Thus the conclusion is thrust upon us that at the present time the three men with pretensions to the championship title are all American negroes.

Last Friday night Jerry Jerome, the aboriginal boxer, was billed to meet Townsend at the Central Athletic Hall, but to the surprise of the management he failed to put in an appearance. It appears that Jerome, who is attached to an aboriginal reserve in Queensland, left without the necessary permission, and as such a course of action is not permitted by the Act, he was recalled by the Aborigines Protection Organisation of Queensland, and as a consequence had no choice but to return to the northern capital by the first train.

An interesting contest will be decided at the Stadium to-night, the contestants being Ted Green, the tough little bantam from Balmain, and Billy Elliott, who recently won the bantam title from Sid Sullivan, only to lose it to Jim Russell. The men will be in the ring at 8.30.

The Australasian lightweight champion, Hughie Mehegan, is at present in the unenviable position of being compelled to refuse lucrative matches. He is suffering from ear trouble, and will in all probability be compelled to undergo an operation, after which he contemplates a trip to America.

Bill Turner, the Tasmanian heavyweight, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, is now convalescent, but it will be some months yet before he will be able to follow up his avocation.

The date on which the Aorangi will reach Sydney is still uncertain, so no date can yet be assigned for the Lang-Lester contest, which should have taken place on Easter Monday. The match, however, will in all probability be decided a fortnight after Lester's arrival. Lang has already arrived at Fremantle, and is expected in Sydney at the end of the week.

On Easter Monday night a benefit will be tendered Jim Griffin, the New Zealand middleweight boxer, at the Gaiety Athletic Club. Griffin was injured in a contest some time back, and has been advised to undergo an operation. The benefit is being held with a view to defraying his medical expenses.

ANGLING.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS.

THE CLUBS' USE.

The value of angling clubs as a lever to force along legislation on wise lines should not be underestimated. No outside influence has yet had much effect upon Administrations of the past and present, and the only notable concessions to pronounced public opinion recorded during the last 10 years have been the closure of Brisbane Water and part of Sydney Harbour to net-fishing. Other closures have practically forced themselves upon the authorities. Meantime, the reforms which must precede a forward policy of development are being held back. The single control of the Fisheries Department stands first, and close in the train of necessity is the setting apart of a large amount of the public money annually for schools of fishery instruction in coastal centres where people at present, or should in the near future, obtain their living by fishing. Of almost equal importance is the necessity for a trout-fishing license, which might be extended to cod, and the application of the money raised by this means, or its equivalent, to the control of the rivers and the establishment of nurseries and hatcheries.

Closely allied to these reforms, which more immediately concern anglers, is the necessity for controlling the wholesale and retail fish trade, not necessarily by means of Government market centres, but by the appointment of inspectors, whose duties shall not only include the measuring of oyster leases and hauling grounds, and the seizure of illegal nets, but also the inspection of all fish sold to the public anywhere, and the investigation of matters between net-fishermen and their agents in the population centres.

Major Spain is in receipt of two huge volumes recording the proceedings at the Fourth International Fishery Congress held at Washington in 1908. It has taken a long time to compile the records, but when one sees what has been done he cannot express surprise at the time occupied. Major Spain's copy comes from his friend, Dr. Smith, of the Washington Bureau. Of primary importance are the international regulations of the fisheries of the high seas. These will probably be adopted by the various maritime nations. Australia was not represented at the congress, probably on account of the cost. That is the policy of Australia. Fiscal meanness has characterised the various States' management of their fisheries up to the present time; yet the United States probably spent four times as much money on merely recording the proceedings at the conference as would have been required to send a delegate to Washington, capable of putting forward something important on behalf of the Commonwealth. Interest attaches to a paper by Mr. H. Wheeler Perce on "The National Aspects of Angling and the Protection of Game Fishes," and to a paper on Australian sponges, which are regarded as commercially and zoologically of great importance. The records are profusely illustrated, and the coloured plates are in the highest degree artistic.

Casting practice should be engaged in by men who have taken to the rod. The efforts of rock and beach fishermen on the coast now are very crude. Expert instruction is as badly needed in rock and beach fishing as in fly-casting, but, so far, nearly all the instruction has been confined to members of the Anglers' Casting Club and Rod-Fishers' Society.

PIGEON HOMING.

MILDURA MILITARY RACE.

N.S.W. ASSOCIATION.

The New South Wales Pigeon Homing Association, which is comprised of the following societies: Sydney No. 1, Marrickville, Western Suburbs, Auburn, and Parramatta, has just completed a most successful season, the year's operations being in every way satisfactory.

The chief event was the Mildura Military race, which was flown under the auspices of the association, for the Federal Government's Grand Prize. It proved a great success, the birds homing in excellent times, and proving their worth as special aerial messengers.

In the coming season it is proposed to hold a team's race of ten birds a-side among the affiliated societies. The association will meet in the near future to complete arrangements. Prizes to the value of £800 will be competed for by the abovenamed societies during the season.

The following officebearers have been elected:—Patron, Mr. S. Hordern, J.P.; president, Mr. J. Felix Booth, J.P.; secretary, Mr. W. H. Wiles; committee, Messrs. A. Glover, F. R. Brown, E. Rowell, [illegible] E. Wybrow, W. Grant, G. Smith, A. Monk, A. Robinson, T. Guerin; hon. treasurer, F. R. Brown.

BOWLS.

THE EASTER CARNIVAL.

ASSOCIATION'S TROUBLES.

The Easter bowling carnival grows in importance, and this year all previous efforts have been eclipsed. The programme put forward far excels anything ever attempted by any of the bowling associations of the other States. Teams are to arrive from New Zealand, Queensland, Victoria, and Tasmania. Over 20 interstate matches will be played before the end of the month. Not only will the visiting teams meet New South Wales, but they will also meet each other, and will play interclub matches as well. Thus the mat will be continually in requisition on the different greens. Accompanying the visitors are a number of ladies, and an attempt will be made to organise ladies' matches. The ladies of Melbourne are adepts at bowls, and there is a growing inclination in some of the other States to follow suit. Last Easter the Melbourne ladies endeavoured to arrange a ladies' interstate match in Sydney, but the attempt was unsuccessful. On this occasion, it is said, the position will be different, as there is a likelihood of the ladies from the different States taking the matter into their own hands. However, the New South Wales Association does not encourage ladies' play in any way, and no provision has been made for it on the official programme; but Ashfield and Waverley clubs have a number of ladies who regularly engage in play upon the local greens.

It is estimated that the interstate visitors will this year number about 200. The Tasmanian team arrived yesterday morning. They represent the Tasmanian Bowling Association, which includes Launceston and the coastal clubs, but does not include Hobart men, who are connected with the Bowling Union of Tasmania. However, the visitors who arrived by the Melbourne express yesterday, total 17 players and five ladies. Fourteen of the players are from Launceston and three from Burnie, on the west coast. They were met at the railway station by the president of the New South Wales Association (Mr. Raffan), the secretary of the association (Mr. Maddox), and members of the interstate selection committee. The team was driven to its headquarters at the Hotel Mansions, and after lunch the visitors proceeded to the Ashfield green, where the formal reception took place.

Mr. Raffan, president of the New South Wales association, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the State. He said the New South Wales players who went to Tasmania 12 months ago had the time of their bowling life in Launceston. It was one long day of enjoyment, and he trusted the representatives of the Tasmanian association would enjoy their visit to Sydney on this occasion. In fact, he hoped that they would secure the rubber, so that New South Wales players could go down to Tasmania and have another good time. (Laughter.) He had specially to mention the name of Messrs. Melrose and Whitaker, who had charge of the arrangements in Tasmania, and who did their part splendidly.

Mr. Spence, president of the Ashfield club, welcomed the visitors to the local green.

Mr. Ferrall, vice-president of the Tasmanian Association, responded on behalf of the visitors. Cheers were then given for the visitors and for the New South Wales players, and the teams took to the green. This was only meant to be a practice match more than anything else, and the visitors were suffering from the effects of a long journey, and were naturally out of form, while the Ashfield men were in good playing condition, and the result, as expected, went largely in favour of the home team, but the visitors showed that they had some really fine players in their ranks. Williams in particular. He is the champion of Tasmania, and has been for several years. His fine drawing shots yesterday were much admired. He certainly had rather a weak man against him in Byrn, whom he badly defeated. Thurston is another skip that has an excellent record for sound play, but Moses was too much for him yesterday. However, Moses was at home, while the Tasmanian men, not used to greens composed of our type of grass, took a little time to get accustomed to the sward. But they improved towards the end, and ought to make a very good showing to-day at North Sydney. The scores of yesterday's match were as follow:—

	Tas.	Ash.
Simpson, Ferrall, Wright, Williams	33	—
L. H. Wyatt, Mortley, Luke, Byrn	—	14
Trevelein, Whitaker, Tucker, Paton	6	—

OTHER MATCHES.

On Thursday the second interstate match between New South Wales and Tasmania will be played on the Balmain green. On Friday the visitors will be the guests of the president of the association on the harbour, and on Saturday the final of the interstate matches with Tasmania will be played on the Manly Green. On Sunday the Queenslanders will arrive, and on Monday they will meet Tasmania on the Kuring-gai green. Next day the same teams will play their second interstate match on the Victoria Park green, and on the following day the final between Queensland and Tasmania will be played on the Mosman green. The Tasmanians will then be entertained by the City Club, and will that evening proceed to Melbourne by the express train. The Victorian team will arrive the same day in Sydney, and will, along with Queensland, commence a series of interstate matches against New South Wales and Queensland will also play three matches against Victoria.

The New Zealand bowlers propose to travel from Auckland by the Maheno on April 10, reaching Sydney on Good Friday. Several ladies will accompany the party. Later in the month a team is also expected in Sydney from Ballarat (Victoria).

VISITING TEAMS.

The following players will represent the States visiting Sydney at Easter:—

Queensland.—O. D. Reid, T. W. Bouchard, L. M. Mendoza, F. Gould, W. H. Austen, J. Macmillan, W. Street, A. Earl, P. C. Sapsford, J. Torrance, J. Lang, F. E. Short, A. H. Orchard, J. F. Brier, R. Hankins, R. B. Whitehouse, G. Hewitt, C. A. Arvier, W. Condie, Captain Svensen.

Dudley (Opawa), Frank Newell (West End), Taylor (Waverley). It is more than probable that several other bowlers will join the team.

Tasmania.—W. H. Ferrall, J. R. Melrose, John Ingles, G. R. Paton, H. Evans, J. Anderson, A. C. Ferrall, E. E. Tucker, W. A. Simpson, W. A. Whitaker, J. Wright, T. J. Crisp, C. A. Kent, W. Armstrong, J. E. Williams, J. E. Thurston, B. W. Trevelein.

BOWLING ASSOCIATION.

PROPOSAL TO PAY SECRETARY.

AN ABORTIVE MEETING.

OFFICERS LIKELY TO RESIGN.

A special meeting of the New South Wales Bowling Association was held on Tuesday evening at Aarons' Exchange Hotel to deal with proposals from the committee that a paid secretary be appointed, and that, in order to secure the necessary funds to meet this increased expenditure, a capitation fee of 3s per member should be imposed. To give effect to these proposals it was necessary that the consent of a two-thirds majority should be obtained at a duly convened meeting of the association. The president of the association presided. The first proposal that a paid secretary was necessary was carried without any difficulty, but in the question of ways and means the meeting was equally divided. The committee, however, pointed out that the man who refused 3s extra per year to provide a paid secretary was not much of a sport. A vote was taken, and the result was about 50 for the proposal and about the same number against it; but as the two-thirds majority was not forthcoming the motion was lost, and the meeting broke up.

The question was freely debated yesterday in bowling circles. The officers and committee of the association are naturally very sore over the defeat. Their work has gone for nothing, and one of the executive stated yesterday that the result would be the resignation of the whole of the officers and committee. "Let those who think they can run the show try their hand at it," he exclaimed. "We have done our best, and they won't have it. Well, we must make room for somebody else," he added.

But there is a very large section of the bowlers who think that the solution of the difficulty is the reconstruction of the association on the lines of other sporting bodies. At the present time every bowler belongs to the association. It is, therefore, representation by members and not by clubs. The proposal is to alter the constitution and make it equal representation by clubs in the form of delegates. Every metropolitan club pays £4 4s per year; each of these clubs to send four delegates to the association. Every country club pays £1 1s; each of these clubs send one delegate to the association. An association composed of delegates elected on those lines would be able to handle questions of control and management in a much more satisfactory manner than under the present system of every bowler being at liberty to roll up and have a say. The new proposal would give equal representation to all clubs, who contribute equally to the funds. Another proposal is to allow only one member from each club on the committee; the president to have a casting vote only, and the paid secretary no vote. That system, it is claimed, would do away with cliqueism and prevent a meeting from being packed. It would also allow the business of the association to run more smoothly. It is likely that another meeting of the association will shortly be called to further consider the present unsatisfactory position.

CLUB CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Club championships are drawing to a close as far as this year is concerned. Dunwoodie has secured the honour of being Marrickville's champion. He defeated Griffiths by 31 points to 30, after a ding-dong game. Burton-Smith is the champion of the Mosman Club. His win against J. Doulty in the final was a substantial one, the cards showing 31 to 17.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

The club championship resulted:—Curran beat Rowley, 31 to 27; Rigby beat Suttor, 31 to 18; Mitchell beat Gartrell, 31 to 27; Allanson beat Edgely, 31 to 27.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

The following appointments were approved at a meeting of the Executive Council yesterday:—Sergeant First-class J. Peterswald to the rank of acting sub-inspector of police; Mr. W. Harkins, to act as engineer surveyor at Newcastle during the absence of Mr. Dalling, Department of Navigation; Senator Allen M'Dougall, as a trustee of the site granted to the Trades and Industrial Hall and Literary Institute Association, in place of the late Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan; Mr. J. S. Rodger, as Coroner at Camden Haven; Mr. E. J. Daley, as clerk of petty sessions at Moss Vale; Mr. E. F. M'Donald, Mr. L. J. M'Kean, and Mr. P. R. BUY BANKSTOWN LOTS NOW.

If you never had good advice before, you have it here: "Buy Bankstown Lots now." Bankstown, a 35 minutes' journey by train, is as close as Strathfield, Bondi, or Coogee. It has the advantages of fine views, delightful surroundings, pure, dry, healthful air, rich soil, good elevation, combined with nearness to the city. Just as surely night follows sunset, so surely must Bankstown grow. And property values will keep pace with the growth.

GREENACRE PARK ESTATE is really Bankstown. It lies right at the station, on both sides. An average of almost thirty home-seekers a month buy lots on Greenacre Park. At this rate, it won't take Bankstown long to grow to a big, bustling place. Buy one of the full acres there now, at £42 10s—in a year it should be worth double. Terms, £1 deposit, and 10/ a month, for every £30 of purchase money. Send to our Dept. H. for Plans and Booklets.

I ADMIRE HABERFIELD,
"It is a credit to the City of Sydney."

"One cannot help admiring a system by which land is only sold for the erection of good homes, where the best in modern architecture is availed of, where the streets are beautifully laid out, and the whole result is picturesque." This, and the above, are the candid opinions of prominent business men who were recently asked what they thought of Haberfield.

Their words voice the opinions of many others. Those who have visited Haberfield, those who reside at Haberfield, all who become familiar with this delightful garden suburb, have nothing but praise for it.

In a few years' time Haberfield has developed into one of Sydney's most popular suburbs. Being healthy, splendidly situated, a nice distance from the city, and suburb and cottages possessing many other advantages, it has made easy the carrying out of the original scheme.

To-day there are numerous new cottages completed and ready to be sold. They vary in size, and consequently vary in price; but characteristic of each is a superior style of architecture and artistic decoration—cottages that provide ideal homes. Cottages, also, designed and built to order.

PROVE ONCE AND FOR ALL

DR. WAUGH'S

BAKING POWDER

IS UNEQUALLED.

The addition of a small quantity of Dr. Waugh's Baking Powder makes a wonderful difference to scones, cakes, and pastry.

Prove the truth of this statement yourself. Try, first of all, the effect of doing without it, or using the ordinary self-raising flour—then in another batch put the Baking Powder. You will at once notice the difference. The last batch is wholesome, light, and digestible, and if placed on the table at the same time as the others, decided preference will be shown for those made with Dr. Waugh's Baking Powder.

Once Become a user of this Baking Powder, and you will consider it as important as flour. A little goes a long way, and a small tin, costing you 6d, or 1/, is sufficient to impress you with the fact that it is indispensable.

COMPETITION RESULTS.

Over 1900 lists have been received in this competition. Some contain as many as 20,000 words. The work is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. Prize-winners' names will be published without any undue delay.

FIRST THE TAILOR.

—then the material— and then the price. That is the way you should consider the suit proposition as it applies to you. No Suit can be a good one unless the cutter is an artist with the faculty of adapting the garments he fashions to the personality of the men who are to wear them.

That is where the "E. T. Walsh" Tailoring Service is ahead of all Others. Our Staff of cutters, as well as other workers, is thoroughly experienced and efficient, and we pride ourselves upon the goods we produce. As for the materials—well, call to-day, and inspect them. They're distinctive, high-grade, and tasteful.

VALAZE, THE BEAUTIFIER.

VALAZE stands for the most perfect complexion preparation that science has ever had to her credit. It is not like thousands of so-called skin foods, bland, indifferent, nondescript—the kind that the skin is better off without than with.

Valaze acts on the skin.

Valaze seeks out the deepest layers of the skin, and there works as nature works, thoroughly and surely, for skin purity, for skin colour, and for skin freshness, and skin beauty.

That is why the skin that feeds on Valaze can bear the brunt of all weather and climate conditions of heat, cold, and of atmospheric damp and dry.

In jars, 3s 6d, 6s 6d, and 6d postage.

NOVENA SUNPROOF CREME shields the skin from sun and wind, imparts a soft, natural appearance to the skin, and prevents freckles, tan, sunburn, and sallowness. In jars, 2s and 3s 6d.

NOVENA HAIR DESTROYER, a perfect depilatory, which instantly removes the hairs without the slightest detriment to the complexion. Leaves a delightfully cool sensation after application. 5s 6d; 6d postage.

Mlle. RUBINSTEIN is visiting Sydney for a few days, and ladies should not miss this opportunity of consulting her on all matters relating to the care and treatment of the complexion.

All Valaze preparations obtainable from leading Chemists, or direct from HELENA RUBINSTEIN PROP., Ltd., Dept. "D," 274 Collins-street, Melbourne; 158 Pitt-street, Sydney.
